Some Board of Education members are concerned, however, that citizens will perceive their cautious approach as not supporting popular programs and school activities. Barb Kalinoski reminded fellow Board of Education representatives of the recent activities report that clearly showed just how successful many of the programs in the District are. In his report, Activities Director Jim Sims credited the success of these programs (19 athletic programs and over 40 fine arts, music and club activities) as due to three things: support of adults and parents throughout the District; support by District staff and the Board of Education; and students who are willing to work hard. District students and staff have won many honors. She also noted that a recent report showed that students are doing well on their academic tests. Kalinoski concluded from these and other successes that the District is continuing to move forward, but it just cannot do business the way it used to.

What this means is that not all of the over $700,000 in requests to the representatives on the Board of Education for School District 564 will be approved. The budget strings are tighter and more precarious than most apparently think. On the other hand, the Board of Education and residents may have forgotten that the Board of Education isn't now struggling to find ways to cut over $1 million from its budget.

In Minnesota, people often greet each other with "How's it going?" A common, self-deprecating response is - "Not bad. It could be worse." The same seems to be true of our school district finances.

Cuts to suicide prevention programs wrong

by Rachel Schott,
Statewide Director
Yellow Ribbon Program
Minnesota

Gov. Tim Pawlenty's budget plan to cut funding to suicide prevention programs comes at the wrong place and the wrong time.

Although Pawlenty's commissioner of health, Dianne Mandernach, said the department is looking for federal alternatives, funding is by no means guaranteed.

These cuts come at a time when suicides and attempted suicides have hit troubling rates.

One in five ninth- and 12th-grade girls in Mankato reported they have tried to kill themselves, according the 2004 Minnesota Student Survey completed recently. Local efforts to prevent suicide have mostly come from the Yellow Ribbon Suicide Prevention Program, a small group with three full-time employees.

Pawlenty cuts would total about $1 million, and the Yellow Ribbon program's budget would lose about $100,000, a 50 percent reduction.

The Yellow Ribbon program is working. It has organized suicide prevention trainings and programs at area schools that help kids recognize suicide warning signs in their classmates.

Teachers report they've been notified by students when another student is having suicidal thoughts or tendencies. They've been able to intervene in many cases. For the relatively small amount of money involved in these programs, the good they do is tremendous. It is indeed lifesaving.

Mandernach says the cuts were part of health department prioritizing and the department is trying to focus on core health functions. While such efficiency efforts are laudable in most cases, it just doesn't make sense to cut corners on suicide prevention.

There will never be enough funding for suicide prevention when 500 people in Minnesota take their own lives every year.

Suicide prevention is even more important to young people. The loss of their lives can't be measured in dollars and cents.

Suicide prevention program faces cuts

by Ben Sandell
Free Press Staff Writer

A student this year came to Darcy Reed with a note. It read, "Do not talk to Miss Reed about this."

The note was written by another high school student who said she didn't want to live anymore. Reed, counselor at Janesville-Waldorf-Pemberton (JWP) High School and adviser to the Yellow Ribbon Suicide Prevention Club, called the girl into her office immediately.

"You had to know that was going to happen," Reed told her. "We care about you."

The students at JWP look out for one another, she said. If they see warning signs, they know to report to an adult. That's largely because of an organized suicide prevention effort in the district implemented several years ago by the Yellow Ribbon Suicide Prevention Program of Minnesota, based in North Mankato.

"It just helps get the word out there that it's OK to ask for help," Reed said. And that's why she's troubled - though not surprised - by Gov. Tim Pawlenty's proposal to cut nearly $1 million from annual suicide prevention efforts in Minnesota.

The changes to the 2006-07 Minnesota Department of Health budget would go into effect July 1 if passed in the Legislature. It would reduce the Yellow Ribbon budget by $100,000 - a 50 percent cut - and affect a dozen other programs in the state.

The reduction was part of a prioritizing within the Minnesota Department of Health (MDH), said Health Commissioner Dianne Mandernach.

"We're looking to preserve the core general health functions," she said. Recently enacted federal funding for suicide prevention will provide a possible alternative funding source, which is one reason the state chose suicide prevention as a reduction area, Mandernach said.

But the funding "is not a guarantee," she said. "So it's understandable why (program officials) are not wholeheartedly endorsing the action we're taking."

The department, she said, will apply for the federal grant as soon as possible.

But there will only be about $6 million in federal dollars to go around, said Rachel Schott, director of the Yellow Ribbon program in Minnesota. And that worries her.

The Yellow Ribbon program operates with the help of a $100,000 a year, three-year grant through the state health department. The proposed cut would end the grant a year and a half early, meaning Yellow Ribbon would reduce its staff from three full-time equivalent to 1.5.

"This would be a terrible loss to our community," Schott said. One in five ninth- and 12th-grade girls in Mankato reported they have tried to kill themselves, according the 2004 Minnesota Student Survey.

About 500 people die by suicide each year in Minnesota, Schott said, adding that the rates are especially high for American Indians and white men in their 70s and 80s.

We need to question the deaths in Iraq

by Sen. Mark Dayton

Recently, four Minnesota heroes lost their lives in Iraq. I was honored to attend the services of these brave men, who made the ultimate sacrifice in service of their country and of their fellow troops. Three National Guardsmen were killed while rescuing two comrades who had been wounded in a roadside ambush. The other Minnesota soldier was killed by a grenade, while standing watch atop a Baghdad police station.

These deaths in Iraq occurred two years after the invasion of that country commenced. Recently, a Presidential Commission reported serious failures in American intelligence leading up to the president's decision to go to war. Since then, 1,400 U.S. weapons inspectors found none of the weapons of mass destruction, which earlier intelligence reports claimed were in Saddam Hussein's possession. At the time, President [illegible] that the existence of such weapons was the principal [illegible] to go to war.

The Commission also determined that the president and his advisers misjudged the reaction of the Iraqi people to Saddam Hussein's removal. Those misjudgments were also caused, in part, by faulty intelligence. They resulted in an insufficient number of U.S. troops to provide nationwide security, protect vital infrastructures, and reestablish essential public services like electricity, water, and sanitation.

The administration also failed to reestablish the previous Iraqi security force or to train a new one. As a result, two years later, American troops are still patrolling streets and highways, directing traffic, and performing other basic law-and-order functions necessary in any civilized society. Those duties, which should have been taken over by Iraqi police and militia, continuously expose our soldiers to attacks by Iraqi insurgents.

The Minnesota soldier killed guarding the police station gave his life heroically and importantly for his country. However, the 55,000 Iraqi police who have supposedly been trained should by now be able to take over that kind of responsibility.

In both public and classified hearings of the Senate Armed Services Committee, I have repeatedly questioned civilian and military commanders about the lack of progress in training Iraqis to protect their own country. I recently wrote to President Bush and Defense Secretary Rumsfeld, asking them the same questions. Two years after our Armed Forces overthrew Hussein's regime it is time for Iraqis to assume the responsibilities and the roles that our courageous soldiers have been doing for them.

I don't want to attend more funerals for courageous Minnesotans who lose their lives because of other people's failures. For that reason, I will continue to ask those questions, however unpopular or controversial they may be.

Sen. Stumpf seeks school funding for better nutrition

by Sen. LeRoy Stumpf

With only a few weeks remaining in the 2005 Legislative session, major decisions regarding Minnesota's budget for the next two years are now taking shape. As chairperson of the Senate K-12 Budget Division, it is my hope to restore the cuts to public education made in recent years and help keep our school children headed in the right direction.

Specifically, the state should make good on its commitment to fully fund classroom education. In addition, I feel strongly that schools should provide children with healthy, nutritious breakfasts and lunches.

In 2003, the governor succeeded in cutting education by $185 million - without my support. His plan cut special education, early childhood education, after-school enrichment and school breakfast and lunch funding - cuts that directly affect our students, their ability to concentrate, study and pass tests. The governor's 2005 proposal barely makes up for the losses suffered and the funding "freeze" our schools have endured the past two years.

What is particularly disturbing about the 2005 education proposal is its heavy reliance on increased school district property taxes - including a new discretionary levy. The proposal calls for a $311 million (23 percent) school property tax hike in 2006, followed by another $166 million increase in 2007. The total education levy increase for the coming two years is estimated at 31 percent, based on the governor's proposal.

In the Senate, we hope to fund education at adequate levels without relying so heavily on steep property tax hikes.

One of the most alarming trends we have seen in recent years is the general decline in the health and nutrition of young people. With strong bipartisan support, I have introduced legislation this year that will allow school districts to offer healthier meals than the basic federal nutrition standards.

The improved food choices will emphasize healthy fruit and vegetable juices, whole-grain snacks, fresh fruits and vegetables and a variety of low-fat dairy products. If we fail to invest a few extra cents for each school meal to ensure healthy-food choices, we assuredly will face much higher health care costs in the future due to the poor nutritional choices made now.

Ultimately, we should make the choices to adequately fund public education and improve the quality of meals available in our schools to ensure a healthier and more prosperous future. As Minnesotans, we have always recognized that good schooling and three square meals a day are part of the formula for success.

LETTER

Minn. Chamber thanks Penas

To the Editor:

Thanks to Rep. Maxine Penas for supporting HF 588, the Small Business Flexible Benefit Health Care Plan bill, which passed on a 90-41 vote April 7 in the Minnesota House of Representatives. The legislation would provide more affordable health care options for small employers by allowing them to purchase a product that does not include all of the state mandates. Large employers have long been able to tailor their benefit set to meet their employee needs. This bill gives small employers this same ability.

The broad, bipartisan passage of HF 588 underscores the priority to find ways to rein in skyrocketing health care costs. We look forward to the same commitment to controlling health care costs in the Senate.

Sincerely,
David Olson
President
Minnesota Chamber of Commerce

FROM THE UPPER FALLS

THE NEWS, JOHN W. EASTMAN, PUBLISHER — APRIL 20, 1905
THIEF RIVER FALLS, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA

Property Between Atlantic Avenue and Right-of-Way Purchased

"Last week the Soo road commenced to take up the options that it had secured from the lands adjoining its right-of-way in this city. The lands purchased are situated between the right-of-way and Atlantic avenue and extend from the depot on Third street North, to where the new roundhouse will be built. Options upon all property excepting the lot on which J. R. Bane's house is situated and the lot on which R. Deloria's house is situated, had been secured some time ago, and, as the company believes these two are asking an unreasonable price, it will not make the purchase.

"The ground is purchased, it is understood, for a train dispatcher's office, a new freight depot, a railway eating house and additional yard room.

"As there were houses upon most of the lots purchased, it cost the Soo considerable to secure the property, something more than $20,000 or more than it cost the city to get the right-of-way through the city in the first place. The Soo did not ask the city to purchase this or any of the land which it is going to use for terminal purposes and this fact is greatly appreciated by the citizens of Thief River Falls, for had the request been made, it would have been granted, without a doubt.

"Work of improving the property will be commenced at an early date and Soo people are going to show the people of Thief River Falls that they will never be sorry that this road entered the city."

The Mill is Closed Down
Low Water Causes Delay in Getting a Supply of Logs

"The sawmill was forced to close down last Friday, owing to a lack of logs. While the company has over seven million feet of logs in the river between the outlet and this city, they are not floating down river this spring, as has always been the case heretofore. The water in the river is the lowest it has ever been. Five years ago the water was considered low, but this spring it is very much lower.

"A crew of eighty men is now at work on the river bringing the logs down and it formerly only took from twelve to sixteen men. Now, however, the water is so low that wing jams have to be made at about every bend and large logs have to be rolled most of the way. During the winter a large number of logs were hauled from off the banks of the river and placed upon the ice in the middle of the river. When the ice went out, these logs were again forced out upon the banks of the river, where they now remain.

"There is in all about 15,000,000 feet of logs in the river between this city and the outlet belonging to the different lumber companies and the head of the drive will arrive here this week and the mill will again be started up."

Water is Low
Considerable Trouble Experienced in Getting Tow Boat Up the River.

"Peter Eberhardt and crew are having all kinds of trouble in taking the large tow boat built by the Beltrami County Lumber company up the river. The boat draws over two feet of water and, as the river is lower than it has been for years, a great deal of trouble is being experienced. Work of taking the boat up river was commenced on Tuesday of last week and up to Friday it had only been moved half a mile. Word came Saturday to put on a larger crew and get the boat up to the lake as soon as possible, regardless of expense. It is thought that it will take a month before the boat is landed at the lake.

"Later: It has been found impossible to take the boat up river at the present stage of water and the work has been abandoned. Until the river rises, no attempt will be made to move the boat."

The Injunction Case
Matter Will Come Up Before Judge Watts on Saturday

"The matter of the injunction secured by the citizens of Red Lake Falls to restrain County Auditor Ford from calling a meeting of the board of county commissioners to consider Thief River Falls' petition for the removal of the county seat will come up before Judge Watts on Saturday of this week at the chambers in the city of Crookston. Although the auditor is now the only defendant in the action, Thief River Falls interests will be looked after and Attorney A. A. Miller will appear in behalf of the petitioners.

"As the allegations made in the Red Lake Falls complaint are nothing but a lot of falsehoods and there is really no merit to their case, Thief River Falls will be sure to win. The matter, however, will first have to be decided by the state supreme court. In fact, it is probable that the case will go to the supreme court a number of times, before the matter is finally disposed of. Red Lake Falls realizes that whenever the matter comes to a vote, that that place will be sure to lose and in order to hold the county seat as long as possible, will endeavor to keep the matter in the courts for years. They will find it a very expensive business and will lose the respect of all fair minded men in the county by their actions. What the people of the county desire is to see the matter brought to a vote and decided as soon as possible."

Lions Plan Broom Sale for Crippled Children's Camp

"Timing the project to come appropriately before Clean-Up Week, the Thief River Falls Lions club will conduct a house-to-house sale of brooms in the city next Wednesday evening, April 27, Dr. M. D. Starekow, club president, announced today.

"Ted Kusmak, chairman of the sales committee, which also includes Bill LaFave and Jack Forkenbrock, said that the brooms, to be sold for $2 each, are of top quality and are made by the blind persons employed by the Minneapolis Society for the Blind.

"Dr. Starekow explained that the entire profit for this sale will be used to aid in financing the dining hall being built this year at Camp Courage near Annandale, under the auspices of the Minnesota Society for Crippled Children and Adults."

Furniture Details Settled By Board

"The Pennington county board at a special meeting Thursday evening approved final details for new furniture recently purchased for the court house now nearing completion. A. M. Sorvig was engaged as second man on the custodial staff of the court house, and will take over his duties following completion and occupancy of the building this summer.

"A motion was adopted requesting State Senator Roy E. Wiseth of Goodridge to work for construction of a new bridge over the Thief river on Highway 1 at Eighth Street to replace the present narrow span."

'56 License Plates To Be Silver With Green Numerals

"Minnesota is joining the automobile color parade in 1956 with license plates of silver bearing green numerals. Joseph Donovan, secretary of state, said the plates will be treated with reflecting paint in line with a law just enacted by the legislature. The numbering system also will be changed. Donovan said that plates sold at the capital will continue to have the present two letters and four numerals. But those sold elsewhere will bear a numeral matching the congressional district where the plates were bought, followed by a single letter and four more numbers. The plates will go on sale next October."

Rural Voters Defeat County Fair Board Issue

"With approximately 2,000 ballots cast in Tuesday's special election, the proposal to issue $90,000 in county bonds to finance improvements on the fairgrounds, was defeated by the decisive margin of 1,293 against the proposal to 700 in favor, with all precincts having reported late this morning.

"Of the 700 favorable votes, 507 were cast in the city of Thief River Falls, where 287 were registered against. Every one of the 21 townships and the villages of Goodridge and St. Hilaire opposed the bond issue. In Numedal no 'yes' votes were cast, with all 36 votes being against the proposal, while in Highlanding, the vote was two in favor, 87 against. The vote was closest in Rocksbury, where 40 voted yes and 45, no."

"There's Madness in His Madness When He's Mad."

"Just to show our readers how big a fool a man can make of himself when he gets mad, we publish the following from the THIEF RIVER FALLS NEWS from a letter to the editor:

"To Have a House Cleaning

"'Special correspondence from St. Hilaire April 1, 1905: There has not been a meeting of the board of health since the new member was appointed, but it is said the first action taken by it will be the removal of the SPECTATOR office to the village dumping ground. This old building, which, by the way, is a perfect specimen of the shackometrical style of architecture, was hauled to the present site from a back alley in Crookston more than a quarter century ago and has ever since been the home of the editor of the SPECTATOR, some fourteen years ago was scrubbed out by a committee of the citizens of this place. This is believed to have been the only time in its history that it was profaned by soap and water. Of course, the old building will have to be cremated very soon after its removal, otherwise there might be another dumping ground case. [Dumping ground cases occurred when someone living near the dumping ground complained in court about the noxious smell, unsightliness, etc.] A reasonable time will be given, however, for an examination of its contents by the state bacteriologist, and it is believed that several unique specimens of germs can be found in it. It is a veritable germ hatchery and compels the neighbors for self protection, to indulge in copious quantities of germicide. Owing to the fact of its long occupancy by the editor, who is also the townsite proprietor, and on account of his enterprise and public spirit in building up the town, it is felt that it would not be just to deprive him of the only building he ever owned without compensation. Hence a subscription will be taken up to get him another one, but, as the old one was very appropriately suited to the paper, a decent sized hen house will probably be the proper thing. The citizens do not wish to indulge in any violent contrasts. Subscriptions should be addressed to the committee for The Relief of Indigent Townsite Proprietors, St. Hilaire, Minnesota. Yours truly, J. K. Hannay. P.S. It is not known whose dogs Harry [Ives] will play on the streets with this year.'

"It is very true that the SPECTATOR building has seen some years and is not very large or elegant. However, it is all paid for and there is not a cent of delinquent taxes against the property. It has a good sidewalk in front of it, which has also been paid for and the owner did not stand on the street corners and make an exhibition of himself uttering the foulest kind of profanity for hours at a time because he was assessed for a sidewalk like the signer of the above communication did, not long ago. Now if Mr. J. K. Hannay, instead of advocating a subscription to build a new building for the SPECTATOR, will go down to the county seat and pay his just and honest taxes instead of trying to make his poorer neighbors do it for him, he would be doing the village about the only real good he is capable of doing. But of course he won't, for when it comes to spending money, well, 'that's another story.'

"Of course everybody knows that the above communication was written because the SPECTATOR, a couple of weeks ago, exposed a scheme of Mr. Hannay's to dodge paying his taxes. We can hardly blame him for being mad about it for it was a dirty little deal and anyone would be mad, if caught. If Mr. Hannay was financially unable, or had any valid reason why his neighbors should be compelled to pay his taxes, it would be different. Let us see. He has nearly all of the stock in the First State Bank, capital $10,000. The last statement shows that there is on deposit in the bank about $40,000. One-third of that is subject to check and pays no interest, the balance probably draws three or four percent. The average wold be about three per cent. He loans money to farmers and businessmen at not less than ten percent in advance, which means eleven, making in the neighborhood of three thousand dollars a year from the people's money and then he has the nerve to try and make these same depositors who are taxpayers pay his share of the village taxes. Anyone ought to own a brick building if they do this kind of work. [The bank was a new brick building.]

"Now about playing with dogs. We would much rather play with a nice dog than with some people we know and we consider it a good deal better than slandering your neighbors or making the atmosphere lurid with profanity, but that is a matter of taste and some people don't like dogs.

Fair Friday Evening, May 12

"At the Imperial Hall on the above named date, the Methodist Episcopal church, under the auspices of the Ladies Aid society, will have a Fair and serve refreshments.

"There will be articles for sale, fancy, medium and not so good; booths of all kinds, the most attractive will be the refreshment booth, the booth of handiwork made by the ladies and the educational exhibit. The last mentioned will be interesting in that it will give the parents and patrons of the school an opportunity to view the work.

"Everybody is cordially invited to attend and help make the undertaking a success, not mentioning the fact of having an enjoyable and profitable evening. An admission of fifteen cents will be charged at the door, for big and little, great and small, old and young, fat and lean, homely and pretty. All served alike for a good cause. Come one, come all. The ladies first call."

In addition to the exhibition, an artist reception will be held April 24 from 3 to 4 p.m. at the Ada/Borup High School commons area. At this time, Gene Lysaker, an accomplished painter and visual artist from Twin Valley, will be presented with an engraved award commemorating him as the 2005 Northwest Minnesota Artist of the Year. Lysaker will also receive a $500 check.

Lysaker's paintings are well known in the area and throughout the Midwest. He is best known for his wildlife and American style paintings. Dennis Thorson, Twin Valley mayor, nominated Lysaker for this prestigious award. Thorson's nomination letter included a history of Lysaker's career and lifelong devotion to the arts.

"Having dedicated his life to the profession, spent a lifetime working toward the advancement of art among young and old, and making a lifelong career in Minnesota, it is my opinion, Mr. Lysaker is a deserving candidate for a northwest artist award," wrote Thorson.

Lysaker was born in Twin Valley and has made a career in commercial art and freelance painting. He is a 1949 graduate of the Minneapolis College of Art and Design. Lysaker worked for Northprint Publishing in Grand Rapids for 24 years before moving back to Twin Valley in 1980. He then began work as a freelance painter and continues that work to this day. His accomplishments include hundreds of award-winning original paintings, illustrations in three children's books, teaching painting classes, mentoring aspiring young painters, volunteering as an arts advocate, and generously donating time and materials back to the arts.

In 1972, Lysaker's work was named best of show at the Hawley Art Show. The Hawley Herald quoted judge Peter Munton, chairman of the art department at North Dakota State University, as saying that Lysaker's oil painting "LaCasa Blanca" is the finest entry he has seen in three years of judging this show. He called it an outstanding piece of work by a highly talented professional artist. Munton noted Lysaker's remarkable control of colors reminds one of the works of the old masters.

Several magazines have used Lysaker's art on their covers, including Minnesota Conservation Volunteer, Wild Life Art News, Minnesota Out of Doors, and Hanna Miner magazine. His art was chosen for the Dakota Gourmet Nuts commemorative canister and a Danbury Mint collector plate. His art has made the Mississippi Melodies brochure for 30 years. One of his last accomplishments was an oil painting called "Yellow Brick Road." Prints from this painting were used as a fundraiser for the Judy Garland Festival in Grand Rapids.

Lysaker's collection of artwork is permanently on display in Twin Valley at the art museum in the depot building. He helps maintain and staff the museum. Lysaker worked with the Arrowhead Regional Arts Council in Duluth for several years and was a board member and volunteer for the Northwest Regional Arts Council in Warren. He continues to organize and volunteer as an instructor at the local nursing home.

Lysaker has been a generous donor of time and materials back to the community. This is obvious when reading the three letters of recommendation that accompanied Thorson's nomination letter. Jolee Habedank of the Norman County East School District stated, "The dedication and generosity of this man to his community and the cultural life of Minnesota overwhelms me. Gene Lysaker has given of his talents, his paintings and his money to many organizations in our community." She goes on to mention his donations of prints, computer equipment and art books to the district.

The letter from Dwight Fuglie, executive director of Lutheran Homes, stated, "Mr. Lysaker loans 30 to 40 of his original paintings, which are hung in our hallways, to be enjoyed by our clients, their families and the community. Mr. Lysaker is not only a gifted artist, but is also a generous and caring person who gives of his talents to the community and surrounding area."

In summary of Lysaker's character and influence, Charles Bade, pastor of Zion Lutheran Church, wrote, "Other people will no doubt rehearse the many things that Gene has done for the artistic community, always encouraging budding new artists, teaching in our residential care facilities, responding to requests for donations of his art, or providing new art. Within our congregation, Gene has been a voice of reason and joy. He is one of those rare people who the young and old listen to with equal interest."

If an artist, arts volunteer or arts administrator shines in a local community, honor that person by nominating him or her next year for this award. Nominations can come in to the Northwest Regional Development Commission (NWRDC) office at any time during the year, but the official deadline is Feb. 1, 2006. For more information and a nomination form, contact Mara Wittman, Arts Council director, at 1-800-646-2240 or mara@nwrdc.org.

The Arts Council of the NWRDC is sponsoring the exhibition with funding from an appropriation by the Minnesota State Legislature. This year's cosponsors are the staff and students at Ada/Borup High School as well as local service groups, including the Ada Summer Children's Theater. Those groups are providing volunteers.

Michael Lunde wins Rotary Club essay contest

Michael Lunde was the winner of the Rotary Club Four-Way Test Essay Contest. The Four-Way test was first conceived in 1932 at the height of the Great Depression by a Chicago businessman faced with the challenge of saving a major company from bankruptcy. The principles ask whether it is true, fair to all concerned, will build goodwill and better friendships, and be beneficial to all concerned. A $100 check was presented to Lunde by Rotary Club member and Lincoln High School Principal (LHS) Tom Hunt. Lunde is a senior at LHS.

Michael Lunde, son of Roy and Bev Lunde of Thief River Falls, won the Four-Way Test Essay contest sponsored by the local chapter of the Rotary Club. His essay is now entered in the next competition level.

Essays entered in the contest can deal with any topic of the student's choosing, but it must apply the principles of the Four-Way Test: is it the truth?; is it fair to all concerned?; will it build goodwill and better friendships?; and will it be beneficial to all concerned? The Four-Way Test was first conceived in 1932 at the height of the Great Depression by a Chicago businessman faced with the challenge of saving a major company from bankruptcy. Looking for a way to save the firm, he sought a short yardstick of ethics that could be used. Company personnel were asked to learn the test and to observe it as a guide to every aspect of the business. As a result, a climate of trust and goodwill gradually developed among dealers, customers, and employees, and the "Test" was credited with returning the company to a thriving status.

The Four-Way Test of the War in Iraq

All of us are familiar with the immense controversy that the United States involvement with Iraq has created. For the past two years, the United States has been fighting in the Middle East to liberate the Iraqi people from the evil and sadistic tyrant, Saddam Hussein. Although this involvement is controversial, perhaps if we look at this problem from the perspective of the Four-Way Test some misconceptions can be laid to rest.

Is our war in Iraq truth? In analyzing this first aspect of the four-way test, two possibilities can be revealed. First and foremost, the war is not true. Not in the public's eye anyway. The biased media covering the war in Iraq presents death tolls, accounts of suicide bombings, and tales of American torture of the Iraqi prisoners. All of these facts are true, but the American media fails to present the other side of the war - the positive and beneficial side. Yes, there are American troops being killed every day in Iraq and there are suicide bombings on a regular basis, but we also cannot forget the smiling faces of the Iraqi girls who are allowed to go to school for the first time in years or the enthusiasm of Iraqi citizens in line at the poll booths who have not been allowed to vote in years. The media gives the American public no details of the positive impact of our involvement in Iraq. So, in this aspect, the war in Iraq is, in fact, not true. Looking at the first question from a different point of view, however, the answer to the first part of the test becomes a "yes." To the people of Iraq - the Sunni, Shiite, and the Kurds - the liberation of their country is the truth - the only truth. Before the United States' involvement, these poor people were under the discretion of one of the most ruthless dictators in all of history - Saddam Hussein. Saddam Hussein was certainly not the truth. Not in the eyes of the people of Iraq, anyhow. While we are still in the process, America hopes to one day return Iraq to the peaceful haven that it once was in biblical ages. This new Iraq that we are in the process of creating will be the truth that the Iraqi people has sought for so many years.

Is our war in Iraq fair to all who are concerned? Critics will ask, "Is it fair that over 1,000 American troops have died in Iraq since our initial occupation? The obvious answer to this question is no. No unnatural death is fair nor will it ever be. But we must look beyond the deaths of our brave American troops and view the heart of the problem. Is it fair that in 1988 during his an-anfal (spoils of war) campaign Saddam Hussein was responsible for the deaths of thousands of Kurdish people? Is it fair that during the Iran-Iraq War he was responsible for the deaths of even more Iranians by the use of chemical and biological weapons? Is it fair that Saddam Hussein had the potential to produce weapons of mass destruction and was therefore an imminent threat to his own people and to the rest of the world? Even the critics are aware of the obvious answers to these questions that [illegible] in the ears of the liberating American troops. Although any loss of life is [illegible] we must [illegible] ties to the real [illegible] controversy. It [illegible] we will [illegible] ment is [illegible] towards the suffering people of Iraq.

Will our war in Iraq build goodwill and better friendships? We are all aware of the constant fighting between the ethnic and religious groups of Iraq. Although Saddam's regime - the Baath Party - was composed of mostly Sunni Iraqis, the Shiite Muslims in Iraq are the overwhelming majority. Especially in this period of the first Iraqi elections are the controversies between these different religious groups apparent. With car bombings and hijackings and all-out violence, most of us are aware of the long-standing tradition of intolerance among Iraq's diverse ethnic groups. In Saddam's days, this intolerance was most definitely apparent. Sunnis despised Shiites, Shiites hated the Sunnis, and nearly everyone disliked the Kurds of northern Iraq. In post-Saddam Iraq, however, these ethnic ties are slowly starting to disappear. There are more peace arrangements and meetings between leaders of all three major religious groups than ever before. The new candidates in the upcoming Iraqi election are attempting to represent all of Iraq's ethnic and religious groups, rather than just one - the Sunni Muslims - as during Saddam's rule. With this imminent peace process impending, it will not be long before goodwill and better friendships are established between Iraq's diverse religious groups. Without the United States' involvement, however, this peace process would be impossible to achieve. Peace was nowhere to be seen during Saddam's regime, and true friendship between the Kurds, Sunnis, and Shiites would probably have never been reached with his continuous misrule. American involvement was necessary for this desired peace, so we can claim that our involvement today will help to foster goodwill and better friendship among Iraq's diverse groups in the future.

Will our war in Iraq be beneficial to all concerned? First of all, it must be noted that the entire world, like it or not, is affected positively by our demolition of Saddam Hussein's malicious regime. We are helping, not hindering, the world by ridding it of an insane violence-prone tyrant. With this in mind, it is truly distasteful that countries such as France, Spain, Germany and other European nations are so critical of our actions to protect not only America, but the entire planet. Not only is our involvement beneficial to nations throughout the world, but it is also especially beneficial to the people of Iraq. In overthrowing Saddam's regime, we rid the country of a violently insane dictator. The people of Iraq no longer have to be worried about losing their lives after criticizing a corrupt government or about being attacked by their own military with chemical and biological weapons. Those days of terror are now over; a new day of peace and prosperity has been born in Iraq thanks to the efforts of our brave American troops. Not only was this involvement in Iraq beneficial, it was essential - essential to protect the Iraqi people and the entire world from the vicious actions of the once powerful Saddam Hussein.

Reflecting on all aspects of the four-way test, even the critics of our Iraqi conflict would have to agree that if analyzed properly, the Iraq controversy meets all of the criteria specified in the test. As revealed above, our involvement in Iraq is the truth, is fair to all concerned, builds goodwill and better friendship, and is beneficial to all concerned. Perhaps now if only the rest of the world would apply the Four-Way test to the controversy in Iraq, they too would come to discover that our intentions are positive and that peace in the Middle East is imminent.

American Legion Post 623 selects Boys Stater

American Legion Post 623 has announced that it has voted to send one boy to the 56th Annual Legion Boys State to be held on the campus of St. John's University, Collegeville, June 12-18. Corey Olson was named Post 623's Boys State delegate.

Scholars to Boys State must be juniors in high school. They are singly honored in view of their outstanding qualifications, and they are named through cooperation with the Post, high school faculty and leading citizens in the community.

Legion Boys State is a practical learning experience in local and state government. Its citizens will apply knowledge already gained through their school experience and additional knowledge provided through instruction by competent individuals from selected governmental areas to organize and operate their own city, county and state governments. They will be encouraged through participation toward a better civic behavior and appreciation of our democratic ideals.

Legion Boys State was first held in Minnesota in 1948 with 169 boys attending on the St. Paul Campus, University of Minnesota.

Corey Olson, who was chosen as Post 623's Boys State delegate, is the son of Steven and Karen Olson. This 17-year-old has excelled in many different extra-curricular activities. He is currently active in speech, vocal solo, and ensemble competitions, three-act play, and Minnesota's "Triple A" award (Academics, Arts and Athletics). He has also been inducted into the National Honor Society and National Forensics League.

Out of school, Olson spends most of his time actively involved in 4-H as an ambassador. He has recently been completing 100 hours of service to his community. These hours of service have involved doing things like working with the Relay For Life program, and performing speeches for Oklee Elementary School students. Olson also has started his two year term on the Minnesota Extension Board. He's also on the Community Education Board and the Minnesota State High School League Student Advisory Committee, and is looking forward to learning from them.

Olson states that he realizes Boys State will help him broaden his horizons. The new ideas gained from this experience he said will also help him [illegible]

Special team looks at NCTC merger

Dr. Michael Chipps

Dr. Jack Lassiter

by David Hill
Editor

The impact of Northland Community and Technical College (NCTC) on East Grand Forks and Thief River Falls is significant. A study conducted a couple of years ago the economic impact at over $60 million. Monday, two officials conducted a focused visit in Thief River Falls to see how the merger between the two campuses is progressing.

Dr. Michael Chipps and Dr. Jack Lassiter representing the North Central Association (NCA) Higher Learning Commission on Accreditation and School Improvement visited the NCTC campus to validate information already supplied to NCA and gather input from students, staff and administrators.

Chipps explained that this was not a comprehensive accreditation visit, but what is described as a "focused visit," which would focus on the merger of the two campuses. The visit was mandated during the full accreditation process a few years ago, and it was requested by Minnesota State Colleges and Universities.

In front of a small group of union representatives, students and administrators from both campuses and a representative NCTC Foundation in Thief River Falls, Chipps and Lassiter gave NCTC high marks for its progress.

Chipps said he was very impressed with the preparation and the frank and easy discussions he was able to have with staff, students and administrators. To Dr. Orley Gunderson, president of NCTC, he said, "you have some good people on these campuses."

Accreditation is important, said Chipps, because it affects students' transfer credits, and without accreditation, financial aid to students attending the college would be placed in jeopardy. "It's (this visit) really an issue of quality assurance," he said, "and the product is its students."

Lassiter said that community colleges in Arkansas had conducted an economic impact survey similar to the one conducted for NCTC. It was a very positive report, he said but when communities realized that community colleges were the biggest boon to communities, they all wanted a two-year college.

Visiting with students, staff, and administrators in the commons area of NCTC - Thief River Falls, provided Chipps and Lassiter an

LHS practices evacuation

Learning how to escape

by April Scheinoha
Reporter

Practice makes perfect, but Lincoln High School (LHS) students, faculty and staff hope they never have to have a real evacuation.

The school held a mock evacuation April 19. At 10:30 a.m. that day, students, teachers and staff evacuated the building and made their way to the Evangelical Free Church a few blocks away. Once there and dependent on grade level, the 657 students went to a particular area of the church. They were then separated alphabetically in specific rooms, and attendance was taken.

Students were given advance warning about the mock evacuation in order to let them know where they would go, according to LHS Guidance Counselor Bill Stock. Later, on the school's loudspeaker, they were told to evacuate with no reason given as to why they were evacuating.

Thief River Falls Police Chief Kim Murphy noted law enforcement and school officials were evaluating and in the process of updating the school's evacuation plan when the Red Lake School shootings happened.

"Then in earnest, we said we really need to do this," Murphy said.

LHS Principal Tom Hunt noted there could be a number of reasons that would warrant an evacuation, including such things as dangerous activities or chemical spills.

"I think everybody realizes in this day and age any kind of natural disaster and manmade disaster is possible," Murphy said.

One of those disasters could be a school shooting. "If they're really bent on doing it, they know every nook and cranny, they know the strengths and weaknesses of the building, the strengths and weaknesses of staff and the strengths and weakness of students, so we try to identify those," Murphy said.

The mock evacuation was part of two safety-related activities held in the past few weeks at LHS. On April 6, the school had a lockdown. At that time, school officials and

Jazz Band to perform May 2

Spring means good weather and the beginning of the concert season at Lincoln High School (LHS). This year's concert season begins with the LHS Jazz Band concert May 2 at 7:30 p.m. in the LHS auditorium. Admission is $5 for adults and $3 for students and seniors.

Most of the year, the Jazz Band shares concert dates with the LHS bands. Yet, for this evening, Jazz Band is the featured performer. This allows members to perform a more extensive program of jazz, rock and funk. It also affords the opportunity to feature many students in solo efforts. All of the seniors in the band will have at least one solo during the concert.

One of the traditions of the Big Band Era was the vocal soloist who performed with the band. Frank Sinatra, Bing Crosby, Rosemary Clooney and Doris Day all got their start this way.

Jazz Band members include on alto sax – Jenna Dillon and Chesney Dobias; tenor sax – Jordan Michaels and Amanda Lara; baritone sax – Reid Haviland; trumpet – Kyle Trontvet, Justine Erickson, Adam Sisler and Katie Walrath; trombone – Andy Holmaas, Dane Jenson and Michael Blix; bass trombone – Billy Kezar; bass – Ben Willis; guitar – Derek Dahlen; drums – Jon Kays and Joel Lansetter; and piano – Jenny Grove and Scott Rakozy. The Jazz Band is under the direction of Bruce Felt.

LHS Choir Director Darcy Reese will be a guest singer with the band. Reese will perform the jazz standard "Lover Man."

Turn off your television set!

Challenger Elementary School challenges students to join "TV Turnoff Week"

by Scott DCamp
Reporter

Citizens of the United States are encouraged to turn of their television sets this week. A nationwide program called TV Turnoff Week is encouraging families to turn off television sets for one week and seek out other forms of entertainment.

The 11th annual TV Turnoff Week began on Monday (April 25) and will conclude on Sunday, May 1. Like the previous 11 years, the grassroots program is aimed at reducing the amount of television that is watched by the nation's youth, while increasing participation in healthier activities.

"Our primary focus is for children 15 and under to reduce their screen time, but we welcome people of all ages to participate," said TV Turnoff Network Executive Director Frank Vespe.

Vespe said the TV Turnoff program tries to reach children during the years when their behavior is most effectively shaped – during youth.

"It's important to reach kids when they are very young, because those habits are going to stay with them," Vespe said.

Formerly known as Free America, the TV Turnoff Network was founded in 1994. The network remains dedicated to the belief that people have the power to determine the role television plays in their life.

"Ten years ago, nobody was talking about excess TV time being an important issue," Vespe said. "Now we have 70 organizations contributing and 8 million participants."

Participation varies from one community to the next, according to Vespe.

"We see turnoffs that are just a single classroom on up to a community-wide event," Vespe said.

Vespe gave a small-scale example of a school principal, who made a deal with his students, that he would dress up as a chicken for a day, if the students reached their turnoff goals.

A more broad range example was observed last year, when Nickelodeon, the U.S. based children's television channel turned off its own programming for three hours.

Local participation and response

Locally the program has gained support at Challenger Elementary School. Challenger Elementary School Counselor Lori Beck said students have been encouraged to, and are participating in the program on a voluntary basis. Each participating student has been issued a sheet of paper that pledges he or she will not watch TV for the entire week.

"I know its not easy, but I'm Encouraging kids to try. Even if they think they can't make it a whole week, I'm encouraging them to at least cut back," Beck said.

To coincide with TV Turnoff Week, individual classrooms will hold student-led discussions about

State Fire Marshal celebrates centennial

In a ceremony at the State Capitol Building April 19, the Minnesota Department of Public Safety Fire Marshal Division celebrated 100 years of service. Gov. Tim Pawlenty, Public Safety Commissioner Michael Campion and State Fire Marshal Jerry Rosendahl made remarks to 130 members of the Minnesota fire service in attendance. Thirty-two fire departments provided fire trucks and other fire service vehicles to circle the Capitol grounds.

Pawlenty proclaimed April 19 to be Minnesota State Fire Marshal Day, citing the division's mission of fire investigation, code enforcement, inspection, emergency response, data collection and public education.

Campion outlined the 100-year history of the division, stating that its mission has changed and grown since 1905, but still, "Prevention is job one."

Rosendahl praised the Fire Marshal Division staff and the members of the fire service in Minnesota, crediting all of them for the fact that in 2004, the state experienced the lowest per capita fire-death rate in recorded history.

At the close of the event, fire service vehicles turned on red lights in honor of all those who have served Minnesota in the cause of fire safety. Special honors were proffered on those who gave their lives in the line of duty as fire trucks surrounding the ceremony sounded sirens for 15 seconds.

DPS responds to Web-based vehicle registration renewal system audit

Since the launch of Web-based motor vehicle registration in 2001, approximately 11 percent of Minnesota citizens have renewed their motor vehicle tabs online. The Internet renewals are as follows: 2001 – 84,073; 2002 – 249,570; 2003 – 352,425; and 2004 – 356,166.

Within the scope of the Legislative Audit, no evidence was found to indicate that any systems examined had been compromised, according to a Minnesota Department of Public Safety (DPS) news release. Budget constraints did not play a role in this situation.

At the recommendation of the legislative auditor, DPS took the renewal system offline on April 4.

DPS is committed to addressing the security issues that have been raised in the audit of the Web-based Vehicle Registration Renewal System. DPS is working closely with the Department of Administration–InterTechnologies Group to provide and obtain services to address the needs raised in this audit. Also, the department has contracted with an outside vendor to review the security systems to make sure that all recommendations within the report are addressed.

The DPS Information Technology Governance Group, which includes the deputy commissioner, chief information officer and division directors, is working with a committee of technical and business staff to take the following actions:

- Firewalls have been upgraded, meeting industry standards, for all DPS divisions.
- Hiring for four new security-related positions.
- Examining all security assets and examining options to expand security.
- Ensuring that formal standards are followed in the development of Web-based systems.
- Adopting department standards for wireless technologies prior to implementing wireless services.
- Conducting periodic scans to search for unauthorized wireless access points.
- Conducting a complete review and upgrade of the Web-based Vehicle Registration Renewal System.
- Implementing account security and management systems.
- Establishing an internal information technology audit function.
- Exploring implementing automated complex password enforcements.
- Enforcing patching procedures.
- Conducting periodic scans of its computers.

DPS will provide the legislative auditor a progress report on July 1, including the assignment of responsibilities and projected completion dates.

DPS will continue to work with the legislative auditor to improve and strengthen its security services.

Border State Bank announces new deposit product

Border State Bank has announced a new deposit product for its customers. Border State Bank's Dow Jones Industrial Average Indexed CD is a certificate of deposit that features a number of unique benefits.

"Traditional Certificates of Deposit have always used a fixed annual percentage yield. This new CD will earn the performance of the Dow Jones Industrial Average over a five-year term," said Robert Hager, CEO of Border State Bank. "Plus, it is FDIC Insured, which guarantees your principal just like traditional CDs have always done. This CD allows people to invest in the market without the risk associated with other investment options. It gives people the opportunity to participate in market gains, but protects their original deposit when held to maturity."

Border State Bank's DJIA Indexed CD was developed with today's investor in mind and comes along at an opportune time with recent volatility in the stock market, depositor confidence rattled, interest rates at historical lows, and global uncertainty.

The Indexed CD provides no risk to the original deposit when held to maturity, FDIC insurance which offers peace of mind for investors and local availability. In addition, the DJIA Indexed CD provides an opportunity to achieve higher than fixed-rate returns based upon the historical performance of the Dow Jones Industrial Average. It should appeal to a large variety of investors with a low minimum investment of $1,000 and with no customer fees, which puts the entire deposit to work immediately for as little as a thousand dollars.

"We are excited to be able to offer this new deposit product to our customers," Hager said, "the timing couldn't be better."

Disclaimer: The Certificates of Deposit based on the Dow Jones Industrial AverageSM, are not sponsored, endorsed, sold or promoted by Dow Jones, and Dow Jones makes no representation regarding the advisability of investing in such products.

NWMC to hold infant bereavement program May 1

The Northwest Medical Center Infant Bereavement Program will conduct a memorial service on Sunday, May 1 at 6 p.m.

The service of remembrance is for anyone whose life has been touched by a miscarriage or stillbirth occurring at any time during a pregnancy. Family members, friends, and health care providers are welcome, including those who have experienced a recent loss and those who continue to mourn the loss of a baby many years ago.

The service will be held at Babyland at Greenwood Cemetery in Thief River Falls and will include the commendation and burial of remains from miscarriages that have occurred since the last service in October 2004.

The NWMC Infant Bereavement Program recognizes family members who have lost a baby during pregnancy by acknowledging their grief and creating memories that will last a lifetime. This program assists families during and after the death of their baby by providing support, referrals, and follow-up. Included are those receiving care at the hospital as well at those served at both local clinics.

Pederson named MASSP Northern Division Middle School Principal of the Year

Minnesota Association of Secondary School Principals (MASSP) Northern Division has named Red Lake County Central (Plummer site) Principal Randy Pederson as its Middle School Principal of the Year.

Pederson is a 1979 graduate of Canton High School, Canton S.D., and did his undergraduate work at Dakota State University, Madison, S.D. He received his master's degree in educational administration from South Dakota State University in Brookings, S.D.

Pederson stated that he is absolutely ecstatic being back in a smaller school. "We afford a unique opportunity with our size in the sense that we can mobilize our staff and resources quickly on behalf of students. Our 'family' atmosphere has tremendous advantages, especially for at-risk students," said Pederson. "I've inherited a fantastic staff that has shown time and again their willingness to do whatever it takes to help students succeed. Their professionalism and dedication is beyond admirable!"

MASSP promotes and conducts activities that advance the effectiveness of middle and high school administrators in support of their pursuit of quality education for youth. The MASSP also advocates the continued improvement of conditions under which students learn and grow to adulthood, and it provides for a cooperative relationship with the National Association of Secondary School Principals and other local, state and national educational associations.

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q: Does the Social Security Administration notify a person when it is time to sign up for Medicare?

A: Excluding Medicare eligibility based on disability, Medicare coverage still begins at age 65 even though the Social Security full retirement age is gradually increasing to age 67. If already receiving SSA monthly benefits, you are automatically sent a Medicare card about three months before reaching age 65. Those not already receiving SSA benefits do not get a Medicare card or other notice from Social Security and need to remember to enroll for Medicare on their own.

Q: Will my future Social Security retirement be reduced if I take an early retirement, say at about age 57, from my job?

A: Social Security will use your best thirty-five (35) years of work to compute your retirement benefit. Usually highest earnings are towards the end of a career so by retiring at 57, even if you have 35 years of work, potential for replacing low earning years with higher earnings to increase the overall average will be gone. That could reduce your future retirement benefit. Go to www.socialsecurity.gov and use the retirement calculators to put an estimated dollar value on changes in earnings and your possible retirement dates.

Q: Can Social Security checks be sent to someone living outside the United States?

A: Yes. There are a few countries where SSA checks cannot be sent but, in general, directing checks to a foreign country is not a problem. Treasury Department regulations prohibit sending payments to Cuba or North Korea.

Social Security restrictions prohibit sending payments to beneficiaries in Cambodia, Vietnam or areas (other than Armenia, Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania and Russia) which were in the former Soviet Union because arrangements cannot be made there for the orderly distribution of checks and because SSA has been unable to secure assurance from those countries of free access to beneficiaries and vital statistics records. Contact your local office if you receive SSA checks and are planning to move to a different country. There are specific reporting events you need to know and some paperwork to take care of.

The following account of their mission trip was prepared by Jacob Rath:*

April 4 through 8, nine high school seniors and one college student from St. Bernard's in Thief River Falls, and eleven seniors from Holy Rosary in Detroit Lakes participated in a mission trip to Mazatlan, Mexico. Participants from St. Bernard's included Kyle Dobias, Lance Klaven, Brook Mattila, Amanda Noreen, Katie Peterick, Maggie Peterson, Alison Rominski, Brandon Steinhauer, Andrew Yaggie, Steph Hoard, Jacob Rath and Father Tim McGee. Participants from Holy Rosary in Detroit Lakes included Matt Nelson, Bobby Schmidt, Tom Thiel, Nick Arneson, Nick Guetter, David Gifford, Mike Sauer, Katie Guzek, Colleen Mikelson, Kathryn Knuttila, April Spaeth, Patti Spry and Father Jerry Rogers.

The youth were very anxious before we left - not knowing exactly what they would be doing and the excitement of knowing they would be among the beautiful weather of Mazatlan.

The first of many religious events we experienced was attending the Mass for Pope John Paul II at the Cathedral. As we arrived at the Cathedral, we were very surprised to see how quickly it filled up. We were not able to find a seat, and found ourselves standing for the hour-and-a-half liturgy. It did become long because we were standing, and we were not able to understand Spanish. However, we were amazed to see the 2,000 people in attendance at an afternoon mass and to see the devotion and great love for Christ.

On the second full day, we crowded into the back of pickup trucks with benches and canopies over them, and we were taken to the village. As we drove closer, we could see the extreme poverty, and we all got very quiet as the reality of why we were there hit us. We arrived at the local community center, which is a place designed to give the 150 village children a safe and healthy environment. They are brought there to eat and to play because their parents cannot support them as needed. Our youth group was split into two groups. One group painted the outside of the church, and the second group painted the inside of the classroom. The second group was greeted by an unpleasant surprise, which was a huge lizard! They all jumped in fright and laughed as one of the Mexican men cornered the lizard and chased it out of the room. Everyone was very proud of the work they had accomplished as they left the community center.

The last day at the community center was the highlight for the group. Everyone was excited because we were given the opportunity to spend time with the children. We had brought teddy bears, hats, pencils, toothbrushes, crosses, bracelets, and candy to give to the children. As we arrived at the community center that morning, we were all disappointed to see the work we had done to the church the day before had been vandalized with the symbol of the devil. We were again split into groups: one to repaint the church, and the other to spend time with the children. Those who were painting had two young children watching, and they decided to give each child a teddy bear. They were amazed by the excitement of the children, and within a couple of minutes, there were almost 100 little children surrounding them. When everyone was done painting, they spent time with these poverty-stricken children. We taught them "Duck, Duck, Goose," played basketball and soccer with them, and spent time with them on the playground. The last moment spent with the children was very sad because we watched them eat. They were given a small portion of refried beans. After eating, they stood in line to receive a small portion of water in a paper cup, which they had to share. What stood out to everyone was how little these children had, yet how happy they were.

The group was also given time to relax and enjoy time with each other. Many took the opportunity to parasail, go to the market, get their hair braided, and spend time suntanning. Overall, this was a great opportunity for the seniors of St. Bernard's and Holy Rosary to come together to help others while growing closer to God.

Young parishioners from St. Bernard's in Thief River Falls and Holy Rosary from Detroit Lakes, recently participated in a mission trip to Mazatlan, Mexico, where they painted a community center, and distributed toys and school supplies to children. Participants from St. Bernard's (not in order) included Kyle Dobias, Lance Klaven, Brook Mattila, Amanda Noreen, Katie Peterick, Maggie Peterson, Alison Rominski, Brandon Steinhauer, Andrew Yaggie, Steph Hoard, Jacob Rath and Father Tim McGee.

Arts-In: A performing privilege. . .with pirates?

When I watched my friend's parents leave us in the 4-H building at 2:00 p.m. on August 12th, most of me wanted to jump back into the cramped pickup, which was toting a horse trailer, sit with them through rush hour traffic in the cities, and ride the six and a half hours it would take to get back home. I was even willing to tolerate listening to Hank Williams sing "Hey, Good Lookin'" the entire way. The part of me that was still my-little-girl-self, felt the way I always had when I saw the church van pull away, leaving us at a Camp Minne-Wa-Kan when I was 10 years old: abandoned. My eyes were a little misty, but I quickly shook myself out of it. After all, I had been looking forward to this since I had finally convinced my parents to let me go, two months earlier.

This past August through the beginning of September, along with 60 kids from all around Minnesota, I was a participant in Minnesota 4-H State Arts-In. Not only was I working harder than I ever have before, but I was also doing the thing I love most— performing. I was waking up early, learning new songs, and drilling dance moves over and over. I was awake long after I should have been sleeping, trying to memorize lyrics to a song I would be learning the dance to the next day. And I was paying $300 for the privilege of all of this work!

I have had few things in my life impact or change me, which is not surprising, given the fact that I am only 17. Arts-In, however, is something that had a large impact on my life. It was an experience that I will never forget.

Being left 300 miles from home, with only one familiar face was nerve-wracking. Once the festivities were underway, and they had revealed to us this year's title Stand Tall, a pirate theme, I felt a little better. When we sat to eat our first meal, I clung near the girl I had come with, though we were already starting to form our own groups of interest.

I was exhausted by the time I climbed the four flights of stairs that night, to the not-so-comfortable dorm beds, where I would be spending the first of the 23 nights ahead of me. I had made it through the nerve-wracking experience that was the audition part of the program. I settled down into my bunk and began memorizing the lyrics to "Foot Loose."

As Prep Week wore on, I grew close to this group of 60 people. We didn't have to go through the process of explaining our interests to each other. We already had them in common. We loved theater, music, and above all, performing. Even if we were completely different, we had a couple of basic things in common. We were all giving up the end of our summers to be away from home, whether it be six and a half hours (my friend and I) or six blocks (a technical major). We were all here because we wanted to be, and we were working toward the same goal: making the show the best we could. All of our areas would have to come together at the end of seven days, ready or not, for our first performance, the preview for our parents.

The last morning of Prep Week (the day of our preview performance for our parents), the performers stepped out on the stage for the first time. All of a sudden, we had two hours to bring everything together for the first time. We received our brown polo shirts with orange writing (not my favorite color combination), and greeted our guests. Although the sound system wasn't quite up to standard, we did our first performance of Stand Tall. It was by no means perfect, but they were our parents, so, of course, they cheered.

After the performance, we packed our bags and set off for home, basically to wash our clothes, repack, and come back four days later, and then perform up to four times a day for two weeks.

Before I knew it, I was back at the State Fair, this time for the real thing. We plunged right into the show, and even more bonding time together. At Arts-In, I was completely comfortable. I was confident doing things like improv with this group of people I had met only a week before, because we knew each other so well. We knew each other better than I know some people I have been in the same grade with for 12 years!

The State Fair continued on wonderfully. I got even closer with my fellow Artsies. Each performance took a ton of energy. After all, it was almost 40 minutes of nonstop singing and dancing. After a while, I didn't even have to think about the moves, they just happened naturally. All of my work had paid off. I could focus on the audience, sometimes picking out people I knew. My feet were bleeding, but I never noticed until after the show.

Going into the audience and thanking people for coming was wonderful. I can't tell you how wonderful it feels to be told, by perfect strangers, things like, "It was wonderful! My 5-year-old daughter wants to be just like you, and this is my second time seeing this. I watched you the whole time, you were amazing!"

Before I knew it, it was Sunday, Sept. 5, the day before we all would be leaving. We had a closing ceremony that lasted until 3:00 a.m. We went around in a circle and said what we would take home with us from this experience. Most said 60 new friends.

Our last performance was at 11:30 a.m. on Labor Day. It was our last time together as a group, and I could feel in the air how close we were and how great everyone wanted to make the final performance be. The tears started on our third to last number, Stand Tall, though we didn't sound any different. However, by the time we sang our final number The State Fair Song, there wasn't a dry eye on stage, and there were plenty of people crying in the audience.

Although it concluded eight months ago, I feel like I was there yesterday. People ask me why I gave up the end of my summer (the better portion of August, at that) and the first three days of my junior year (the milestone First Day of School). I don't give it any thought. There was nothing more I would have rather done. State Arts-In is a program that changed me. I learned so much in those three weeks and gained many great friends. It was an experience unlike any other I have had. I literally cannot put into words how great it was and how much it meant to me, so I will rely on the old standard a lot.

Living here, we are cut off from everyone else. The next closest Artsies live three hours away. Most live near the cities or in Southern Minnesota. Although we promised to religiously e-mail and instant-message, school started for everyone the day after we got back, putting some of this on the back burner, though I do manage to keep in touch with a few regularly. When summer rolls around, though, I have a feeling that we will start talking again and preparing for our next Prep Week.

Without a vision, the farm may perish

by Paul Ramsey
FBM instructor, Detroit Lakes

It has been a longtime biblical statement that "without a vision the people will perish." The wisdom in this statement has to do with the goals and vision statement that a farm business should have. When a business has a good vision statement, it provides focus and direction to the decisions to be made. The long-term and short-term goals are also easier to write down. A catch-phrase vision statement can keep a business on task.

There are several other reasons to have a farm business vision statement. Number one on the list is that it provides a sense of direction and stimulation for growth. The number two reason is that it gives the people in the business sense of unity for involvement and purpose. Another thing, a good vision statement does is it will help to clarify decision-making. Most of us need all the help we can get on that one.

When you are busy with the day-to-day chores, a vision statement will help to keep you focused on what is important on that priority list. A vision statement will help motivate the people over the long haul. When the days are long and hard, and you sometimes wonder, "Why did I ever get into this?" the vision statement will provide a handle onto which to hold.

A well thought vision statement will help to empower and call people to attempt the seemingly impossible task before them. Sometimes day-to-day tasks can really take the zap out of you, a reminder of the vision statement with a short delightful daydream can create some well-needed enthusiasm. The leaders of your farm business will remain fired up and act like the spark plug they should.

Vision and goals are many times overlooked, but, like a sharpened ax, it makes the work go a lot easier. One of the farmers I work with has a simple effective vision for their business: To produce more high quality milk for people to consume. Milk is still God's most nearly perfect food. ## Heritage Sr. Dance Club to host dance

The Heritage Senior Dance Club of Thief River Falls will have a dance on Thursday, April 28, from 7 to 10 p.m. Music will be provided by the Auctioneers.

Pray with others during National Day of Prayer

Thursday, May 5 is National Day of Prayer, and everyone is invited to attend a prayer event scheduled at 6 p.m. May 5 at the Floyd B. Olson Park gazebo.

All churches in the surrounding area have been invited to participate in this event. Every pastor involved in the Thief River Falls Ministerial Association has also agreed to participate. Members of a number of area churches are walking from their churches to the gazebo that evening. As they walk, they will pray for the neighborhoods through which they walk.

Once at the gazebo, attendees will pray for leaders in all branches of government, including federal, state and local. They will pray for the president, vice president, cabinet, U.S. House of Representatives, U.S. Senate, U.S. Supreme Court, Minnesota governor and lieutenant governor, Minnesota House, Minnesota Senate and the state's judicial system. They will also pray for local leaders, including the Thief River Falls mayor, City Council, school superintendent, police chief and co-fire chiefs.

Thief River Falls has never had a formal observance of the National Day of Prayer, said Rev. Phil Schmidt of the United Methodist Church.

Schmidt hopes the Thief River Falls observance becomes an annual event. "Hopefully, this will be every first Thursday in May until Jesus comes again," Schmidt said.

Throughout the prayer program, music will be provided. Benches will be provided for attendees. However, they may also bring folding lawn chairs if they so choose. Refreshments will be provided.

The United Methodist Church Evangelism Committee is organizing Thief River Falls' observance of National Day of Prayer.

It's a nonpartisan event, said Schmidt, who noted the Bible calls for prayers for the government.

This is the 53rd year of the National Day of Prayer. President Harry Truman signed the law proclaiming the first National Day of Prayer in 1952, according to www.nationaldayofprayer.org. Thirty-six years later, President Ronald Reagan amended the law to permanently name the first Thursday in May as the National Day of Prayer. However, calls for praying for government go back to 1775. At that time, the Continental Congress asked "the colonies to pray for wisdom in forming a nation."

Marshall Manor has a unit specializing in care and services for people with Alzheimer's or related disorders. It is the group's desire to provide a supportive environment for families of people with these disorders.

Froggy books to be featured during story time

The Froggy books of Jonathon London will be featured in a special preschool storytime at the Thief River Falls Public Library at 10 a.m., on Friday, April 29.

Visiting the storytime will be Froggy himself parceling out treats. This program is done in cooperation with the Crookston Public Library and other Lake Agassiz Polk county libraries.

Froggy will be visiting a number of the libraries in Polk County the last week of April and into the first part of May, and those who are not able to attend the Thief River Falls Public Library program are invited to visit "Froggy" at one of these other libraries.

Froggy poses with friends at an area library. Froggy will visit children at the Thief River Falls Public Library at 10 a.m. on Friday, April 29, for a special Froggy Storytime.

What causes old garages to smell the same?

A question for scientific researchers: Just what causes all old garages to smell the same?

When I first opened the door to the garage in the apartment building where I just moved, the smell brought me back to the old garage in Fargo, N.D., where Grandma Geiszler stored her 1954 Chevy, and to countless other garages I have stuck my nose into over the years.

The old garage smell probably has simple origins - something to do with decades of oil drips on rough concrete combined with the scent of the deteriorating rubber of old bicycle tires mixed with the smell of dry, unfinished wood.

But the memories the sweet smell of an old garage brings back are anything but simple. For me, the old garage smell carries a whiff of history: Old license plates, antique shovels, cracked fan belts, manual tire pumps - a rich mix of gadgets and momentos.

The old garage smell brings back memories of long-dead relatives, not just of Grandma Geiszler, but of my Uncle Allan, my Uncle Glenn, my Uncle Don, and many other old folks we visited on vacations who lived in big old houses with a flat-roofed garage out back where the uncles and my father would escape for man-talk while the womenfolk got dinner ready inside.

Old garages tantalized me as a child. I wanted to get in there to experiment with the gadgets lined up between the cobwebbed studs, but the door was too heavy to lift, and I was not permitted to try.

Grandma Geiszler allowed us free reign of her house and her yard, but kids were banned from her garage. Those springs might explode and those cables might snap, and you'll probably get run over or crushed by that heavy door.

Like all the best-smelling garages, Grandma Geiszler's opened up onto the back alley, and who knows who might come racing along there at any minute. Either that, or the garbage man would scoop us up and take us away. No, garages were just too hazardous for kids.

Dad went along with Grandma's garage ban. When he went out to the garage to warm up the car or bring it around front, the last thing he wanted was a kid underfoot. I probably cried long and loud when he wouldn't take me along.

So it was a rare privilege to smell the old garage, hear the boinging springs stretch, watch the sun fight its way through the dusty window panes, or feel the coolness emanate from the deteriorating concrete slab on a hot summer day.

Even last week, when I opened the apartment garage, which is only 30 years old, has an automatic door and contains no nostalgic momentos whatsoever, the smell gave me the feeling I was entering a forbidden inner sanctum.

If there had been an old manual tire pump propped up between two wall studs, I probably would have played with it until it broke and then tried to hide it so one of my dead uncles didn't find it until after we were well down the interstate in the LTD.

Single-stall flat-roofed garages that open out onto the back alley are no longer being built. That means they will eventually go extinct, although it will probably take a while.

When we finally do get down to the last few old garages, nobody will raise a ruckus to save them, for, unlike old barns and old churches, old garages have no architectural or historic value apart from the junk they hold.

In fact, the only thing valuable and rare about an old garage is the smell, and the vivid memories that smell awakens in dark and dusty corners of the brain.

Arguing that old garages give off a unique smell probably isn't enough to get them placed on the National Register of Historic places.

But before they tear all of the old garages down, I hope some scientist can bottle that musty, dusty, nostalgic old garage smell so I can take a snort of it every now and then.

Redeemer Lutheran Church schedules May Day Luncheon for Monday

Redeemer Lutheran Church will host its annual May Day Salad Luncheon on Monday, May 2, from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

BSU receives grant to launch online program

Bemidji State University (BSU) has received a $101,000 Minnesota State Colleges and Universities grant to launch an online applied engineering technology program during fall 2006. The program would be in partnership with technical and community colleges across northern Minnesota.

Students who earn a two-year technical degree will be eligible to complete the upper two years of required courses in engineering technology online with the latest in delivery processes. Graduates will earn bachelor of applied science degrees from BSU.

Some courses will include three-dimensional holographic imaging and simulation development. The new technology projects images into a classroom in a three-dimensional format or three-dimensional images at individual computer workstations.

BSU will be one of only 10 institutions in the country with this new technology and the only four-year university licensed to exhibit the technology in partnership with the 3DH company. Early research on learning to use 3-D holography indicates that people who have access to three-dimensional imaging tend to learn faster and retain more of what they've learned when compared to other modes of information delivery.

More information is available by contacting the College of Professional Studies at (218) 755-3732 or at Decker Hall, Bemidji State University, 1500 Birchmont Drive N.E., Bemidji, MN 56601-2699.

TRF Area Caregiver Discussion Group to meet May 9

The Thief River Falls Area Caregiver Discussion Group will meet on May 9, at 10 a.m., at Trinity Lutheran Church in Thief River Falls.

The group provides education, caregiver training, support and speakers. This is a confidential setting; sharing is optional. All family caregivers are invited to attend. For more information, Diane Robson, program coordinator at Lutheran Social Services, 218-681-2885.

PARENTING TIPS
More on Traffic Safety

We know these facts about preschool pedestrian traffic injuries:

- Most children are injured near home, often on their own street.
- Most accidents happen in late afternoon on sunny days.
- More than twice as many boys as girls are injured.
- Most child-victims were not properly supervised.

The best way to teach your child about traffic safety is to practice what you preach! Children learn best through actual practice. Concentrate on the areas in your own neighborhood. Treat driveways, alleys, parking lots and parking spaces as if they were streets. Your example will help your child to learn that all of these are areas of potential danger.

Make your child aware of spaces and boundaries outdoors. Focus on fences, gates and grass borders. Then help your child become aware of and understand the purpose for the painted lines that stand for boundaries on streets and walkways.

Remember, no matter how much you educate your young child, he/she is limited in his/her ability to make good judgement calls in traffic. All preschool children need to be closely supervised when they are near traffic.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Walk through your neighborhood and identify places of potential danger. Make sure your child understands the terms you may be using. For example: driveway, alley, gate, curb, parking space, crosswalk, etc.

Supervisor Randy Rasmussen put the following herds in the Top 15 for the month of March 2005:

1. Northwest Research & Outreach Center – 107 cows, 92 percent in milk, 75 pounds of milk, 2.8 pounds of fat, 2.3 pounds of protein, in supervised testing with 106 percent of DHIA test-day milk sold.
2. Todd and Kathy Johnson – 64 cows, 92 percent in milk, 70 pounds of milk, 2.5 pounds of fat, 2.1 pounds of protein, in supervised testing with 102 percent of DHIA test-day milk sold.
3. Gary and Polly Bakken – 24 cows, 92 percent in milk, 70 pounds of milk, 2.5 pounds of fat, 2.2 pounds of protein, in supervised testing with 104 percent of DHIA test-day milk sold.
4. Walter Brothers Farm – 274 cows, 86 percent in milk, 67 pounds of milk, 2.4 pounds of fat, 2 pounds of protein, in supervised testing with 106 percent of DHIA test-day milk sold.
5. Wayra Dairy 3X – 174 cows, 86 percent in milk, 67 pounds of milk, 2.5 pounds of fat, 2 pounds of protein, in supervised testing with 107 percent of DHIA test-day milk sold.
6. Tom and Diane Kolstoe – 39 cows, 95 percent in milk, 67 pounds of milk, 2.6 pounds of fat, 1.9 pounds of protein, in supervised testing with 105 percent of DHIA test-day milk sold.
7. Beyer Brothers Farm – 65 cows, 89 percent in milk, 65 pounds of milk, 2.4 pounds of fat, 2 pounds of protein, in supervised testing with 103 percent of DHIA test-day milk sold.
8. Greg Zak – 27 cows, 96 percent in milk, 65 pounds of milk, 2.2 pounds of fat, 2 pounds of protein, in supervised testing with 104 percent of DHIA test-day milk sold.
9. Morlyn and Debbie Ornquist – 42 cows, 86 percent in milk, 61 pounds of milk, 2.1 pounds of fat, 1.9 pounds of protein, in unsupervised testing with 101 percent of DHIA test-day milk sold.
10. E. Duane and Faith Knott – 90 cows, 87 percent in milk, 59 pounds of milk, 2.4 pounds of fat, 1.8 pounds of protein, in unsupervised testing with 100 percent of DHIA test-day milk sold.
11. Lehmann Dairy – 46 cows, 93 percent in milk, 59 pounds of milk, 2.2 pounds of fat, 1.7 pounds of protein, in supervised testing with 99 percent in DHIA test-day milk sold.
12. Kevin and Sheila Tharaldson – 46 cows, 91 percent in milk, 58 pounds of milk, 2.2 pounds of fat, 1.7 pounds of protein, in supervised testing with 101 percent of DHIA test-day milk sold.
13. Kevin and Beth Roppe – 40 cows, 90 percent in milk, 56 pounds of milk, 2 pounds of fat, 1.8 pounds of protein, in supervised testing with 107 percent of DHIA test-day milk sold.
14. Hamrick Farms Inc. – 62 cows, 90 percent in milk, 55 pounds of milk, 2 pounds of fat, 1.7 pounds of protein, in supervised testing with 106 percent of DHIA test-day milk sold.
15. Leonard and Marge Geske – 42 cows, 81 percent in milk, 55 pounds of milk, 2 pounds of fat, 1.6 pounds of protein, in supervised testing with 103 percent of DHIA test-day milk sold.

The herd averages are affected by the number of dry cows in the herd. The amount of milk or butterfat is averaged out over all the cows. This gives the farmer a record of the earning power of the herd for the month. If too many cows are included in the herd, then the average for the month may be low even though the cow that is milking produces a lot of milk.

Chipps, and Dr. Jack Lassiter of the University of Arkansas at Monticello, were representing North Central Association Commission on Accreditation and School Improvement. The visit was described as a Focused Visit, not a comprehensive accreditation visit.

...How do you go to the bathroom?

Since I am now in the midst of watching my three youngest granddaughters turn four, five and six within a few weeks of each other, I have been reminiscing about when they were born. I remembered writing a column about babysitting one who will turn six and her brother when she was two and he was four, so I dug it out.

I laughed and laughed at it and decided I would use it again, especially since it is close to Mother's Day. I've added a little more to it, but I swear to you it is all true. If you are a grandmother, I'm sure you will be able to relate, and if you are a mother of children this age, keep your chin up. It gets better - honest it does. Here is part of the story. The rest will be next week's column:

I have been babysitting a couple of my grandchildren and now I have some questions for you mothers. Don't tell me that I should know all of this stuff because I had five children of my own. I think they are making kids different nowadays. I don't remember having all this trouble when mine were little. Today's children seem to be harder to raise, if you ask me.

First of all, how do you find time to go to the bathroom? The first time I tried to get into the bathroom by myself, I left the door open a little bit so they could find me in an emergency. That wasn't a good idea. I barely had time to get into the room and turn around (thank goodness I was still fully dressed) and there were two little faces with four little eyes watching me. I realized this wouldn't work. I'm not used to being watched in the bathroom.

Then I decided I would announce to the kids where I was going and give the four-year-old the job of "babysitting" the two-year-old while I was otherwise occupied. Two seconds after I sat down in the little room, both of them were outside the door. Little hands knocked on the door, "Grandma, Grandma, are you done?" "Grandma, Grandma, when are you coming out?" Being interrupted and/or hurrying is not a good potty break for a grandmother of my age.

After a few uncomfortable hours, I found the best way to get into that bathroom. I got the kids busy with something really interesting and as safe as possible, like rolling play dough with their mother's good rolling pin (yes, it was on the table and not on the carpet), and I just hurriedly sneaked off without telling them. By that time I knew they would find me if they needed me. I just hoped it might take them a little longer before they were knocking on the door.

Is the dining area the busiest place in your house? I think we spent more time at the dining room table than anywhere else. Either we were preparing to eat, which included deciding what everyone wanted, finding the food, preparing the food, getting it to the table at the same time as the children and eating the food, or else we were cleaning up afterward - cleaning everything: children, walls, floor, chairs, table, etc. By the time we finished all of that, it was usually time to get ready for the next meal.

I'd forgotten the length of time it takes for children to eat. My little granddaughter spends most of her time at the table. She doesn't dawdle on purpose, or play with her food or toys, or do anything that she shouldn't be doing. She just sits there smiling and popping a bit of food into her mouth whenever she feels like it. She does have quite a bit to say while she is eating, but that shouldn't interfere. I think that talking a lot is a natural female thing in our family. Her hot food turns cold and her cold food turns hot long before she has finished her plate. But she eats it anyway, smiling all the time. Sometimes she sits there all by herself, conversing with whoever comes near her - and she's too adorable to ignore, you know.

Let's get those boats in the water

Boating season is already here in parts of the country. In others, boaters are anxiously looking at their equipment and getting prepared for another season of fun on the water.

The recent run-up of fuel prices has extended sticker shock to the fuel pump. But for the boater who knows his or her time afloat is a needed stress buster, finding ways to trim boating costs makes good sense.

You can help your fuel take you farther and give you more time on the water by following these suggestions from Yamaha Marine, whose outboards are known for their fuel efficiency and turnkey reliability.

- Make sure the hull is clean. If a boat has been sitting in the water for a long time, cleaning the hull is very important for reducing fuel consumption. A clean hull will not only move through the water easier, but handles better.
- Don't under-power your boat. All boats are rated for maximum horsepower, but it's important to make sure you have enough motor to handle the load. Underpowered boats struggle to get up on plane and require higher throttle settings to move the boat, gear and people across the water. The result is poor fuel economy and an overworked engine.
- Check your propeller. If your boat is slow to get "out of the hole" or lacks top end speed, your outboard might have the wrong propeller or it could be damaged. Prop diameter and pitch (the angle on the prop blades) can make a big difference in fuel economy and speed. Your local dealer can help you determine if your outboard has the right prop.
- Keep the engine properly tuned. A well-tuned engine burns less gas. After a season-opener check-up of your engine, maintain your engine at regular intervals throughout the season. Proper maintenance extends the life of the engine, as well as saving fuel.
- Use the proper grade of gasoline. Use the octane specified by the engine manufacturer. A high-performance outboard is similar to a high-performance sports car - to run properly, it needs the right fuel. A lower-grade gas may foul the plugs and decrease performance, burning more fuel.

Special team looks at NCTC merger

opportunity to gather input about the progress of the merger directly from the people most affected by the merger.

Three students who wished to participate in the discussion, two from East Grand Forks and one from Thief River Falls, described three concerns: difficulties associated with financial aid, more on-line cooperation, and tutoring.

A representative from Northland Community and Technical College Foundation (John Mattson, publisher of The Thief River Falls Times/Northern Watch), said the Board's concerns were with protecting the integrity of the organization and its assets. He believes the intent of most of the donors was for their donations to benefit students on the Thief River Falls campus. He didn't believe East Grand Forks had an established Foundation. In relation to a possible development of a Foundation in East Grand Forks and or a merger, he said many issues had been discussed, but nothing decided by the Board. Regardless of these issues, he said the NCTC Foundation was moving forward, which meant it would be hiring an assistant and full-time director.

Kent Hanson, provost, said the East Grand Forks campus recognized the importance of a Foundation and it was on their list of things to get done.

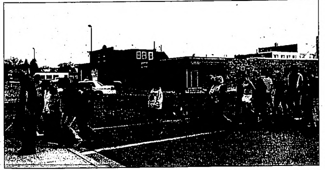
Individuals in attendance did not question whether the merger was financially possible. Instead, questions focused on department budgets.

In response to a question about how biology departments on the different campuses would approach their budgets, Hanson said it was campus based. Staff and division chairs would continue to make their budget proposals on each campus. He added that Deans will have the authority to shift dollars to make sure that all programs are covered financially. In other words, Deans will have supervisory oversight.

Chipps and Lassiter agreed that money and people issues were always the most sensitive. Having come from colleges where mergers had taken place, both said those issues still remained the most difficult.

From an operations standpoint, Dan Sponsler of East Grand Forks, said under the former system they had struggled. He said it was an adversarial relationship. He said the support from this administration was wonderful.

Chipps and Lassiter said they were impressed with the progress of the merger, and that they were well ahead of expectations. The purpose of the visit may have been to verify or validate the progress, but Chipps and Lassiter said they were there to help. At the conclusion of their review, they may issue some recommendations, but those recommendations will help the NCTC campuses complete the merger process.



Lincoln High School students made their way April 19 to the Evangelical Free Church after a mock evacuation at the school. Dependent on grade level, the 657 students went to a particular area of the church. They then were separated alphabetically in specific rooms and attendance was taken.

law enforcement saw where there would be easy access points for a school shooter or hostage taker, Murphy noted.

"It went well," said Murphy. "We did identify both strengths and weaknesses." Noting that those strengths and weaknesses were security concerns, he declined to indicate what they were.

Almost two weeks later, the school held the mock evacuation. "It's good to at least have students and staff know what to do and where to go," said Murphy, who noted it may alleviate the panic students and staff may feel in the event of an actual evacuation.

Murphy added that every safety-related situation is different and law enforcement would have to evaluate the safety of all people involved, including the responders and possible evacuees. Their safety would then influence where people could go and that would not necessarily be the Evangelical Free Church.

"Can we plan for every possible event?" asked Murphy. "We try, but the real answer to that is no."

However, Murphy did note that the mock evaluation enabled school staff to discuss and know where it was going during a possible evacuation as well as how to leave the school and what to take.

"The real good thing that came from this is it gave everybody an actual visual evaluation of what was taking place," Murphy said.

Hunt agreed, stating that the mock evaluation gave school officials an idea of where they stand with law enforcement and community cooperation. Hunt, who couldn't recall the last time the school had a mock evacuation, noted school officials, law enforcement, the fire department and other agencies review the evacuation plan annually.

"Both [the lockdown and mock evacuation] are important to do," said Murphy. "One, staff and students have practiced it, know kind of what the routine is and know the importance of it."

Murphy noted the mock evacuation gave law enforcement an opportunity to determine where firefighters and emergency medical providers could be stationed. He said it also gave law enforcement an opportunity to determine where bus drivers and relatives could pick up students and staff in the event of an actual evacuation. It also helped law enforcement find where media could be stationed.

Similar mock evacuations are planned at Challenger Elementary School, Franklin Middle School, and the Alternative Learning Center and School District Service Center, according to Murphy. Law enforcement has photos and overlays of those facilities. It also knows where things are located in those buildings.

Future scenario-based evacuations are also planned that would involve law enforcement, the fire department, schools and the ambulance service, Murphy said.

Challenger students have different thoughts on the program.

"It's gonna be cool," said third grade student Preston Busse. "People will learn more."

"Instead of watching TV, I will play on my dad's trampoline," said junior first grade student Marissa Skinner.

Some students like Ramon Castillo, second grade, and Nick Dokkin, fifth grade, will have no problem staying away from the TV for a week.

"I could do it for four weeks, because I'll be outside," Castillo said.

"It was pretty easy last year, because I'm normally outside," Dokkin said.

Others like third grade student Garrett Byron and fifth grade student Jaco LaRock admit that the going without TV would be too difficult.

"It was sort of hard last year. All my favorite shows were on," Byron said.

"I'm not gonna do it, it's too hard," LaRock said.

Another Incentive

Media Specialist Jamie Bakken is giving students the incentive to read during the TV Turnoff Week. Each time a student reads a book during TV Turnoff Week, he or she is supposed to write the name of the book on a piece of scrap paper and place it in the "TV box." If students can mangage to fill the box by the end of the week, they can look forward to spending their media center time outdoors.

Bakken is also organizing a media center event called the "Read-athlon," in which the top readers will qualify for a media center lock-in on Friday, April 29. The qualifying students will spend Friday night in the media center, where they will be able to play bingo for books, play book olympics, perform reader's theater, write silly stories and most importantly, stay up as late as they want. Pizza will be donated by Danny's Pizza of Thief River Falls. The event begins at 3 p.m. on Friday and concludes Saturday at 1 p.m.

Dr. Jack Lassiter of the University of Arkansas at Monticello, visited Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls and East Grand Forks on Monday to discuss how the merger between the two campuses was progressing. Lassiter and Dr. Michael Chipps, Mid-Plains Community College, North Platte, Neb., were representing North Central Association Commission on Accreditation and School Improvement. The visit was described as a Focused Visit, not a comprehensive accreditation visit.

13th District Horticultural Society holds spring meeting

"Wake Up...It's Spring, Cock-A-Doodle Do!!!" was the theme of the day at the annual spring workshop of the 13th District Horticultural Society, held in Viking on Saturday, April 2, 2005.

Faith Rud opened the day with a slide show presentation of her trip to Ireland, Sweden, Latvia and Estonia in July 2003. In Iceland, there were not trees, according to Rud. Iceland is a volcanic country, so the ground was very green with lush grasses. Most of her time was spent in Latvia, where she stayed in a private home.

She showed pictures of the many greenhouses that people had where they grew roses and tomatoes amongst other things. There were also a lot of hanging baskets and containers in the cities of all the countries.

The afternoon speaker was Ruth Swenson of Lake Bronson, who talked on growing herbs for this area. Her favorite herb reference book is "Rodale's Book of Herbs." Herbs should be picked in the morning. During the day the sun removes much of the essential oils. When cooking with herbs, add the herbs at the last minute, otherwise the flavor could be cooked out. Those wishing to reduce the use of sugar may want to consider using Angelica as a sweetener. Use the stem part of the plant and cut it in small pieces. Lemon balm can be used for tea and lemon flavoring.

Sweet basil and tomatoes, when grown next to one another, can help each other. Peter Rabbit's mother made him a tea of chamomile to make him feel happy. Use the yellow center of the flowers to make the tea. Coriander and cilantro are the same plant. Coriander are the seeds which are in the beef brisket of corned beef and used in pickled herring. Cilantro is the leaf used in Mexican foods. It is the most universal herb. The blossoms make good fillers in flower beds and arrangements. Besides using dill seed in making pickles, the leaves are used in seasoning. Lavender can grow in this area, but grow the English lavender. It needs winter protection, lots of sunshine and doesn't like to have wet feet.

Travelers used to put lovage leaves in their shoes to cool and deodorize their feet. Wild marjoram and oregano are quite similar. They are used in Italian dishes, and the dried flowers do good in bouquets. Mints need to be contained or they will take over the garden. They are said to keep mice away, make good teas and are used to ease stomach ailments. Roses are considered an herb as the flower petals are edible and rose hips are rich in Vitamin C. Rue is an antiseptic herb and a stewing herb. It was strewn on dirt floors to sweeten the home and also strewn for royalty to walk on. Summer Savory is used in bean soup and other bean dishes.

Tansy is an invasive plant that repels ants, moths and discourages other bugs. It is toxic to cattle and on the noxious weed list in some areas.

Thyme leaves are used in teas. French tarragon is used to make flavored vinegar. The name tarragon means little dragon, because the roots look like a little dragon. Common wormwood is used to deworm cattle. It is in the artemesmia family and is very invasive and addictive.

District gardening awards were presented. Receiving the outstanding district gardener award were Norma Karlson, a 27-year member from Warroad, of the Green Thumb Garden Club; and Joyce Lorenson, also of the Green Thumb Garden Club. Norma works with many flower beds in the city of Warroad. Joyce is an avid vegetable gardener, who has raised plants for test programs.

Receiving the gold medal award was Helen Erickson, a 30-year member of the Gro-RITE Garden Club from Badger, who is an exhibitor at the county fair and horticultural show, as well as sharing her flowers and expertise with her church, 4-H and as a part-time teacher. LaVonne Knudson of Warroad, a 15-year member of the Green Thumb Garden Club, was the other winner. LaVonne shares and encourages others and has been the high point winner at the horticulture show many times, especially in vegetables and herbs.

The annual horticultural show will be held at the community center in Warroad on Aug. 13. It will be hosted by the Gro-RITE Garden Club and Green Thumb Garden Club. A district photo contest will be held at the fall meeting, with the theme being, "Give it Your Best Shot."

It was decided a birdhouse building contest will be held at the fall meeting, with more details to be sent to clubs later. The executive board will research the number of blue ribbon awards needed to advance to the next category of competition at the horticultural show.

Helen Erickson presented awards for the club program books. First place went to Moccasin Garden Club of Thief River Falls, Pam Bettin, president; second place to Green Thumb Garden Club of Warroad, Sunny Wilmer, president; and third place to Dirt Diggers Garden Club of Warren, Verona Poolman, president. The day closed with a silver tea, honoring the host club, Viking Town and Country Garden Club on its 45th anniversary. Joyce Kron, a charter member, poured coffee. An anniversary display of Viking Town and Country Garden Club events was shown.

Plant trees best suited for your environment

University of Minnesota Extension Service

Spring planting is here, and homeowners are anxious to get outdoors and plant trees, shrubs, flowers and gardens. There are many resources available to help you learn more about planting desirable plants that are best suited for your environment. Nursery and landscape business staff can help you with these plant selections. There's also information from the University of Minnesota, Master Gardeners and other creditable sources.

Horticulturalists are encouraging homeowners to diversify their plantings and not plant too many plants of one cultivar or variety. Instead, plant many different kinds to enhance the spectrum of plants on your property. One of many reasons to do this is to prevent or reduce the risk of damaging insect or disease infestations in the planting.

Obviously, many variables can affect the healthy growth of trees and shrubs. Winter hardiness is probably one of the most important factors in selecting trees and shrubs. Cultivars have recommended hardiness zones. Soil condition, sun exposure and space to grow (width and height) are also important.

We have an abundance of ash trees in our landscape that were planted to replace many of the elm trees that died of Dutch elm disease. There are many trees that grow well in Minnesota.

Several University of Minnesota Web sites can help you compile information about possible trees and shrubs that may do well in your landscape. They include:

- Recommended trees for regions of Minnesota, available at www.cnr.umn.edu/FR/extension/ElmReplacement.html
- Urban and Community Forestry, available at www.cnr.umn.edu/FR/extension/UrbanandCommunityForestry.html
- Reviews tree species and growth characteristics regarding powerlines, available at www.mnpower.com/treebook/
- Minnesota Department of Transportation Plant Selector (click on Enter Program), available at http://plantselector.dot.state.mn.us
- Sustainable Urban Landscapes, available at www.sustland.umn.edu

Dear Parent,

Once again, we are nearing the end of the school year. In the coming weeks your son or daughter may be joining others in Prom Night Celebrations. This is an exciting time for young people on this very special occasion.

It's also an exciting time for you as parents. You have watched your child grow over the years both physically and emotionally. There were times when you wondered if you could survive their growing up, and now that Prom Night is at hand, and celebration plans are underway, the question is, "Can we all survive it?"

If you are planning to host a party AT YOUR HOME OR OTHER LOCATION SUCH AS A HOTEL OR MOTEL carefully consider your responsibilities in doing so. Please remember that SELLING, FURNISHING OR SERVING ALCOHOL to minors is a criminal offense in Minnesota. It is a gross misdemeanor which can result in up to one year in jail and up to a $3,000 fine. In addition, any adult who knowingly provides alcoholic beverages to a minor can be exposed to personal liability for injuries that result from that minor's intoxication.

The combination of drinking and driving is one of the leading killers of young people between the ages of 15 and 24. Last year, several young people under the age of 21 in our state alone, died or were seriously injured in alcohol-related traffic crashes.

This is one of the most memorable occasions for your son or daughter. Teach them to celebrate SMART!!! Please read the information below to further answer any questions you may have about minors and alcohol. Make sure your Prom Celebrations for minors are chemical-free.

Sincerely,

Sheriff Mike Hruby & Police Chief Kim Murphy

12. COULD PARENTS BE HELD LIABLE IF THEY RENT A MOTEL ROOM FOR THEIR MINOR CHILD AND ALCOHOL IS CONSUMED THERE? The parents could be held liable even though they did not know alcohol was being consumed. The Thief River Falls TIMES

A pitch from Northland's Shannon Olson was on the way to the plate as Vermilion batter Cara Bigelow and umpire Mike Drury looked on during Friday's Minnesota Community College Conference softball action at the Multi-Events Center. Olson pitched both ends of the Northern Division doubleheader, giving up just four runs and seven hits as the Pioneers won 4-1, 5-3.

Helling gets start, 7-2 win

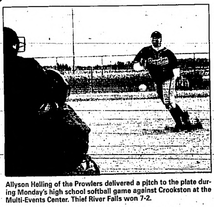
When you have a Megan Berg on the roster, there just aren't a lot of opportunities for the rest of the throwers. Berg is not only the ace of the Thief River Falls staff, she's one of the best high school softball pitchers in the area. Head coach Matt Okeson says he has a solid 1-2 pitching combination in Berg and Allyson Helling, but Berg is No. 1 and gets the majority of the innings.

Monday, Helling was given a rare start against Crookston at the Multi-Events Center. She made the most of the opportunity on a cold, windy drizzly afternoon with six innings of two-hit shutout pitching that ended as a 7-2 Thief River Falls victory.

Helling struck out four and walked two as the Prowlers improved to 5-1. The Pirates finally spoiled her shutout bid when they doubled their hit total and pushed a pair of runs across the plate in their final at-bat.

It was just a 1-0 game going into the bottom of the fifth inning when Thief River Falls broke it open by scoring six times on five base hits, a walk and three Crookston errors. The outburst began with a bunt single by DD Rambeck, a walk issued to Brittni Johnson and a fielder's choice on a ground ball off the bat of Kjelsy Loeffler that loaded the bases with nobody out. Two runs scored on a single by Amanda Timm and the third run crossed the plate after a one-out error on a ball hit by Chasity Johnson. Jamie Hoglo made it 5-0 with a single to left, then the two errors came into play as the gap went to 7-0.

Crookston finally got to Helling in the seventh when Macy Hanson sent an inning-opening single to right field, Amanda Schlenker drew a one-out walk and Lindsey Johnson drove a two-run double to right-center.



Allyson Helling of the Prowlers delivered a pitch to the plate during Monday's high school softball game against Crookston at the Multi-Events Center. Thief River Falls won 7-2.

Pioneers sweep pair of softball doubleheaders...

NCTC back in win column

Northland turned opportunity into reality by sweeping Vermilion and Mesabi Range in Friday/Saturday Minnesota Community College Conference softball doubleheaders at the Multi-Events Center.

The Pioneers were fast out of the gate this spring with a 4-0 start in Northern Division play. But then came a 1-7 MCCC skid that not only raised havoc with their position in the standings, but also replaced confidence with self-doubt.

Northland coach Kathy Huschle is hoping 4-1, 5-3 Friday wins over Vermilion and 9-1, 5-1 Saturday victories over Mesabi Range will restore that early-season swagger and help improve the Pioneers' post-season stock.

It was a home-and-home Northland sweep over both Vermilion and Mesabi Range this spring.

"I know it's the same teams we beat before, but it was nice to pick up the four wins," said Huschle. "We beat the people we should be beating. Now it's time to go after the teams in front of us."

Shannon Olson was in the spotlight on a cold, windy Friday matchup with Vermilion. She pitched all 14 innings, giving up just four runs and seven hits. She struck out six and walked only one.

"Shannon did a great job," confirmed Huschle. "She pitched well."

Olson also did the job on offense with a pair of 2-for-3 games at the plate.

A first-game grand slam home run by Rochelle Nelk highlighted the Saturday games against Mesabi Range.

Olson was the starter and winner in the opener.

Nelk, who normally alternates pitching assignments with Olson, was kept out of the Friday games while recovering from a hip injury. She started Game 2 Saturday and combined on a two-hitter with Olson, who came on in relief in the sixth inning. The Norse sent seven batters to the plate and scored a first inning but were retired in order the rest of the way by the two Northland pitchers, who combined for nine strike-outs.

With the wins, Northland improved to 9-7 in the Northern Division and 17-9 overall. They host Fergus Falls in a nonconference doubleheader today (Wednesday) at the Multi-Events Center.

Pioneers surge puts them into contender role

■ Tom Dostal earns Player of Week honors

Northland scored 64 runs in a four-game weekend sweep that pushed the Pioneers toward the top of the Minnesota Community College Conference Northern Division standings.

Things began innocently enough when Northland beat Vermilion 6-4 in the first half of a Saturday doubleheader in Thief River Falls. But the offensive show kicked in when the Pioneers pounded the Ironmen 21-3 in Game 2.

The fireworks followed Northland to Hibbing Sunday, where the Pioneers rolled to a 16-2, 21-9 sweep.

In the midst of all that, Northland first baseman Tom Dostal was named Northern Division Player of the Week. Dostal, a sophomore from East Grand Forks, had a 12-for-23 weekend with four home runs and 13 RBI. He was 6-for-7 with four homers and nine RBI against Hibbing.

With the wins, Northland went to 7-1 in the Northern Division, setting up a first-place Tuesday (April 26) showdown against 9-1 Itasca in Grand Rapids.

The Pioneers will play weekend games at Mesabi Range Saturday and at Vermilion Sunday before wrapping up the regular season at home Wednesday, May 4, rematch vs. Itasca.

Qualifiers move on to the 2005 MCCC state tournament May 7-8 in Rochester. Northland's recent success has all but wrapped up a post-season start for the Pioneers.

Vermilion and Hibbing are a combined 0-18 in Northern Division action this spring.

Swenson Field. Jones, Steva, Sam Mattison and Cody Nelson combined on a first place run. The Prowlers will compete at home again Friday when they host the annual Quent Jones Relays beginning at 4 p.m.

Quent Jones Relays track meet is Friday

Six teams are scheduled to join host Thief River Falls Friday for the 2005 running of the Quent Jones Relays boys and girls high school track meet at Lowell T. Swenson field.

Bemidji, Detroit Lakes, Roseau, Crookston, Grand Rapids and East Grand Forks will be part of the field, along with the Prowlers.

Competition starts at 4 p.m.

Chelsea Haviland named Army swim team captain

Chelsea Haviland has been named captain of the 2005-06 Army women's swimming and diving team, it was announced at the Black Knights' recent banquet.

Haviland is three-time Patriot League Diver of the Year. She holds team and league records in diving and is among Army's top freestyle sprinters. The 2002 Lincoln High School graduate is the only athlete to score in both swimming and diving at the 2005 Patriot [illegible]

Errors cost Prowlers

Shaky defense cost Thief River Falls a chance to beat Bemidji Saturday in high school baseball. The Prowlers doubled the host Lumberjacks in the hit department, 10-5, but a half-dozen errors took away that advantage and led to a 7-4 setback.

"The box score says it all," said Thief River Falls coach Shane Zutz. "We had 10 hits and lost. The six errors will not allow us to beat anyone."

It was the second straight loss for the Prowlers, who started the year with a five-game winning streak.

Zutz wasn't happy with his team's performance. "We weren't ready to play, and it showed," he said.

A single by Dan Kaushagen, stolen base and two-out base hit by David Lovly gave Thief River Falls a 1-0 second inning lead.

Bemidji got that run back in the [illegible] to-back singles, walk and two ground-outs all added up to a 4-1 third inning Bemidji lead.

Three straight two-out singles by Alec Holen, Michael Benedict and Lucas Genereux plated a fifth inning Thief River Falls run, but the Prowlers were charged with three errors in the bottom of the inning to fall behind 6-2.

Another Thief River Falls error put Bemidji's lead-off batter on base in the sixth and led to the Lumberjacks' seventh run.

The Prowlers finished with a two-run seventh when Lovly and [illegible] came up with one-out singles and scored on a fielder's choice off the bat of Chris Matter and a sacrifice fly by Genereux.

Participants sought for horseshoe league being conducted in Newfolden area

Officials with the Minnesota Gopher State Horseshoe Pitchers Association have started a recruiting campaign in an effort to introduce the sport to a wider base of participants.

"Horseshoe is a fun sport for the entire family," said Patricia Sjogren, the group's statewide media director. "Horseshoe pitching is a great family activity, and is very economical. Everyone from 5 to 90 will enjoy pitching horseshoe."

Prowlers, Roughriders split Thursday twinbill played in Grand Forks

Thief River Falls' season-opening winning streak was extended and ended Thursday in high school baseball action at Grand Forks Red River.

The Prowlers won their fifth straight game with a come-from-behind 10-6 Game 1 victory, but their unbeaten status ended when the Roughriders staged a rally of their own to win the five-inning nightcap 9-7.

Red River began the day with a three-run first inning in the opener. The Prowlers broke a 6-6 tie by scoring twice in the sixth, then added a pair of insurance runs in the seventh.

Two innings of no-hit, shutout relief pitching by Tomas Heaton helped seal the win.

"We did a nice job of coming back," said Thief River Falls coach Shane Zutz. "Our bats really came alive in the last three innings, and Tomas came in and shut the door."

Thief River Falls appeared in position for a sweep with a 7-3 lead through three innings in Game 2. But Red River turned the tables on the Prowlers with a six-run fourth inning that included five base hits and two errors.

"We just fell apart in the fourth inning," explained Zutz. "That hasn't happened all year, but it did in this game."

Brady Stanley medalist at Detroit Lakes...

Prowlers take team, individual golf titles

Team and individual honors went to Thief River Falls Monday at the Detroit Lakes Invitational boys high school golf tournament.

The Prowlers shot a 321 for a three-stroke victory over runner-up Crookston during a windy 40-degree day at the Detroit Lakes Country Club.

Leading the Prowlers' title-winning effort was Brady Stanley, the meet medalist with a five-over-par 76.

"The team was able to overcome the elements and a tough course," reported Thief River Falls coach Dick Tyler. "This was an important win for the team. Not only did they beat host Detroit Lakes, but also Bemidji, Fergus Falls and Moorhead – the other area Section 8AA teams."

Paul Sjoberg's 78 gave the Prowlers a pair of top-four finishers. Lee Peterson (83) and Kyle Lunke (84) both played steady, according to Tyler.

While happy with the win, Tyler said there is still room for improvement in the Prowlers' performance. "The team still had too many large numbers on a few holes," he explained. "We need the other golfers to get back into the 70's."

TRF is 7-0 softball winner at Warroad

Chances were good that Thief River Falls pitcher Megan Berg wasn't going to give up a lot of runs Thursday in a high school softball game at Warroad. But the Prowlers did need a little offense to go along with her four-hit, eight strike-out performance. The runs finally came in the fifth (four) and seventh (three) innings as the visitors posted a 7-0 win.

Shayla Torrell opened the fifth with a single to left. Berg then put down a sacrifice bunt that was thrown away for a run-scoring error. A bunt single by DD Rambeck put runners at the corners, but only temporarily as Rambeck stole second and scored, along with Berg, on a base hit to left-center field by Brittni Johnson. A throwing error on a play at the plate allowed Johnson to reach third, and she scored by sliding under the tag on a sacrifice bunt by Amanda Timm that produced a throw to the plate.

Johnson got the Prowlers' seventh inning offense going with a single and stolen base. She scored on a double by Timm that was followed by a two-run home run over the left-center field fence by Allyson Helling.

"We struggled putting hits together early in the game," said Thief River Falls coach Matt Okeson. "Warroad's pitcher changed pitches well, and had us hitting on our front foot."

The Prowlers finally made things happen by forcing Warroad to make plays in the field. "It was our bunting that got us going today," explained Okeson. "We got a few base runners on, and put pressure on the defense. Warroad did not make the routine plays. We took advantage of their mistakes and got extra at-bats."

Warroad put only four runners on base and Thief River Falls catcher Kindra Trontvet erased two of them. She threw out a runner on a stolen base attempt in the first inning and picked another runner off first in the sixth. "Any time your catcher gets outs like that, it puts less pressure on the defense to make plays with people running on the bases," noted Okeson.

Roseau was an easy winner Monday in the Thief River Falls Invitational boys junior varsity high school golf tournament.

Bemidji teams win track titles

Championship trophies stayed in town Friday following the completion of the Beaver Relays boys and girls high school track meet at Bemidji State University.

It was a Bemidji-Hibbing 1-2 finish in both portions of the meet. But while the Lumberjacks won the boys' title by just a 190-187 margin, the Bemidji girls finished with a 294-142 victory spread over the Bluejackets.

Thief River Falls girls were third and the boys placed fourth in an eight team field.

The Prowlers had three first place finishes in the boys' meet, where Scott Rakozy went 53.3 in the 400 meter dash, Ryan Brummund hit 47-1 in the shot put and a 4x200 relay team of Aaron Langen, Tom Loe, Blake Haviland and Rakozy combined on a 1:40.39.

Prowlers post another shutout

Another strong Thief River Falls pitching performance was complemented by a 14-hit offense as Thief River Falls blanked host Roseau 8-0 Friday in high school softball.

The host Rams were shut out on two hits as Megan Berg and Allyson Helling combined for 12 strike-outs. Berg blanked Roseau on four hits the day before.

"This is the first time in seven years that we got wins back-to-back against Warroad and Roseau," pointed out Matt Okeson, looking back on his record as Thief River Falls head coach. "They have quality programs, and it is nice to see us competing with them."

It was pitching/offense combination that did it, according to Okeson. "Megan and Allyson both pitched very well, and we hit the ball very well today. We took advantage of seeing two pitchers (from Warroad and Roseau) that had the same speed back-back."

Thief River Falls scoring started in the third inning when Brittni Johnson led off with a single, Kjelsy Loeffler followed with a drag bunt single and Helling hit a two-run double off the base of the right-center field fence. A line drive that was dropped in center field allowed Helling to score.

The Prowlers' fourth inning started with an error that eventually led to an RBI single by Amanda Timm for a 4-0 lead.

Another single-run frame in the fifth featured three straight one-out singles by Jamie Hoglo, Kindra Trontvet and DD Rambeck to load the bases. A Johnson sacrifice fly plated the run.

The Prowlers broke it open with a three-run sixth that began with an error, a single to right by pinch-hitting Jenny Grove and a two-run double to left by Chasity Johnson. A wild pitch allowed Johnson to score the final run of the game.

Bluebird houses to be built Saturday...

Woodworking/Wildlife project set at Old Mill

Construction of houses for the eastern bluebird will be a Department of Natural Resources Woodworking for Wildlife program project Saturday, April 30, at Old Mill State Park.

The event is designed as a family outing. Participants are asked to be at the park's picnic shelter at 2 p.m.

Eastern bluebird, identified by bright blue above, rusty throat and white belly, is a favorite among birding enthusiasts. Old Mill State Park has seen an increase in the eastern bluebird population, with 22 (out of 54) houses occupied by these colorful birds last year.

Old Mill State Park volunteers will be on hand April 30 to give a presentation about the eastern bluebird, how to select a site for the nesting box and how to the maintenance the birdhouse. Construction of birdhouses will follow.

All nesting box material will be precut and ready for assembly. Please call the park before April 29 so volunteers know about how many nesting boxes to have ready. Please bring your own drill (cordless preferred) if you have one, otherwise drills will be provided.

There is a limit one box per family, unless extra material is available.

The program is free and open to the public. However, a Minnesota State Park vehicle permit is required to enter the park. Vehicle permits can be purchased at the park office for $7 per day or $25 annually.

For additional information, call park manager Ryan Sansness at 218-437-8174.

TRF girls golf season under way

First-year Thief River Falls girls head high school golf coach Gary Laidley has the future in mind when he talks about his 2005 Prowlers.

"Our goal is to get the girls to enjoy the game of golf," explained Laidley. "We need to have the girls want to play some in the summer so our scores continue to drop."

The Prowlers have shown Laidley they are serious about the sport. "We have a great group of girls who are working hard in practice," he said. "Since practice started on March 29, I have already seen a difference in their scores, as well their commitment to the team and the game itself."

Thief River Falls opened the season at Thursday's Crookston Quad. Friday, the Prowlers played host to the Thief River Falls Invitational. Strong winds and low temperatures made for a less-than-comfortable tour of the Thief River Golf Club.

Alexandria hands Prowlers first loss

■ Prowlers split tennis double-dual at Detroit Lakes

Alexandria handed the Thief River Falls boys high school tennis team its first loss of the 2005 season Saturday, winning by a 7-0 margin in the first half of a boys high school tennis double-dual at Detroit Lakes.

The Prowlers bounced back with a 6-1 victory over the host Lakers, putting their record at 5-1.

"Alex has a very nice tennis team," said Thief River Falls coach Troy Hanestad. "We were really looking forward to playing them. They will probably be the best team we will see in the regular season. Unfortunately, we were missing three strong players and that forced us to move people up to higher positions in the line-up."

Unable to win a single game against Alexandria, Thief River Falls swept all four singles matches and took two of three doubles decisions against Detroit Lakes. The singles winners were Cody Bottem, Jordan Swanson, Jacob Engelstad and Joe Ihle. Doubles wins came from Chase Haviland-Jordan West and Parker Nessen-Mike Kalinoski.

"I think we made the best out of the situation and some of our younger players got some much-needed experience," said Hanestad.

Thief River Falls came up with fourth place team and individual finishes Saturday at the Perham Invitational boys high school golf tournament.

Led by medalist Tim Hoge with a one-over par 110, Fargo South won team honors by a 20-stroke margin over runner-up Moorhead, 461-481. Perham Black was third at 484, five shots better than Thief River Falls in a 22-team field.

Sjoberg was consistent, shooting a 38 on all three lay-outs for his top-four finish among 121 entries.

Tyler also cited the play of Brady Stanley, who was steady with a 39-39-43–121, and Matt Nordhagen, who played his most consistent golf of the year, with a 38-43-43–124.

F. Myrtle Vagle • 436-2133

The weather in northwest Minnesota meant business when it brought spring to the area. A couple of weeks ago, there was 2 feet of snow in the middle of the back yard and that went away and flowers are growing faster than I can remember them doing since I came here. The red bleeding heart plant is 22 inches high and all budded out. The peonies are 6-8 inches high and the tulips are budding, just not opening up for fear the deer will be unable to leave them alone. The box elder trees are in full bloom. Their yellow strands are waiting to annoy me by landing on the steps and sidewalk, only to end up under shoes that happen to step on them and end up inside the house. Next come the seeds which have a way of boring down into the ground and taking root. It takes five or six weekly lawn mowings before they decide to give up trying to become box elder trees and let the grass take the space.

I spent the best part of Saturday pruning and putting the birdhouses back in place as they were taken down to be painted last fall. Today, there are hundreds of song birds celebrating spring by exploring the hedge to make nesting places. They are dusting themselves in the fine dirt in the garden, 8 and 10 at a time like chickens and then they fly to the railroad ties that I had surrounding the whole garden plot last year, and there they sit shaking the dust out of their feathers. Oh, here comes a mother robin, which gave them the fetch and they flew away from the old crab.

The benefit supper that was held for Robert Thompson was well attended and his brother Richard from Red Lake Falls spent the last week with him in Rochester. They returned home on Sunday. This week, Robert's wife Cathy went with him. She had the time off from work. We wish them a happy wedding anniversary, which is this week.

Next Sunday, the 24th, there is going to be a benefit supper for Randy Nelson to help with his medical expenses, at the Strandquist Community Center. Let's get together at 5 to 7 o'clock and help out and also visit awhile. Thrivent is matching funds which helps.

Kenrick Anderson of Grand Forks and friend Julia from White Bear Lake visited at Paul ad Shirley Anderson's on Sunday. They visited with Eva Bernard in Karlstad. They also visited Morris and Hazel Anderson and Mark Kleinvachters.

June Kasprowicz and Kaye Turnwall cleaned the whole yard for their Mom, Judy Kleinvachter this week. Claudia Berggren of Roseau, and her daughters Jessie and Kali, visited Judy and kept the coffeepot busy. Cleaning up in the spring really is work. I'm going out now to get my exercise driving the lawn mower. I have to get rid of the long grass while it is dry.

A Flame to light the winter.

The brilliant orange bark of the Flame Compact Willow lights up the winter landscape. Unlike other Willows, the Flame Willow does not drop branches.

In addition, the Flame Willow grows in a tight oval shape, with its branches neatly upswept.

Any yard can benefit from a single Flame Willow planted in the back corner of where it will be visible from the kitchen sink or picture window.

Any farmstead will benefit from a row of Flame Willow as a windbreak along the drive. The orange splash of color from a row of Flame Willow can be seen from well over a mile away.

Melvin Bergeson discovered the Flame Willow growing in an area swamp. His wife Olga took one look at the tree and gave it the name "Flame." Since then, the Flame Willow has been lighting up yards all over Northwestern Minnesota.

In addition, the Flame has become popular in cloverleaf interchanges down in the Cities, and was recently featured in a book on landscaping for winter color published in Chicago.

School shootings: A few bad apples or a rotten orchard?

In September of 1999, James Alan Fox and Jack Levin, Lipman Family professor of criminal justice, and Levin, the Brudnick professor of sociology and criminology at Northeastern University, wrote an insightful commentary following shootings at Columbine and other notable examples of violent behavior that were taking place at the time. Their comments, some of which follow, were first published in the Boston Sunday Herald, Sept. 19, 1999.

"Predicting violent behavior, especially in rare and extreme forms, is enormously difficult," said the authors. "In terms of the few bad apple theory, there are lots of apples that are not quite perfect in color, size or shape; but are fine just beneath the skin."

Teenagers are dealing with enormous physical changes that contribute to many emotional issues. As most parents know, at some point in their development, teenagers will react to their boundaries in different ways - some dress differently, wear different hairstyles, and even say and do things that are contrary to the values they grew up with. I'm inclined to agree with these authors when they state that dressing differently, and acting differently doesn't necessarily mean the students will become schoolyard shooters. "There are lots of kids who look, act or dress like our image of the schoolyard shooter - they might wear black trench coats, scary tattoos, or gang headgear. Yet, very few of them will translate their deviant adolescent attitudes into dangerous acts of violence."

So how do we explain the tragedies that took place at Columbine or Red Lake, and can we predict violent behavior?

In our story following the shootings at Red Lake Senior High, we focused on local impact. Police Chief Kim Murphy noted that there are certain clues that will help identify when normal teenage angst may lead to extraordinary acts of violence, and we need to pay attention to those signals, some of which were described. Nevertheless, we may only have time to react. How we react is important because it may save more lives, but is there anything else we can do? Beyond making contingency plans, one of which was just exercised at Lincoln High School, I believe the most telling aspect of our story was the need for school support staff to work together, to listen, and to share information. It also stated that it's important to nurture a relationship between students and staff that makes students feel comfortable sharing information.

I don't disagree with Fox and Levin when they say the best approach to reducing the potential for violence through prediction involves reducing the caseload of teachers and guidance counselors, but I believe getting all staff actively involved in the process can go a long way to addressing the needs of students. And isn't that what we expect from staff and teachers, too?

We can search for answers that may help explain schoolyard violence, but the search may be in vain if we don't listen to students.

Building Blocks

A couple of years ago now, Bill Stock, a counselor at Lincoln High School, shared some information with me about assets all kids need. The "Building Blocks for Life: Eight Types of Assets All Kids Need," which follows, comes to us from Health Communities - Healthy Youth, a national initiative of Search Institute to unite communities for children and adolescents.

More information about this organization and its developmental assets can be found at www.search-institute.org.

The eight types of assets that all kids need are:

- Support - experiencing people and places that are accepting and loving;
- Empowerment - knowing they are valued and valuable;
- Boundaries and Expectations - understanding the limits and possibilities;
- Constructive Use of Time - being involved in enriching and structured activities;
- Commitment to Learning - believing that education is important and engaging;
- Positive Values - caring for others and holding high standards for self;
- Social Competencies - developing skills and relationships for life;
- Positive Identity - believing in their personal power, purpose and potential.

Rep. Jeff Johnson: Meth bill passes Minnesota House with bipartisan support

A bill designed to stop the spread and use of methamphetamine throughout the state authored by Rep. Jeff Johnson (R-Plymouth) passed 127-4 with bi-partisan support in the Minnesota House of Representatives Thursday.

It was the bill's last stop after three months of intense discussion and revision throughout several House committees and a March tour that brought Johnson face-to-face with police officers, drug treatment counselors, town officials and others on the frontlines of the drug that has become a plague throughout the state.

"Meth has become a plague in Greater Minnesota," said Johnson. "It is an epidemic in all parts of the state and its popularity with kids is dangerously skyrocketing. This bill is a drastic solution to a drastic problem and the first step in many to stop its spread."

Addressing the rising concerns of methamphetamine has been a major talking point during the 2005 session in both the Minnesota House and Senate. Johnson said the bill's passage was needed to put a curb on the drug that is devastating both rural Minnesota and its major cities.

The bill provides enhanced criminal penalties for meth production and distribution as well as effective treatment options for those addicted to the drug. Highlights of the bill include:

- Increases criminal penalties for meth "cooking," sale and distribution from three years/$5,000 to not more than 10 years/$20,000 for a first offense and from four years/$5,000 on a repeat offense to not more than 15 years/$30,000.
- Makes manufacturing meth, and storing chemical substances, waste products and paraphernalia in the presence of a child or vulnerable adult a felony punishable by not more than five years and/or $10,000 fine.
- Restricts access to the types of pseudoephedrine products that are used to create meth, including placing the product behind the counter and requiring sales from a pharmacist, registered pharmacy technician or a pharmacy clerk.
- Requires buyer to show a photo ID with date of birth and sign a receipt or electronic document showing the state, buyer's name and the drug amount sold.
- Limits an over-the-counter buyer to no more than six grams in a 30-day period and prohibits over-the-counter sales to anyone under 18.
- Helps law enforcement and municipalities clean up the toxic waste that meth production leaves; and
- Provides effective treatment options for those who have become addicted to meth.
- On the House floor, members overwhelmingly voted to ban the sale of the tablet form of pseudoephedrine starting in Aug. 2006.

"Meth is a widespread epidemic that is becoming one of the most dangerous drugs in history. This legislation cuts off the easy access to key meth ingredients, which we believe is a critical first step in curbing the drug's production," said House Speaker Steve Sviggum. "We are providing help for those already addicted to meth and hopefully lessening the likelihood of others becoming hooked on a drug that is destroying the lives of men, women and children in communities across the state."

Johnson said meth abuse is a statewide problem that cannot be solved by law enforcement alone.

"Our prison populations are swelling, families are being torn apart, and communities are being taxed for the human costs of these drugs," said Johnson, who hopes the passage of the bill offers hope to those afflicted by meth. "We have a responsibility as lawmakers to deal with this now, before meth abuse unnecessarily destroys yet another life."

Rep. Bernie Lieder: House's meth bill is an example of complexity in so much legislation

by Rep. Bernie Lieder
District 1B

This week, the Minnesota House of Representatives took a comprehensive bill to address the growing problem of methamphetamine use in the state. It's an important bill and addresses an important issue, particularly for those of us in rural Minnesota.

Rep. Bernie Lieder

But the bill is by no means perfect. The cost to the state is going to be extremely high – there are estimates it will have to build seven new prisons to house those convicted of manufacturing and dealing meth it puts innocent landowners at considerable risk and doesn't adequately fund treatment.

I supported the bill despite some reservations, mainly because we need to act now to address the proliferation of meth use before it gets worse.

According to Tim O'Malley, assistant superintendent of the Minnesota Bureau of Criminal Apprehension (BCA), there has been a seven-fold increase in meth related cases [illegible] ing an increase in meth addicts seeking help. In the Twin Cities, the Hazelden Foundation reported that meth addicts now represent about 10 percent of patients admitted to drug treatment programs in the area, compared with 7.5 percent a year ago and about 3 percent in 1998. About one-fifth of those users are minors.

It's no surprise then that lawmakers have been trying to figure out ways to reduce its production and use, and help addicts and families struggling with its devastating impact.

This bill will help in that regard. Part of it is based on legislation enacted in Oklahoma that has limited the production of meth by regulating the sale of the products used to manufacture it. The bill limits the sale of most products with ephedrine, pseudoephedrine and other substances used in the manufacture of meth to pharmacies and takes those products off the shelves. It also limits the amount of products an individual can purchase. The purchaser will also be required to show photo identification and sign a written log, which will be subject to inspection by the BCA.

Other proposals would treat meth sales and possession crimes the same as other drug crimes and penalties would be enhanced if children or vulnerable adults are put at risk.

[illegible] would have to pay restitution to property owners for cleanup costs.

Finally, the state Department of Health would maintain and publicize a toll-free tip line for citizens to report meth crimes, as well as finance public awareness efforts and research about the effectiveness of meth treatment programs for offenders.

All of these provisions are important. The Oklahoma experience shows that restricting access to ephedrine and other precursor products can help reduce the amount of meth produced in the state. The stiffer penalties indicate how dangerous meth is; it helps deflect the cost of cleanup, which up to now has been mostly shouldered by counties and landowners; and it protects children and vulnerable adults.

However, the bill is far from perfect. It's clear that the funding included won't come close to the actual cost, particularly when it comes to public defenders, courts and corrections. The bill also leaves landowners at considerable financial risk by holding them ultimately liable for cleanup expenses if a meth lab is set up on their property without their knowledge. Also, it's focus on locking people up, rather than addressing their addiction, will end up costing the state more in the long run.

Still, when everything was added up, this bill deserved to pass because it will help reduce the amount of meth produced in Minnesota. In the battle against meth, that's a small victory.

Sailer supports new meth bill

The House of Representatives has passed a bill aimed at reducing methamphetamine production in the state.

Rep. Brita Sailer said that it was an important first step in curbing an addition that has reached epidemic proportions in parts of the state and the nation.

"Methamphetamine addiction in Minnesota has a significant human cost," said Sailer. "But it also costs our local governments millions of dollars a year, taxes our law enforcement agencies, and chokes our prison system. And our law enforcement officers fear that for every lab they find, there may be as many as 10 more out there. This is an issue of particular concern for Greater Minnesota."

The bill as passed, is stricter than the bill passed in the Senate. It goes as far as to ban the tablet form of methamphetamine from being sold over the counter beginning in 2006. In the meantime, it requires that certain over-the-counter drugs be limited to two package maximums, requires the drugs be held behind the counter, and allows only a pharmacist or pharmacy tech to sell the drugs. It also prohibits the sale to minor age children and requires buyers to show photo identification for purchase and sign a log.

"I know as a rural legislator and resident that it is big problem," said Sailer. "Three-quarters of meth labs in the state are located in rural or semi-rural areas, and we need to get tougher."

Sailer said that she has heard from some residents that are concerned that allergy sufferers, for example, may be unfairly burdened by some of the regulations in the bill, especially in rural areas that do not have access to pharmacies.

"We will need to make some sacrifices, and because of that, the solution isn't perfect," said Sailer. "But we already make sacrifices – we make sacrifices when our law enforcement officers are tied up dealing with toxic labs and meth producers and we bear the burden of the cost of cleaning up these labs. But if we are serious about finding a solution this is a big step in the right direction. It will be a lot tougher on those who are making and selling meth and putting the lives, health and welfare of children at risk."

Thanking Tom Goddard

To the Editor:

We were sad to hear that Tom Goddard will no longer be at the Ralph Engelstad Arena in Thief River Falls. The events we attended over the past year have been so well run and so enjoyable thanks in great part to the efforts Tom put in. His ability to work with many different individuals and many different types of events, including hockey and basketball, have been such an asset for the arena and for our community as a whole. Whoever takes on this job next will indeed have huge shoes to fill. Good luck, Tom, and thanks for all your hard work.

"The board also discussed at length the possibility of cancelling the fair for the 1955 season, but because of the many legal obligations already incurred in connection with the 1955 fair, the board decided that it was compelled to continue with its plans for the 1955 fair and this event will be held as scheduled on July 11 through July 14.

"Failure to win public support for its improvement program, especially in the rural area of the county, was cited by the board in its decision to close the fair after the 1955 season.

"The board expressed its thanks to all those who worked in support of the bond issue and voted in favor of the bond issue at the polls."

"A prairie fire just west of town looked dangerous last Tuesday and the fire alarm was sounded calling out the department, who helped put it out. There was no damage done.

"We beg the indulgence of our readers this week for lack of news as the editor has had all kinds of trouble. We have had a very sick automobile on our hands which has taken considerable time. We hope to pull it through all right.

"The band boys were out last Wednesday evening and gave their first open air concert. Their hard work in practice shows in their improved playing. We understand that they intend to give an open air concert once each week during the summer.

"Attorney Frank A. Grady of Red Lake Falls was here last Tuesday looking over the village records. Mr. Grady has been employed by the village council in the tax dodging case started by J. K. Hannay, which will come up for trial before Judge Watts at Red Lake Falls on May 16. The matter will be under consideration by the village council at their meeting next Monday evening and Mr. Grady will be here again next week.

"The Big Fork Compass [newspaper] man advertises three big days for his town. On Saturday afternoon they were to have a baseball game for $25 and the gate receipts, and in the evening a glove contest [boxing] for $100 and a hospital ticket. Everybody including the editor was to attend Easter services at the churches the next day and on Monday a wedding was scheduled with a big ball to follow which was expected to break the record, and the only fly in the ointment that Brother Greeley could see was that the new jail was not completed, but he had hopes. Truly, times are good when towns are new."

Editorial Items

"It is well for the newspaper man that the baseball season starts just as the legislature adjourns.

"CROOKSTON TIMES: the Thief River Falls and Red Lake Falls papers have been too prodigious in their use of English in talking about each other. The county seat war is but started and as the fight grows warmer they will be unable to do the case justice as the entire supply of bad words had already been exhausted. It looks as though they would have to buy some Scandinavian type to relieve themselves. 'Du Gammel Skurk.'" [You old no-good dishonest rascal!]

Log Drive for St. Hilaire

"THIEF RIVER FALLS NEWS: A crew of men came up from St. Hilaire Monday to take a drive of logs from this city to that place. The low stage of water has not caused much trouble in getting logs to St. Hilaire, as the dam half way down provides sufficient heads of water to float the logs down. Below St. Hilaire, however, it is said to be a different story, and it is quite doubtful if the East Grand Forks and Crookston lumber companies will be able to get logs to their mills from the Red Lake river."

"Over one hundred river-drivers are now employed on the river between this city and the outlet bring down the drive of logs. This is by far the largest number of men ever employed, as heretofore a crew of ten or fifteen men could bring down a drive, but the low water this spring does not make it so easy."

Hearing Postponed

"The latest phase in the Red lake county seat removal case, the injunction proceeding begun by citizens of Red Lake Falls against County Auditor Ford to restrain him from filing the petition of the Thief River Falls faction, which was to have been up for a hearing in district court Saturday morning has been postponed until next Tuesday upon the petition of Thief River Falls people, who asked the court for more time to prepare themselves for the hearing.

"According to Saturday's Crookston Times, Attorneys Grady and McIntyre, of Red Lake Falls appeared there that evening for Red Lake Falls and with A. A. Miller, attorney for the Thief River Falls people, made an agreement to take up the hearing on Tuesday, May 2nd. Ira C Richardson, postmaster and attorney at law at the Upper Falls spent the evening in the city conferring with Attorney Miller in regard to the Thief River Falls side of the question.

"The complaint upon which Judge Watts issued his restraining order was made by John A Duffy, one of the Lower Falls' most prominent citizens, and he alleges that the Thief River Falls city council cut the saloon license in two, $500 being paid to the city and $500 in the county seat committee.

"The complaint is accompanied by a half dozen affidavits which state that Thief River is going to furnish a court house for ten years for $1 per year and that cigars and liquor had been used to obtain signatures on the petition. These affidavits were signed by William Shannon, Cyrille Lussier, Joseph Carrier, Adilor Gauthier, Charles Carpenter, Joseph Guerard, John Platz and James Torgerson."

May 4, 11, 2005

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS - Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received at the office of the Middle-Snake-Tamarac Rivers Watershed District, 453 North McKinley Street, Warren, Minnesota 56762 until 1:00 o'clock PM on May 25th, 2005 for the rental of fully operated excavation equipment. Proposals are being requested for tractors, mowers, draglines, dozers, scrapers, blades and crawler mounted draglines or backhoes.

The work to be done consists of, but is not limited to, the clearing and disposal of trees and brush, the removal of sediment from drainage channels, disposal of rocks, the construction of dikes, the installation of culverts, and the leveling of spoil banks. The work required and the locations of the work will be designated by the engineer of the district.

The equipment must be modern and in good operating condition and furnished with capable and experienced operators. Deficient operations or maintenance which results in reduced production or poor workmanship will be cause for contract cancellation.

All equipment proposed will be considered and evaluated based on many factors including, but not limited to the following: price, horsepower, machine rating, machine weight, track length, track width, track gauge, buckets available, boom lengths available, counter weights available and other factors.

Work will be paid by the hour and payment will be based on the actual time worked. The minimum hours per week will be 40 unless delayed by weather or equipment operating problems.

In addition to the payment for hourly work, the contractor will be eligible for a demobilization payment. The amount will be equivalent to 5 hours rental rate for each type of equipment authorized for use by the Engineer. If determined to be eligible the demobilization payment will be included in the last payment for hourly work satisfactorily completed.

The District may cancel the contract at any time without cause by paying the demobilization payment. The contractor may cancel the contract at any time without cause but forfeits the right to any demobilization payment.

The type of equipment best suited for each project is dependent on the weather and other unknown job conditions. The district intends to rent equipment which in its opinion, will perform the required work at the least cost. Its evaluation factors will depend on conditions expected and encountered which will likely change along the course of the work. The District will release and rent different equipment from time to time as it deems necessary to economically perform the required work.

The contractor, in making this proposal, promises to furnish the equipment listed for the prices shown subject to its availability. He does not promise to make or keep the equipment available to the district. He understands, however, the equipment availability may be a factor in the district's evaluation of equipment.

The contractor will be required to furnish certificates showing that he has workmen's compensation insurance and liability insurance.

The Middle-Snake-Tamarac Rivers Watershed District reserves the right to reject any and all bids and to award contracts to other than the apparent low bidder.

Dated at Warren, Minnesota this 18th day of April, 2005

$3.31 million for sludge treatment

Thief River Falls City Council hears plans for $3.31 million sludge treatment system

by April Scheinoha
Reporter

Thief River Falls City Council members heard about an estimated $3.31 million sludge treatment project at an April 26 public hearing.

"It's a fairly simple system," said Brian Bergantine of Advanced Engineering and Environmental Services Inc. of Moorhead. "It kept the maintenance and operations down."

Under the plan, the city will construct three sludge ponds to the south and to the east of the three existing sludge ponds used by the city. The current ponds, located near County Road 62, will then be used on an emergency basis.

In addition to the new sludge ponds, a new wet well and sludge lift station will be constructed. They will be located south of the distribution and maintenance garage at the water treatment plant. Two six-inch force mains will be constructed as well.

Bergantine figured the ponds could be used for 10 years, he said. After those 10 years, Bergantine said the city has options of cleaning the ponds or filling the ponds and building another set of three ponds.

Besides the cost of construction, there is the cost of land acquisition. The city plans to purchase approximately 80 acres of land. Utilities Director Arlo Rude said there will be additional land acquisition near Valley Home and Arctic Cat.

Bergantine said the city may be able to use the 80-acre site for 30 to 40 years depending upon water treatment rules and regulations.

Rude thought construction would take one summer, he said.

"We may not get money in 2007, maybe later – 2008 or 2009," said Rude, referring to the Minnesota Drinking Water Revolving Loan Fund operated by the Minnesota Department of Health and Public Facilities Authority.

The city would have to take out a loan for the entire cost of the project, Rude said April 27.

One resident attended the public meeting. Jerry Unruh said he was for the proposal and told council members to do it now before it became high priced.

City leaders began looking into sludge management alternatives in

County approves joint operations agreement

by Scott DCamp
Reporter

Last week, the Pennington County Board of Commissioners approved the co-tenancy agreement for the joint operations facility that will open next month. The faciliy will house the day to day operations of the Pennington County Highway Department, the Minnesota Department of Transportation and the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources. Its grand opening has been tentatively scheduled for early June.

Pennington County Engineer Mike Flaagen presented preliminary co-tenancy agreements at the previous two board meetings. Some of the agreement's language was questioned by board members at the April 12 meeting, especially a section that stated any decisions made regarding the facility would have to be unanimous amongst the three entities' board members, representing Pennington County, Mn/DOT (including state highway patrol) and the Minnesota DNR.

The opinion of Pennington County Attorney Dave Olin was that the stipulation requiring unanimous

Approximately 150 first graders watched and helped Mayor Dale Wennberg (left) and City Forester Myles Olson plant two greenspire linden trees Friday at Ralph Engelstad Arena. He said the trees will be 40 feet tall by the time the first graders graduate from high school.

Relay For Life honors survivors

Organizers for American Cancer Society's Relay For Life event in Pennington County are inviting all cancer survivors to join Shari Olson, Terry Soine, and Jako Philion, the community's honorary chairpersons, at this year's Relay For Life.

American Cancer Society Relay For Life represents the hope that those lost to cancer will never be forgotten, that those who face cancer will be supported, and that one day cancer will be eliminated.

Survivors Committee Co-Chairperson, Laura Brickson said that the Pennington County Relay For Life, June 10 and 11 at Lowell T. Swenson field in Thief River Falls, is trying to honor as many cancer survivors as it can this year. She encourages all cancer survivors to participate.

A variety of events are planned for the Relay For Life including a community-wide picnic, a cancer survivor's reception, and the traditional inaugural lap led by cancer survivors. Monday night, the local American Cancer Society Relay For Life committee also accepted the gift of a tree from Pennington Soil Water and Conservation District. The "tree of hope" will be planted near the Multi-Events Center and dedicated in honor of all survivors.

All survivors are invited to attend the community picnic and participate in the survivor's lap, the first lap of the all-night walk around Lowell T. Swenson field. During the opening ceremony, which will begin at about 7 p.m., these survivors will be honored. If they choose to, their names will be read along with the number of years they have been free of cancer.

Janet O'Hara, School District 564 technology assistant, operates the computer terminal in this picture. O'Hara and several other staff from Challenger Elementary School in Thief River Falls, demonstrated some of the technology at Challenger.

School Board checks out technology

Teachers are incorporating technology into every part of their lesson plans

by David Hill
Editor

Children at Challenger Elementary School in Thief River Falls have achieved far more than the skills necessary to program VCR's. With teachers incorporating technology into nearly every part of their classroom lesson plans, students are charting new territory - they're taking tests on computers, creating their own books with the use of computers and digital cameras, expanding their vocabularies and math skills on line, and receiving classroom instruction with the use of a sort of "smart" chalk board.

Last Monday, representatives of the Board of Education for School District 564 had an opportunity to see some of that technology first hand. At Challenger Elementary School, they visited with Teacher Tony Greene, Principal Patrick Marolt and Janet O'Hara, district technology assistant.

O'Hara touched the lower right-hand corner of the "smart" board and a new page noiselessly flipped open, like a new page of a book. No chalk. No eraser. No dust. This is just one part of the technology puzzle that's helping educate students at the school.

O'Hara is Challenger Elementary School's computer geek - no offense meant. If there's a problem with a computer, or more likely a problem with the computer operator, staff at Challenger Elementary School call Janet. She fixes problems. She also writes grants - lots of grants. O'Hara thinks of it as "free money" and she said she likes to shop when she has free money.

These grants, and as O'Hara will admit, the strong and supportive backing of administration and a group of tech-interested staff, have made it possible for the school to purchase computers, software, digital cameras, the "smart board," Palm pilots, and iPods. Yes, there are even plans to use iPods for educational purposes.

Teacher Tony Greene said the children are fascinated by the technology and are eager to use it. Whether they realize it or not, he said, they're learning.

New software is also making it possible for students and teachers to navigate the wave of new technology and programs. Earlier this year, the school introduced Atomic Learning, an online software tutorial resource. It's available to the students and their families, in school and at home. Need to know how to cut and paste in Word? Need to know who to make a PowerPoint presentation? Need to type in a formula in Microsoft Excel? Students, and parents can go to the Atomic Learning Web site, type in their question, and watch a narrated movie that shows the viewer how to accomplish the task.

19 people died on state's roads in April

On Monday, the Minnesota Department of Public Safety (DPS) announced that preliminary Minnesota State Patrol traffic crash reports indicate 19 people died in 15 crashes and 19 were seriously injured on the state's roads in April.

The deaths include 16 vehicle occupants, two motorcyclists and one pedestrian. Of the 16 vehicle occupants killed, 10 were not wearing seat belts – six were ejected from the vehicle.

The State Patrol has reported 33 traffic deaths in January, 21 deaths in February and 19 deaths in March. To date in 2005, the statewide preliminary traffic death number is 145.

In April, nine motorists and one pedestrian died in Greater Minnesota. Seven motorists and two motorcyclists died in the metro region. There were five deaths in Dakota County, two fatalities each in Hennepin, Meeker and Sherburne counties; and one death each in Carver, Crow Wing, Freeborn, Houston, Nobles, Pope, Ramsey and Rock counties.

"It's vital to take one simple precaution when you get in a vehicle – buckle up," said Col. Steve Mengelkoch, State Patrol chief. "If you're in a traffic crash and you're not belted, there's a good chance that you will be ejected."

Impaired driving accounted for two deaths; four additional fatal crashes are under investigation to determine if alcohol was involved.

Of the fatal crashes, four crashes were rollovers. Males represented 13 of the fatalities. People 30 or younger represented seven of the deaths and 15 of those seriously injured.

In other State Patrol activity, troopers conducted 20 pursuits, reported 69 wrong-way driver cases and made 43 [illegible] arrests.

IRS Taxpayer Advocacy Panel seeks taxpayers' opinions

With the April 15 tax deadline over, the IRS wants to focus on a tax issue that affects Americans year-round: the Alternative Minimum Tax (AMT). The IRS' Taxpayer Advocacy Panel (TAP) wants to hear what taxpayers think about the AMT.

TAP, a federal advisory citizen committee, invites taxpayers to attend a teleconference to discuss and comment on the AMT on May 9 at 2 p.m. To participate in the teleconference, call 1-888-912-1227.

TAP is a nationwide panel of 100 volunteers who are appointed by the secretary of the treasury. These volunteers identify issues which are important to the taxpayer and then make recommendations about IRS decision making. TAP has membership from all 50 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico. The May 9 teleconference will include TAP members from Minnesota, Nebraska, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas.

As part of its multi-year work on AMT, TAP seeks input from citizens about their experiences with AMT. The AMT is an alternative federal income tax to the regular income tax. Under the regular income tax system, personal exemptions, standard deductions and tax rate brackets increase based on the rate of inflation. However, unlike the regular income tax, the AMT has never been adjusted for inflation, and, because of this, an estimated 33 to 35 million taxpayers will pay AMT by 2010 in place of the regular income tax. Included among the AMT payers in 2010 will be 43 percent of taxpayers with incomes between $50,000 and $75,000, 79 percent in the $75,000 to $100,000 income bracket, and 95 percent of those earning between $100,000 and $500,000.

Written comments can also be provided by faxing them to (414) 297-1623 or mailing them to Taxpayer Advocacy Panel, Mail Stop 1006MIL, 310 W. Wisconsin Ave., Milwaukee, WI 53222. Comments can also be submitted through the TAP Web site (www.improveirs.org).

New fertilizer law restricts use

As Minnesotans head outside to start their spring yard work, the Minnesota Department of Agriculture (MDA) reminds homeowners of a new state law restricting the use of lawn fertilizers containing phosphorus.

Seeking to improve the water quality of Minnesota's lakes and waterways, state legislators passed a law last year that requires most lawn fertilizers used in Minnesota to be phosphorus-free as of Jan. 1, 2005. While phosphorus is necessary to grow healthy lawns, soils in many parts of Minnesota already have more than enough of it. When phosphorus is applied where it is not needed, it can move into nearby waterways where it encourages the growth of algae. Too much algae, in turn, lowers oxygen levels and harms fish populations.

There are a few exceptions to the new law. Fertilizers with phosphorus may be used on lawns if a soil test indicates it is needed or if a new lawn is being established. In addition, these restrictions do not apply to fertilizers for agricultural crops, gardening or for application by trained staff on golf courses.

Consumers can verify they are using phosphorus-free fertilizer by checking the product label. Any bag of fertilizer has a series of three numbers. The middle number indicates phosphate content and should read "0."

According to MDA Water Quality Advisor Jerry Spetzman, there are a number of other steps homeowners can take to keep phosphorus out of their beloved lakes.

"Fertilizers, leaves, grass clippings, eroded soil and pet waste are all potential phosphorus sources," Spetzman said. "Besides following the new fertilizer law, Minnesotans can protect water quality by keeping leaves and lawn clippings out of gutters, streets and driveways. It's also a good idea to control soil erosion in your yard, pick up pet waste promptly and clean up fertilizer that spills on your driveway or other hard surfaces."

For more information about lawn care and the phosphorus fertilizer law, visit the MDA Web site at www.mda.state.mn.us/[illegible]

School Board checks out technology

Not all of the teachers are on board with the technology - yet. Greene and Challenger Principal Patrick Marolt said that they haven't taken any steps that could be construed as forcing teachers to incorporate the technology into their classrooms. They said it appears, however, that teachers are being gradually won over by successful results.

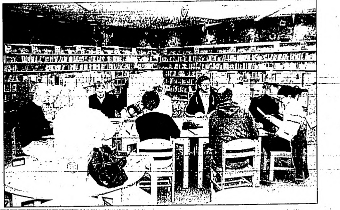
Recently, School Board representatives had an opportunity to try out some of the technology, including laptop computers operating on wireless network (a wireless modem allows students to operate computers and access the Internet without cables). With additional motivation in the form of M&Ms, the representatives on the Board of Education watched a film of students investigating the relationship between a sample size of M&Ms and reliability of predictions, converting fractions to decimals and decimals to percentages. They were also able to test out an iPod. Most of the representatives were content to just put in an earpiece from the iPod and listen to the music for a short period; but, School Board Representative Randy Twistol began curiously poking and pushing buttons. The sudden loudness of the music startled Twistol so much he jumped from his seat – Aerosmith, I think.

But teachers and administrators say the use of modern technology by young students comes with an important caveat - children are very advanced and sometimes find themselves in difficult situations.

Greene said, don't fool yourself into believing, that they're using the computer just for educational purposes all the time. Even fifth graders, he said, are in chat rooms.

Challenger Elementary School has filters, and monitors watching the children all the time, and teachers say what sites they can visit while researching projects, but they say they recognize the fact that it's impossible to manage or monitor their activity all the time, especially at home. Greene urges parents to educate their children. He said that if parents can tell them to not talk to strangers, or accept candy from strangers, they can monitor their computer use. Not only can and should parents monitor their child's computer use, software exists that can help parents keep track of what's happening on their computers.

School Board representatives are expected to be at their regular meeting place at the School District Service Center during its next regular meeting. That meeting has been scheduled for 6:30 p.m. on May 9.



School Board 564 representatives met in Challenger Elementary School's media center to complete some of their regular business after a technology demonstration at the school on Monday, April 25.

Working together

votes for action to take place, actually benefits the county more than it hurts it.

The property and facility will be governed by a management committee, which is responsible for the operation and resolution of issues. Each party will have one representative on the committee, with initial members being the Mn/DOT regional engineer, the Pennington County engineer and DNR area hydrologist. Members can be changed periodically.

The management committee will manage standards and responsibilities for use and operation of the facility, the signage of property and facility parking, the payment of shared supplies and procedures for day-to-day decision making. And as was stated earlier, all decisions need to be unanimous.

Also under the agreement, all parties will have equal access to and use of the property. No party's access and use of the property may interfere with access and use of any other party. All parties will have equal access to shared areas.

The parties will share the costs of janitorial service and maintenance, including snow and ice removal.

Engineer's items

• A motion was carried by the board to reject all bids for crack sealing project 57-05-06. Bids were received at the April 12 Pennington County Board meeting. However, the legal notice advertising the bid letting listed that bids needed to be received by 10 a.m. on April 23, rather than the actual date of April 12.

• The board set the next road committee meeting for May 9.

• The board agreed to raise the salary of the county engineer by $2,000 annually.

County board and Human Services support Valley Home project. The Pennington County Board approved a resolution supporting Valley Home Assisted Living's loan application for the construction of a 24-unit assisted living dementia facility last week. A letter received by the Pennington County Department of Welfare and Human Services stated that Valley Home has filed an application for financial assistance with the USDA, Rural Development, for the construction of the assisted living dementia facility. The letter stated that there is a need for this type of facility within the city of Thief River Falls as well as its surrounding area.

Both the board and Pennington County Department of Welfare and Human Services signed letters of support for the proposed project.

Fair board makes almost $40,000 worth of improvements in 2004. Ray Safranski, president of the Pennington County Fair Board presented the Fair Association's annual report and schedule of cash receipts and expenditures budget for 2005. Safranski said the Fair Association essentially broke even for total receipts and expenditures in 2004. Included in expenditures are $40,000 worth of improvements and grand stand payments.

"It was as good financially as we could expect," said Safranski, also noting that the county fair budget needs to be conservative because of the threat of rain. Safranski also noted that grandstand debt is down to $20,000.

Board approves solid waste purchase of glass crusher. Costing approximately $2,500, the crusher will be able to crush glass into one-inch pieces. Pennington County discontinued its glass collection when composting ceased at the compost facility in 2003.

Solid waste items

• Person reported that he is receiving bids to repair portions of the roof at the Pennington County Solid Waste Transfer Station. The new roof is expected to have more pitch, with eaves covering the east door.

• Person reported that exit lights at the transfer station have been repaired under budget.

• Person said he is still looking for bids on the loadout area of the transfer station.

• The sale of the Pennington County compost facility reached an impasse according to Auditor Ken Olson. A discrepancy exists in the description of the property according to an appraiser of the site. The site will likely need to be surveyed for an accurate description, before an accurate appraisal and sale can be completed.

Other items

• The board approved a joint meeting between the Pennington County Board of Commissioners and the Red Lake Falls County Board on Tuesday, May 3. The two boards will meet to discuss a potential agreement in which Pennington County would provide jail services for Red Lake County. Currently Red Lake County uses the Tri-County facility in Crookston for jail services.

• The board approved a contribution of up to $700 for the purchase and planting of trees by the city of Thief River Falls.

The next regular meeting of the Pennington County Board of Commissioners will be May 10.

LHS envirothon teams place

"We had an excellent showing," said Envirothon advisor Patti Johnson. "It's exciting to see hard work pay off. We always strive to do the best we can when we get to the competition."

So what is the secret to Lincoln's storied success at Envirothon events? Some believed Lincoln has been successful because it teaches envirothon as a class. That rumor was quickly dispelled by Johnson following the announcement of the final scores. Johnson said that the Lincoln Envirothon teams practice one day a week, bright and early to avoid conflicting activities. Beyond that the teams' success can be attributed to hard work outside of school.

One of Lincoln's state qualifying teams almost didn't even compete in the envirothon. Lincoln 29 only practiced together for a short time prior to competition, making its third place finish quite an accomplishment.

"I'm really proud of the team that took third, because they just came on board two weeks ago," Johnson said.

The 2005 Envirothon was another close call for Grygla, who sent six teams to the area competition. For the second consecutive year, its top team finished just one placement away from reaching the state competition.

One first in the 2005 Envirothon, was the tie between Lincoln 28 and Grygla 15 in the oral presentation competition. Though the presentation counts towards a team's total score, it is also judged as a separate competition, with trophies being awarded to the top team. This year, Lincoln 28 and Grygla 15 were each awarded a score of 38.5 for their oral presentations. Each team represented its oral presentation, this time with all eight judges present. Each team scored lower the second time around. Lincoln 28 scored a 37.5, while Grygla 15 scored a 36.

The three Lincoln High School teams will compete at the Minnesota State Envirothon on May 18 at Kathio State Park.

be served. The following students, taught by Connie Stock, will read their poetry, short stories, and essays: Lisa Watts, Sara Kalinoski, Jillian Larson, Alissa Langan, Tate Sorvig, Ryan Josephson, Ben Willis, Bill Kezar, Tammy Mehrkens, Kelsey Hoglo, Serena Kopecky, Ana Olson, Stephanie Liden and Kasey Iverson. Some of the pieces are Bemidji State University award winners, and the literary arts publication "Another Runway" will be available.

Communication In Action students will be performing selected pieces from Edgar Lee Masters' Spoon River Anthology at 8 p.m., in the auditorium. In Spoon River Anthology, the American poet Edgar Lee Masters creates a series of compelling free-verse monologues in which former citizens of a mythical Midwestern town speak from the grave about the hopes and dreams of their lives. Twenty-eight individual voices will be heard. Alternately plaintive, anguished, angry and contemptuous, the small town American voices of Spoon River evoke themes of love and hope, disappointment and despair, and anger and rage that are universal and timeless.

Besides performing the collection of poems, the Communication In Action students will display several other projects which they have been working on throughout the semester. These projects will demonstrate the students' understanding and comprehension of the basic principles of stage make-up, as well as set and costume design. Students participating in "An Evening with the Arts" are Chance Chambers, Harlina Carpenter, Ana Hibbert, Alicia Hoff, Amanda Franks, Laura Paulson, and Nathan Skalarsky. Rosaline Groven is the instructor of the Communication in Action course.

Media Arts students, taught by Alice Hofstad, will also have work from photography and graphic design classes on display throughout the evening. Photo Club will have photography on display, including several award-winning projects. Amanda LeTourneau, a magnet arts student, will also be presenting her work.

"An Evening with the Arts" is a dynamic way to share the work of Lincoln High School's talented, creative, imaginative, and skilled artists in an intimate and personal environment. Come for the whole evening or just for a moment; all events are free to the public in appreciation for on-going support of the arts programs.

...How do you go to the bathroom, part II

Here is the rest of the column I wrote about babysitting my grandchildren when they were two and four. It's especially for you mothers, who do this day in and day out until the kids grow up. How do you do it? How did I do it?

What are those sippy cups? I'm beginning to think they are replacements for pacifiers and bottles. There were sippy cups all over the house, filled with various liquids. My daughter has a whole chunk of her cupboard filled with sippy cups, but I still found myself washing them constantly. I would find them in the strangest places in the house and I never knew what was in them. If I couldn't identify what was in it, I threw the contents away and washed the cup. And those sippy cups are different. I pulled out all the little innards and washed them well and dried them. Then, like puzzles, I had to try to figure out how to put them back together again. Some of them didn't get put back together at all. I just stuffed them into the cupboard in pieces.

Speaking of puzzles, what do people do with toys nowadays? I know kids are supposed to have educational toys, but it seems that those educational toys have so many pieces - all those puzzle pieces and letters and numbers. And of course you want to bring out the artist in the kids with crayons and chalk and paints and markers and chalkboards and coloring books and stuff like that, and those kids must have a hundred books - each. People need entire rooms filled with shelves to keep all the toys that children have. No wonder houses are getting bigger. (And isn't it true that the kids' favorite toys are still the one-piece ones, like Woody from Toy Story or the little toy lawnmower or the "Lambie" stuffed toy?)

But speaking of "Lambie," I think, between the two of those kids, they have every stuffed animal ever made - and every one of them is adorable. How can anybody throw out something so cute and soft and sweet? My grandson has his bed filled with stuffed toys, each in its own particular place because if they weren't he wouldn't be able to fit into it. As it is, he sleeps in a tiny spot right down the middle of all the stuffed animals. Heaven help me if I put one of those animals in the wrong spot. But these stuffed toys take up shelves and shelves, even though my daughter tries to pack some of them away sometimes and rotate them. You know what? I think those toys are getting very friendly in those tote boxes and producing more little stuffed toys. That's what I think.

Do you mothers ever read an entire novel for the fun of it? I don't mean you have to read it all in one sitting, but do you ever get one finished before the kids are in school? I had a book along when I went to babysit. I think I read six pages of it. The only time I had to read was once I got into bed and before I fell asleep, and believe me, that wasn't a very long time with the interesting days I was having.

We watched some television. Do mothers ever get to watch anything but cartoons? I got to know all of the characters on all of the cartoons. I got to enjoy the cartoons. I enjoyed them so much that one day I realized I was sitting in the living room by myself watching cartoons and laughing rather loudly at them while the kids had disappeared into one of the bedrooms and gotten into mischief with their mother's jewelry box. I had been entirely engrossed in a "Thornberry" cartoon. Amazing! It's really a cute cartoon, by the way, but I'm sure you know that.

Being with preschoolers seems to be a world in itself. Half the time I didn't know what day it was. I didn't know anything about what was happening in the world because I didn't have time to read the papers and, as I said, I watched cartoons and didn't see a news broadcast at all. Sometimes I had no idea what time it was. If I had any time to myself, I took a nap. I needed all the rest I could get, believe me.

I certainly didn't have time to try to look presentable. I was lucky if I got a shower - usually I was too tired to take one at night and couldn't get one in the morning before the kids got up. And forget about make-up or hair. I was lucky if I got my face washed and my teeth brushed. Once my granddaughter and I got into her mother's make-up. She helped me put some on too. My granddaughter looked cute. I didn't.

The first thing I did when I got done babysitting and got home was turn the television on to the news and read the paper - in the bathroom.

Happy Mother's Day all you moms - I still don't know how you do it.

A chainsaw provides some with an intoxicating sense of power

Last summer, I cranked up the chainsaw and wreaked havoc on the oak trees that stood where my new house was to be built.

Killing old oak trees goes against my religion - but in order to put up a house in the woods, I told myself, you have to clear a little spot in the woods. I still felt uneasy each time ninety years of accumulated growth crashed to the ground.

A freshly sharpened chainsaw goes through oak like a hot knife through butter. As those heavy trees fell and shook the ground around, I felt like a bull in nature's china closet. It was difficult not to get intoxicated by the sense of power I had when I revved up the saw.

With our magical machines, we can destroy old stuff easily and quickly. Unfortunately, our mechanical wizardry often goes to our head and we go on wild rampages, destroying things for no real reason.

Perhaps there is a real reason. There are men, and it is almost always men, who become so frustrated with their miserable lot in the world that they seek out some dramatic way of displaying dominance over some other living thing. When they get a chainsaw in their hands, they go nuts.

The first tree they saw down is their mother-in-law. Take that, you miserable wretch! The second is their boss. Boom, down he goes. The third is the government, the fourth the Iraqi resistance, the fifth those blasted Green Bay Packers, and on and on.

You know very well that if we had to take down every big tree with an axe, as they did in the old days, there would be a lot more old trees left. With an axe, you'd have all of your enemies slain before the first tree even tottered.

In my professional capacity as a tree peddler, I frequently get calls from distraught people who came home from work one day to find that some thick-headed road crew has cut down a treasured row of trees on their land for no reason.

In one case last spring, a rampaging road crew bulldozed 50 mature oak that were clearly outside of their right of way. They were on a roll, having fun with their machines. Not even legal boundaries could stop them.

Whenever a road crew spins out of control, the company has their customer relations schmoozer apologize to the poor landowner and generously offer to purchase replacements. Yep, just call your local tree peddler and see what replacements will cost and we'll take care of it. We're very sorry for any inconvenience we may have caused, and thank you for your understanding.

That's when I go ballistic. Replacements for 90-year old oak? Are you kidding? They cannot be replaced! We'll all be worm food by the time the replacement oak trees reach any size.

No, I tell people who have needlessly lost old trees, what you need to do is find the slipperiest tort lawyer around - the one with the biggest ads in the phone book - and sue for a quarter million dollars.

And that's just for the trees. Then you add on pain and suffering, loss of future shade, loss of protection from the wind, psychological damage, lack of trees for grandchildren to climb, loss of future firewood, whatever you can come up with to jack up your demands to the highest level.

Nobody likes sue-happy lawyers, but the fact remains: The only way to knock sense into a large company is to threaten it with financial disaster. Slippery sue-happy lawyers are good for that, if nothing else.

If a court handed down a $500,000 settlement to a little old lady who lost her favorite oak, you might hear Paul Harvey denounce the settlement as ridiculous, but you can also bet that those boys on the road crew would be put on a tighter leash.

After sawing down some old trees myself last summer, I can see why some people get carried away when destroying living things. It does give one a sense of power, the same sick but intoxicating sense of power one gets while pulling the legs off a spider.

People in such a state are a hazard to society and should be constrained.

Wold participates in State FFA/Farm Bureau meet

Matt Wold of the Lincoln High School FFA Chapter recently participated in the fourth State FFA/Farm Bureau Discussion Meet.

Wold, along with Michael Kitchell of the Ada-Borup FFA Chapter, represented Region 1. They were among 14 regional winners from across the state who competed at the Minnesota State FFA Convention April 24 at the Continuing Education Center Building on the University of Minnesota campus.

Topics of discussion for this year's event included: What effect will country of origin labeling have on American agriculture and what are the challenges for maintaining or expanding production agriculture in the United States?

Students participated in two rounds and were judged on their basic knowledge of critical farm issues and their ability to exchange ideas and information in a setting aimed at cooperative problem solving. This year's winner was Peter Thome of the Southland-Adams FFA Chapter. Second place went to Dan Pohlman of the Russel-Tyler-Ruthton FFA Chapter. The top two FFA students received a scholarship sponsored by the Minnesota Farm Bureau Foundation to attend the FFA Leadership Conference held in Washington, D.C.

The Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation's Young Farmers and Ranchers Committee and Minnesota Farm Bureau Foundation worked with the Minnesota FFA to sponsor the competition at this year's FFA state convention.

ACTIVITIES

Hold Everything!

Proud parents are sure to display these personalized pencil holders at work or at home. And as a bonus, each one is easy and inexpensive to make! Cut a light-colored piece of construction paper to match the height and diameter of a plastic container. (A powdered drink mix container works well.) Use crayons to decorate the paper. If desired, use craft glue to attach a school photo to the paper. Laminate the paper with clear contact paper, then wrap it around the container and secure it with clear tape. Your little ones will present these gifts with love.

PARENTING TIPS

Raising Responsible Children

Developing responsibility in children is important to most of today's parents. However we parents do not always agree on what responsibility means or on what is appropriate to expect of children at different ages. So before we can look at how to encourage responsibility, we need to examine what it means and how it differs from obedience.

Two distinctions between responsibility and obedience are "who decides that the child will do the task" and "where the motivation for completing it originates." With obedience, the child is expected to do what he or she is told. Obedience needs no agreement on the part of the child. Responsibility, however, involves the child's acceptance of the task and motivation for finishing the job. People act responsibly when they choose what to do and motivate themselves to get it done.

Children need to learn that there is a time and a place for both responsibility and obedience. We parents can help children learn this if we are first clear in our own minds about what we want. Sometimes we say to children, "Will you pick up your toys?", which involves a choice and some responsibility when we really mean, "Pick up your toys!" (Obedience, no choice.)

Next week: More thoughts on responsibility.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Talk to your child about what you expect him or her to do. Use simple words that your young child can understand.

A perilously close brush with death

Sixty years ago this week on May 3, 1945, B-29 Crew 2 of the 43rd Bomb Squadron, 29th Bomb Group had a perilously close brush with disaster. I was the radio operator on that crew. We flew out of Guam in the Marianas Islands and were participating in the air offensive against Japan. This mission would be our 15th. We would complete our tour with 35 missions by the end of July.

At that time, the U.S. Navy had hundreds of ships deployed off the coast of Okinawa, Japan, in preparation for the invasion of that island. They were suffering heavy damage from attacks by the Japanese Kamikaze (Divine Wind) suicide aircraft flying out of the southern Japanese islands. U.S. Navy Admiral Nimitz asked our 20th Air Force Commander, Gen. Curtis LeMay, if we could help by having our B-29s take out some of those bases. LeMay agreed to help. Our squadron's target May 3 was one of those facilities, Tachiarai Airbase on Kyushu, the southernmost Japanese island.

We were not flying our own B-29 that day. Ours was down for repair. We "borrowed" the aircraft belonging to Lt. Crowe's crew. We took off in the early morning hours May 3 and flew alone up to Japan, a distance of some 1,400 or 1,500 miles. We could get by with this single plane flying since there were no enemy installations enroute now that Iwo Jima had been secured. Once we reached our rendezvous point just off the coast, we began flying a "two-minute square" while the rest of our squadron aircraft found us and came together as a bombing as a bombing formation in preparation for going in on the target.

We had been there just a short while when several enemy Tony fighters found us and attacked our formation. Lt. Orba Malone, our pilot, alerted Lt. Al Sutherland, our bombardier, in the nose section. He said, "Al, there's one coming in at 12 o'clock." Al, who could control the forward 50-caliber guns from his position, replied, "I don't see him." Malone countered with, "Well, you'd better, he's barrelin' right in on us!" The rate of closure between our two aircraft was incredible and before Al could get him in his sights, the Tony closed in and fired several 20-mm tracer shells at our B-29. Just as that Tony was upon us, First Lt. Harry Hayes, our aircraft commander who was flying the aircraft, pushed the yoke forward and put into a quick steep dive. It no doubt saved our lives because the Tony went over us, missing us by just a few yards while almost causing a midair collision. Malone didn't doubt that the Tony had tried to ram us.

At that point, we did not know that four of those 20-mm shells had struck our airplane or what damage they had caused. However, we realized very shortly that one of them had caused a serious problem. We had taken a hit in the No. 3 engine, and it began to wind up at ever increasing revolutions per minute. Tech. Sgt. Andy Richardson, our engineer, tried to feather the prop to no avail. He tried to shut down that engine – no luck. It was out of control. Only the wind controlled it. We had a "runaway" engine. As it wound up, it made a high-pitched whine, which sounded scary.

We dropped out of formation and aborted the mission. At that point, the disabled engine lost its 40 gallons of oil. The hub of the prop was cherry red from the friction. The leaking oil seeped back on the red-hot cylinders and caused a trail of thick, black smoke from our aircraft, which made for an ominous scene as we left the area. We set out, heading for Iwo Jima, which was about 600 miles away. Richardson and Hayes tried to slow down our airspeed as much as possible so as to slow down the wildly spinning prop. We were at a point where we seemed to be floating in the air. Along the way, we toggled our bomb load on a place called Kasawashima.

Malone called out, "Mayday, mayday" on the voice radio, which was a no-no because we were supposed to observe strict radio silence. I got a position report from our navigator, Lt. Gus Meyland, and sent a position report in plain language – another no-no. We assumed it was all right to ignore the rules if you're in deep trouble! There were U.S. submarines operating in that area, which could rescue downed American flyers if they could reach them in time. We were hoping they had received our distress calls.

Most of us were helpless to do anything to improve our situation. The crew in the rear compartment were CFC Gunner Paul Truax, Right and Left Gunners Mark Marty and Pappy Maxey, Tail Gunner Mick McCarthy and Radar Observer Lt. Warren Parker. Through the camera hatch, they began throwing out any loose gear that might fly around the cabin if we had to ditch it in the ocean.

So there we were – 11 20-somethings trapped in that big aluminum tube. Outside we had an 865-pound, 16-foot, four-blade out-of-control prop winding up to possible 5,000 or 6,000 revolutions per minute – triple the normal revolutions.

Our immediate objective was to touch down safely at Iwo Jima, that three square mile pile of volcanic ash sticking out of the Pacific Ocean. That was two or three hours away. In the meantime, if that prop came off, it could move to the left just 12 inches and slice into the fuselage right at my radio operator's position with possible dire consequences. If it moved to the right, it could become entangled in the No. 4 engine, possibly disabling that engine. If that happened, we would probably not stay airborne and we would have to bail out as our airplane plunged toward the ocean. We were mere inches from a possible mechanical calamity.

Hayes asked Richardson to open the front wheel well cover on the flight deck so that we could save a few seconds if a bail out became the only option. Meyland opined later that when he saw those white caps down on that ocean, it "looked mighty cold."

Finally after some 15 or 20 minutes, which seemed like hours of white-knuckle anxiety, a miracle happened. The engine got so hot that it stuck, and the propeller twisted off. It went neither right nor left. Praise the Lord, it spun off straight ahead without putting so much as a scratch on the airplane! It shot straight ahead for several hundred feet, flattened out, and dropped into the Pacific.

> "So there we were – 11 20-somethings trapped in that big aluminum tube."

At our pre-mission briefings, our group chaplain, Capt. Schmidke, always ended his prayer by asking God for his "divine watch care and guidance" on our upcoming mission. Believe you me, Crew 2 did indeed have God's divine watch care and guidance on that day!

You cannot imagine the profound feeling of relief that overtook me, and I'm sure the other 10 crew members, when that spinning prop twisted off and left the airplane unscathed. With a much less charged atmosphere onboard, we proceeded toward Iwo Jima when another problem arose. Richardson tried to transfer fuel from the auxiliary fuel tanks to the main tanks to insure that we had enough fuel to make our destination. He discovered the fuel transfer system was not functioning! Not to worry, we made it with probably a 30-minute fuel supply left, according to Richardson's calculations. We had to abandon that airplane on Iwo Jima. I believe we were told that it was just shoved aside to be used for spare parts.

We stayed overnight at Iwo Jima and commandeered another repaired B-29 to fly back to Guam the next morning. When we arrived at Guam, we discovered we had not been reported as having landed at Iwo Jima the day before. As a result, we were considered to be missing in action for a day. And another crew had taken possession of our revetment (parking area)! We were happy to be back to reclaim our old space again.

Not too many years ago, I made an attempt to learn what happened to our beloved B-29, No. 42-93927. I was told it probably was sent to the scrap heap in the early 1950s, probably to be cannibalized for parts and left to rot away in some airplane graveyard. However, there is still one piece left of that reliable old bird.

During one of our earlier night missions, we took several flak hits and one small hole in the fuselage had a piece of aluminum skin peeled back from the hole. I noticed it after we landed and tore it off to keep it as a memento. I still have it.

And we are responsible for another B-29 part that we're sure still exists to this day. That would be that wayward propeller, which flew off our airplane on May 3, 1945, and which for 60 years has laid on the ocean floor somewhere between Japan and Iwo Jima. It will rest there for eternity in that watery grave.

Planning your estate

by Gerald Ausmus
Farm Business Management, Baudette

In Farm Business Management, we do a lot of work preparing budgets, formulating cash flow plans and analyzing enterprises, but not enough time is given to estate planning. Some of the tools used for this process of transferring assets and property upon death are living trusts, payable-on-death (POD) or transfer-on-death (TOD) accounts, and simple wills.

Living trusts are an efficient and effective way to transfer property, upon your death, to the relatives, friends or charities you've chosen. A living trust performs the same function as a will, with the important difference being that property left by a will must go through the probate court process and all of its costs.

By contrast, property left by a living trust can go promptly and directly to your inheritors. They don't have to bother with a probate court proceeding. That means they won't have to spend any of the estate value to pay court costs and lawyer's fees. A trust, like a corporation, is an intangible legal entity.

The first step in creating a living trust is to prepare and sign a document called a Declaration of Trust. Once you create and sign the Declaration of Trust, the trust exists and you can transfer property to it. The persons creating the trust are known as the grantors. There must be a person(s) in charge of this property called the trustee(s). With traditional trusts, the trustee manages the property on behalf of someone else called the beneficiary(ies).

There are many types of trusts. One of the common ones used by many for passing property to their beneficiaries is called an AB Trust. It is designed to split a couple's estate and thus subject less of the estate to capital gains and Estate Taxes. While both spouses are living, the trust is considered revocable, meaning that it can be changed and property can be added or taken out of the trust. Once one spouse dies, the trust becomes irrevocable. The surviving spouse has substantial rights to the trust property without becoming the legal owner of it. Under IRS rules, the surviving spouse can have the rights to use the trust property, receive all income from it and spend trust principal for "support, health, education, or maintenance in accord with his or her accustomed manner of living."

One of the advantages of property placed in a revocable living trust is that it gets a stepped-up tax basis when you die, thus avoiding capital gains. The basis of real estate is its purchase price plus the cost of any capital improvements, less any depreciation. Once you know your properties' basis, you subtract that figure from what you sell the property. The result is your taxable profit.

Estate planning is fairly complex, but there are many fine books available that will point you in the right direction before you consult with your legal adviser. Much of the information I have shared with you comes from a book entitled "Make Your Own Living Trust," by Attorney Denis Clifford. It comes with a number of forms on CD-ROM for you to start your estate planning.

Even if you do not want to make a trust, at least contact all of your investment companies, property titles and life insurance companies, and check on your beneficiaries. This should be done periodically as changes occur. I found on several of mine that I had my dad listed as a beneficiary, and he has been deceased since 1989. For money market accounts, annuities and stocks, you can fill out forms that make them POD or TOD. Most financial institutions won't provide you with the forms unless you ask for them.

You may want to include the term "per stirpes" after each of your children's names. "Per stirpes" is a term used to indicate that you want your money or estate to go to your children's children in the event of your child's death. This is a way to make sure none of your inheritors are left out of their share of your money or estate.

Once the forms are filled out and the beneficiaries listed, the forms are returned to the companies. They will then put the forms in your file and send you a copy to be placed in your safety deposit box.

A backup will is used to handle property that is not placed in the trust, such as vehicles, household goods and smaller items. It is not my intention to tell you how to set up a living trust, but to get you to look into planning your estate. For further information on estate planning, contact the Farm Business Management program near you at 1-800-959-6282.

Elegy for inspirational paraphernalia

The world is your oyster. Carpe Diem. When life gives you a lemon, make lemonade. Insert another analogy, metaphor or catchy saying here. May is the month of final speeches to the graduating class, and it seems like all of the inspirational messages pile up like the infinite amount of catalogs with shoes and bedspreads; when the first catalog comes in the mail, the pages are new and unique. Then the originality of the merchandise and layout wears off when seven other catalogs find their way to the mailbox. It is the same with quotes and stories for graduation time every coffee-table book starts out with good intentions, but as we all know, the road to Hades is paved with those. I do not mean to banish "Chicken Soup for the Soul" to Hades. I simply think that graduation, along with Valentine's Day, Thanksgiving, Easter and pretty much every holiday listed on freebie calendars, has been turned into a market for certain companies to tap into and eventually destroy.

Maybe this mountain I have created is actually a molehill, but stay with me for a moment and I will propose my wild and crazy scheme to take back graduation and weed out all of the clichés. First of all, I think seniors should not be forced to listen to more than one inspirational speech. We are in inspirational overload, and most of us cannot process more than one heartfelt thought per week. Secondly, I believe that instead of just the physical recognition of graduation, also known as the diploma, I think there should be an emotional or mental recognition. Unfortunately, the best way to insure that every senior has a Moment of Awe would be to telepathically communicate this would eliminate the crying and incessant talking, and we could simply sense the true meaning of graduation and life. Of course, if we could telepathically communicate, we could also remove any useless inspirational messages. Finally, I think we should all attend some sort of retreat and participate in activities such as the Leap of Faith, which is the activity often seen in movies and on television where a person free-falls backward and is caught by a crowd of peers. Maybe with this, I have crossed the threshold into the land of clichés, but it would be wonderful to share a moment with 150-some classmates. Then, this moment would trigger us all into a state of contemplation of everything that graduation entails. This all sounds very far-fetched, so congratulations for making it through the proposed plan of a wishful thinker.

On a slightly more practical note, all of the emotions and ideas of a class can be offered to the world with the chosen class motto. A few years ago, the graduating class of Lincoln High School thought of a fitting motto. Remember that? That was awesome. In all of the heartfelt stories I have been emailed, there has never been such a succinct, meaningful phrase focusing on one of the strongest emotions that comes with graduating: nostalgia. As we prepare for our open houses, we graduates scour photo albums for our favorite memories to display. Remembering truly is awesome.

This year, when asked for possible class mottos for the class of 2005, Let the good times roll! was suggested. The motto easily stomped out the competition (for examples, see the first paragraph). This particular motto may suggest a certain party-animal attitude, but at the root of it is a message that everyone wants to hear. Everybody has his or her own idea of good times, and typically people would want to continue them.

To condense my thoughts, I will say that people should figure out if they truly believe that the world is their oyster, and if it is, then they should begin searching for their pearl. On the other hand, Hallmark should step aside and let us all take a few months to process a milestone event in our own way. As this will never happen, I close with an uplifting motto that we should all take time to consider: Let the good times roll!

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Q: Do members of Congress pay into Social Security?

A: Yes. All members of Congress, the President, Vice President, federal judges, and most political appointees, were covered under the Social Security program starting in January 1984 and pay into the system just like everyone else. This coverage was part of the 1983 Amendments to Social Security. Some federal employees, if first hired before January 1984, might not participate in Social Security but all federal employees hired on or after January 1, 1984, are covered.

Q: Does SSA recognize common-law relationships for spouse and survivor benefits?

A: Social Security follows the laws of the state where the couple resides. However, most states, even those in which a man and woman could not enter into a valid common law marriage, generally recognize a common law marriage validly entered into in another state. Check local laws.

Q: Can a person in jail receive Social Security benefits?

A: If a person receiving Social Security retirement, disability or survivor benefits is convicted of a crime, and confined in the correctional institution for more than 30 continuous days, the agency will suspend their social security benefits. SSA must also suspend benefits to those receiving Supplemental Security Income (SSI) payments when the person is incarcerated for at least one full calendar month. To help SSA comply with the law, agreements exist with State and many local jurisdictions to provide us with the names and Social Security numbers of people in their correctional facilities.

$3.31 million for sludge treatment

2002. That study began after the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency issued a zero-discharge permit, which led to water accumulation in the current sludge ponds. Limited storage also led to the study.

Three other alternatives were studied. Two of those alternatives – a frame filter press and a belt filter press – would have led to more storm water runoff. The other alternative – centrifugal – was eliminated due to cost issues.

"I think we ended up on a good option," Bergantine said.

At the April 26 council meeting, the council approved a letter of support for Valley Home's application for financial assistance from United States Department of Agriculture Rural Development for its assisted living dementia facility.

For Rural Development to guarantee its loan, Valley Home was required to ask the council for a letter of support, said Lynn Geller, Valley Home administrator. Geller noted the project would not adversely affect other facilities in the market area.

In an earlier interview, Geller said Valley Home hopes to break ground in May for the addition. Construction is expected to be completed nine months later on the 24-unit facility.

City Council approved hiring Ken Svee as an independent contractor, not to exceed $4,000 for Wal-Mart plan and review.

"This is no money out of our pocket," said Community Development Director Mike Moore, who noted Wal-Mart's engineering firm was paying a total of about $12,000 in building plan review fees. That amount includes the $4,000 to pay Svee.

Wal-Mart's engineering firm requested that the planning review process be expedited, Moore said. In order to expedite the process, Moore noted that Building Official Elvin Erickson had suggested hiring Svee, who would be able to complete the planning review in a week. It would take Erickson three weeks to do the planning review, Moore said.

It is expected that construction would begin this summer on the Wal-Mart. The store is expected to open for business next spring.

The council accepted the Pennington County assessor's recommendation for market valuations on appeals presented at the Board of Appeal and Equalization hearing. Ten people appeared before the board to appeal the valuations of 11 properties.

County Assessor Adeline Olson recommended the market valuations remain the same for nine of the properties. For the other two properties, one located at 320 Oak Ave. N. and the other being the Greenleaf Assisted Living property, Olson recommended lower market valuations. Olson received profit and loss statements from both property owners. She noted she took those statements into account when making her decisions.

For the first property, Olson recommended lowering the estimated market value from $425,000 to $312,600. The property is owned by CSL Developments Inc. Chad Lian represented CSL at the hearing and council meeting.

For the second property, Olson recommended lowering the estimated market value from $997,000 to $802,600. The assisted living property is owned by Minnesota Greenleaf LLP, which Regan Rohl represented at the hearing and council meeting.

The next council meeting is scheduled May 10 at 5 p.m. at City Hall.

Relay For Life honors survivors

"The power of Relay," said Brickson, "is that it allows a community to grieve for those lost to cancer and to celebrate the lives of those who have survived. For the newly diagnosed, Relay offers a chance to meet someone who has survived the same type of cancer. For the cancer patient in treatment, Relay provides an opportunity to share with others. For the long-term survivor, Relay brings a community's recognition of the struggle and closure to a trying time in life. Caregivers also find hope in Relay For Life. These individuals give their time, love and support to friends, family and neighbors who face cancer. At Relay, everyone understands the challenges and joys of being caregiver. There is peace of mind knowing that together we can face the challenges ahead."

Brickson encouraged individuals who would like to participate, to let organizers know. An on-line form may be filled out by entering the Northwest Medical Center site at http://www.nwmc.org, and then clicking on the purple Relay For Life logo. There, the survivor's information may be entered and be sent directly to the Pennington County Relay For Life committee. In addition, survivor forms are located at the Dakota Clinic Chemotherapy Department, the front desk of Northwest Medical Center, or any Relay For Life team member.

Relay For Life is a fun-filled overnight event designed to celebrate survivorship and raise money for research and programs of your American Cancer Society. During the event, teams of people gather at schools, fairgrounds, or parks and take turns walking or running laps. Each team tries to keep at least one team member on the track at all times.

St. Bernard's fourth graders celebrate Earth Day

Mrs. Laura Brickson's fourth grade class at St. Bernard's Catholic School recently celebrated Earth Day, April 22.

The class completed a unit on ecology and the environment by creating a working model of a rain forest in their classroom. Using scaffolding, numerous plants, vines, and a fog machine, the students gave tours to other St. Bernard's classes, parents, and the public. Each person on the tour was invited to carry a flashlight and wear a "safari hat," which consisted of a baseball cap and mesh fabric to protect themselves from the forest's animals and insects. Once visitors were inside, each fourth grade student gave a short presentation based on his or her research paper while dressed as an animal.

That afternoon, the class carried paper grocery bags decorated with Earth Day slogans to Hugo's. The customers could have their groceries placed in the decorated bags and be reminded to "reduce, reuse and recycle!"

Later, the class capped off its Earth Day celebration by touring the Thief River Falls Water Treatment Plant. Plant operators showed the class the many steps involved in transforming the river water into drinking water.

Kirsten Melby

Melby completes Leadership Development Program

Kirsten Melby of Thief River Falls recently completed the Leadership Development Program sponsored by the Northwest Minnesota Foundation (NMF). She was among a group of 19 northwest Minnesotans attending the NMF's Leadership Development Program held at the Hoot Owl Resort in Waubun.

Since 1988, over 835 northwest Minnesota residents have participated in this four-and-a-half day program conducted by Personnel Decisions International Inc. (PDI), an internationally recognized management and training firm. The program enables participants to identify and fulfill leadership roles in their home communities and build on the area's rural lifestyle and economy.

"Providing quality leadership training in our area is a high priority of the NMF. Strong local leadership is necessary to create a high quality of life and economic vitality for northwestern Minnesota," said Kip Fontaine, NMF Board chairperson.

Leadership training sessions are held twice a year for residents of the 12 northwest counties, which include Beltrami, Clearwater, Hubbard, Kittson, Lake of the Woods, Mahnomen, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau.

The next leadership program will be held Feb. 13-17, 2006. For more information, contact Rebecca or DeeGee at the NMF office at 1-800-659-7859 or visit the NMF Web site (www.nwmf.org).

Sgt. Josh Pagnac

Sgt. Josh Pagnac returns for second tour of duty in Iraq

Sgt. Josh Pagnac is currently serving his second yearlong tour in Iraq. His first was two years ago, when he was in the frontlines during operation Iraqi Freedom and was involved in the capture of Baghdad and Saddam Hussein's regime. Pagnac is with the third infantry division in Ft. Stewart, Ga., and has been active in military since 1999.

Pagnac is operating in the southwestern part of Baghdad and is located at Forward Operating Base Falcon. From day to day, his platoon conducts mounted and dismounted patrols, counter mortar operations and raids on homes of suspected insurgents. Recently, they were involved in the capture of No. 10 on their most wanted list. They visit schools and deliver school supplies, toys, shoes and clothing donated by various people and organizations in the U.S. They also work closely with the training and assisting of the newly formed Iraqi army in the rebuilding of Iraq.

Pagnac calls home once a week, saying the living conditions are like being home. They work six out of seven days a week. There are two soldiers to each room where they have access to Internet and TVs, so they are able to keep in touch with the news back home. Their camp is surrounded by 30-foot concrete walls. Since January, Pagnac's company has lost two fellow comrades.

Pagnac's family is looking forward to him coming home for a two-week leave the first part of June, but his mom says she will still worry when he must return to Iraq and will not be back in the U.S. until spring 2006.

Northland baseball team splits weekend twinbills...

Pioneers clinch state berth

Two wins at Mesabi Range Friday clinched a state tournament spot for the Northland Community and Technical College baseball team, but two losses at Vermilion Saturday put a damper on the Pioneers' weekend.

Northland edged the Norsemen 7-6 and 4-2 to secure a spot in the 2005 Minnesota Community College Conference state tournament, scheduled to be played Friday and Saturday at Rochester.

"These were two great wins for our program," said Northland coach Steve Gust. "We not only clinched a state tourney berth, but we also beat a good team."

Three innings of scoreless, one-hit pitching by Craig Johnston were instrumental in the Game 1 win as the Pioneers overcame a six-run first inning deficit. He complemented the Game 1 win with a Game 2 save.

"Johnston did an outstanding job of pitching," said Gust. "He stepped up his game and shut down the Mesabi offense."

Things weren't so rosy the next afternoon when the Ironmen posted 4-2 and 9-8 wins over the Pioneers in Ely.

"These losses were very disappointing," said Gust. "We went from challenging for the Northern Division title to fighting for the North No. 2 seed. Vermilion played well and we didn't do the things we needed to earn a victory."

Northland is 9-5 in the Northern Division and 18-17 overall heading into a regular season finale today (Wednesday) vs. Itasca on the NCTC diamond.

The eight-team, double-elimination state tournament will feature Itasca, Northland and Mesabi Range from the Northern Division; Fergus Falls and Central Lakes from the Central Division; and Ridgewater, Rochester and Dakota County from the Southern Division. First round pairings won't be finalized until the completion of the regular season.

Thief River Falls also had singles champions in Michael Forney at No. 2 and Jacob Engelstad at No. 3.

TRF extends winning streak in softball, 8-5

Thief River Falls extended its winning streak to six games Monday with an 8-5 Section 8AAA high school softball win over visiting Moorhead.

The Spuds scored in their first at-bat, but the Prowlers led the rest of the way, building an 8-3 spread through four innings.

Thief River Falls out-hit Moorhead 11-3 – an attack led by DD Rambeck's 3-for-3 afternoon at the plate.

Winning pitcher Megan Berg struck out seven and walked three before giving way to Allyson Helling, who struck out two in the seventh.

The Prowlers are 8-1.

Lakers' early lead doesn't create panic

Detroit Lakes had a 3-0 lead before Thief River Falls even came to bat in Friday's Section 8AAA high school baseball game at the Multi-Events Center. But playing from behind isn't anything new for the Prowlers this spring, and they regrouped for a 10-4 win.

"We played well," said Thief River Falls coach Shane Zutz. "They jumped on us early, but we didn't get rattled."

The Lakers were charged with four errors in the game, and three of those came during a six-run fourth

Pioneers reach 20-win plateau

A Friday split and Saturday sweep made the Northland Community and Technical College softball team a 20-game winner for just the second time in school history.

Northland began the weekend road trip with a 5-3 Friday win at Rainy River before losing an 8-2 second-game decision to the Voyageurs.

Saturday, the Pioneers doubled Hibbing 16-8 in Game 1 and completed the sweep with an 8-6 win in the nightcap.

Results bumped Northland's 2005 overall record to 20-10. The only other 20-win season for the Pioneers came in 1998 when they finished 25-13 and won the Minnesota Community College Conference state tournament under coach Rick Nikunen.

Tiffany Malwitz was 3-for-3 in Northland's Game 1 victory over Northern Division-leading Rainy River. Eight errors in the second game took away the possibility of a sweep, but Pioneers head coach Kathy Huschle was still satisfied with the results. "It was a good split," she said.

Hibbing's Tonya Albano hit a third inning grand slam, but the Cardinals couldn't contain Northland's first-game offense Saturday. Lisa Hardy led the hit parade with a 3-for-5 effort at the plate.

The weekend final was closer, but the Pioneers still had enough left in the tank to complete the sweep. Katie Walseth helped secure the Game 2 victory by driving in four runs.

Prowlers win 10-9 baseball slugfest...

TRF out-scores Warroad squad

Starting with a season-opening 7-6 eight-inning victory over Roseau back on April 14, Thief River Falls has developed quite a knack for pulling out come-from-behind wins during the 2005 high school baseball season. The latest chapter in the on-going saga occurred on a bone-chilling Monday afternoon at the Multi-Events Center, where the Prowlers pushed their record to 8-3 by out-scoring previously unbeaten Warroad 10-9.

As rallies go, this one was modest. A six-run Thief River Falls fourth inning erased a 3-1 deficit and a three-run sixth broke a 7-7 tie. Nevertheless, Prowlers head coach Shane Zutz was impressed. "The kids don't get rattled," he said. "Not once this year has this team folded, and that's not something they just picked up this spring. You have to give credit to the coaches in all the different sports for instilling that in these kids."

A 12-hit Warroad offense that included three home runs wasn't enough to beat the Prowlers, who scored 10 runs for the second straight game.

"With this wind, we knew they (Warroad) would hit a few out today," said Zutz. "They have some big, strong kids."

David Larson homered in the second inning and Cody Lange had a two-run single in the fourth to give 4-0 Warroad a 3-1 edge.

Thief River Falls' fourth inning outburst started with five straight hits, including a two-run single by Justin Books and a two-run home run by Drew Kjono.

Four consecutive one-out hits, capped by an RBI single from Ted Anderson and a run-scoring double by Ben Bengston, chopped the Prowlers' led to 7-5 in the fifth and a two-run homer by Kyle Krahn tied it in the top of the sixth.

However, Thief River Falls answered in the bottom of the sixth after a tailor-made double play ball that would have ended the inning was booted at second base. That opened the door for the Prowlers. Carlson, who drove in the first run of the day with a first inning triple, hit a two-run single to make it 9-7. An infield throwing error plated what would prove to be the winning run.

Warroad challenged the lead in the seventh on a one-out, two-run home run by Adam Knebel. But two infield outs ended the comeback bid by the visitors.

"We capitalized on their mistakes," acknowledged Zutz.

An error opened the fourth, then Drew Kjono doubled in a run.

"Drew's double gave us a quick jolt," noted Zutz.

Michael Benedict followed with a two-run single and Alex Carlson plated a run with a sacrifice fly. A second Detroit Lakes error scored the fifth run of the inning and Justin Brooks made it a 7-3 game with an RBI single.

The Prowlers added some insurance in the sixth on a two-run single by David Lovly and a run-scoring base hit by Alec Holen.

Itasca sweeps Northland in a title match-up

Billed as first place showdown in the Northern Division, a Thursday Minnesota Community College Conference baseball doubleheader proved to be a dud, excitement-wise, as Itasca out-scored Northland 17-1 in a 10-1, 7-0 sweep at Grand Rapids.

Twice postponed by weather, the match-up featured two teams with one loss each in Northern Division play.

"We didn't even compete in this series," acknowledged Northland coach Steve Gust. "The two games were for first place in the Northern Division, but we came out flat. Our effort in both games was disappointing."

Itasca out-hit Northland 13-4 and the Pioneers had five errors in Game 1. Josh Remer was the losing pitcher. A double by Will Leetch represented the lone Northland offensive highlight.

It was more of the same in Game 2 as the Vikings out-hit the Pioneers 12-4 and the visitors had three of the game's four errors. The loss went to Gary Molck. Remer, Dane Kjono and Adam Violette had one hit each.

TRF girls register a second straight top-division meet

A top-division finish was turned in by Thief River Falls Friday at the Crookston Invitational girls high school golf tournament.

The Prowlers finished fourth in the nine-team field that featured a 1-2 showing by the two entries from the host Pirates. Warroad slipped into third ahead of Thief River Falls.

"Things went pretty well again in Crookston," said Thief River Falls coach Gary Laidley, whose team was coming off a fifth place showing in the 11-team Pelican Rapids Invitational Tuesday. "If the girls keep on working hard, we have a chance to surprise some people."

Medalist was Kristi Lucken of Fosston with an 81. Three Thief River Falls girls broke 100 – a major accomplishment for the Prowlers – as Ashley Evans and Briana Knott both shot 98 and Ashley Jury had a 99.

Red River is shut out 2-0 by Prowlers

You are guaranteed 21 at-bats in seven-inning high school softball games. Hits, walks, errors, hit-batsmen, etc. all add to that total. Thursday, however, Thief River Falls pitcher Megan Berg kept her work load almost to a minimum when she faced just 22 batters in the Prowlers' 2-0 win over Grand Forks Red River at Apollo Park.

Berg gave up just one hit and one walk while striking out 11.

The Riders did put two runners on base in the fourth inning, but a one-out single was negated when the runner was thrown out on a stolen base attempt by Thief River Falls catcher Kindra Trontvet.

Shortstop Brittni Johnson took the one-hop throw and applied the tag on the play that Thief River Falls coach Matt Okeson said was pivotal in a scoreless game. "That was a big out, and the girls got into the game a bit," he noted.

The next batter walked, but the inning ended with a ground-out to first.

Thief River Fall also had trouble generating an offense until scoring a hard-earned sixth inning run and then tacking on an insurance run in the seventh.

Amanda Timm opened the sixth by reaching base on an error. She moved to second on a base hit by Allyson Helling, but was thrown out trying to score on a sharp single to left by Jamie Hoglo.

A single by Trontvet loaded the bases, and the Prowlers appeared to score on a passed ball. Shayla Torrell was at the plate and swung at the pitch for a strike. She stayed in the batter's box as the ball bounced away and Helling ran into her teammate while trying to score from third. Helling did beat the tag, but was ruled out by the umpire after making contact with Torrell.

Moments later the Prowlers did get a run when Torrell singled to left-center.

"They made the plays and we did not get a big hit until the sixth inning," explained Okeson.

A second Thief River Falls run crossed the plate in the seventh when walks issued to Johnson, Timm and Helling loaded the bases with one out and Hoglo delivered an RBI single to left for a 2-0 edge.

The Prowlers saw other scoring opportunities erased on base running mistakes. "Our base running was terrible," said Okeson. "We have to fix this, or it is going to cost us come post-season. It is a concentration thing, and an instinct to run the bases well. We have to start doing it better."

It was the Prowlers' fourth shutout victory of the year.

League matches will be played in the NCTC gym Thursday nights, June 9-July 14.

Cost of the program is $45 per player, which includes a league shirt for all participants. Players can sign up as a team, or as individuals.

Registration deadline is May 27.

Northland's fading hopes of landing a National Junior College Athletic Association Division III Region 13 softball playoff spot evaporated Monday when the Pioneers failed to score a run in a 5-0, 8-0 doubleheader sweep at the hands of Central Lakes in Brainerd.

The Pioneers took a 20-12 overall record and a 12-10 Minnesota Community College Conference Northern Division mark into a regular season finale Tuesday at home against Itasca.

Top two finishers in the Northern Division gain regional spots. Central Lakes had clinched first place. The Pioneers needed to sweep both the Raiders and the Vikings to overtake Rainy River for second.

Northland will take part in the MCCC open-invitation state tournament May 14-15 at Central Lakes.

Prowlers handle Lumberjacks 6-1

It was an impressive home debut for the Thief River Falls boys high school tennis team Thursday as the Prowlers breezed to a 6-1 win over Bemidji.

Justin Pyle, Michael Forney, Jacob Engelstad and Corey Horien provided the Prowlers with a sweep in singles, while Jon Kays-Joe Ihle and Jordan Swanson-Cody Bottem notched doubles wins.

It was the seventh win in eight duals for the Prowlers.

"As a team, I thought we played our best match of the season," said Thief River Falls coach Troy Hanestad. "I could really see evidence that the boys are implementing some of the things we have been working on in practice."

Five of the six Thief River Falls wins were straight-set victories. Only Horien had a three-set match.

"Our singles play was very strong," noted Hanestad. "Corey Horien had a tough match at No. 4 singles, but he made some very intelligent adjustments in the third set to get the win."

And there was nothing wrong with the Prowlers' doubles teams, either, according to Hanestad. "Joe Ihle and Jon Kays were very solid at No. 1 doubles," he said. "When they are serving well, like they were (Thursday), they are very tough."

Hanestad has spent much of the early season experimenting with his roster, and he's happy with the way the team has responded. "We have been shuffling our line-up in just about every match, and I am starting to think we may be getting close to having all of the pieces to the puzzle."

Conservation Officer ranks grow

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources has added 18 new conservation officers to its ranks. DNR officials are looking to the new recruits to provide the residents of Minnesota with years of outstanding service because of potential they have shown in their training.

The 2005 class of officers graduated from the DNR Conservation Officer Academy at Camp Ripley April 22. The new officers completed both field and classroom training designed to provide them with the basic skills needed to become a conservation officer.

The officers will now participate in 12 weeks of field training where they will work with experienced officers to enhance their training. Upon successful completion of field training, the officers will be assigned to their respective stations.

During the course of their 12-week training at Camp Ripley, the officers learned confiscations and forfeitures, warrants and exceptions, game and fish license and registration, firearms use, criminal law and judicial procedures, emergency vehicle operation, self defense, watercraft laws, recreational vehicle safety and regulation, game identification and enforcement, hazardous materials, crime scene management and evidence collection.

The graduates will fill stations vacated by recently retired conservation officers. Even with these replacements, 15 conservation officers (11 field stations and four other) vacancies exist. Another academy is scheduled for 2006. There are currently 189 conservation officers employed with the DNR Division of Enforcement.

To ensure the DNR is hiring the highest quality of people to protect, preserve, and enhance the state's natural resources, there is an in-depth hiring process, including a background check and oral interview process. The 18 new officers were chosen from 576 applicants.

The DNR recruits, at most, one class of officers per year.

Capt. Mark Johanson, academy training program administrator, believes the current class demonstrated they are consistent with the high standards the DNR has set for employees in the field. "The academy is a rigorous program," Johanson said. "They should make excellent conservation officers. I am pleased with the quality of people that we are putting in the field. I am confident they are ready for the task at hand."

DNR Chief Conservation Officer Col. Mike Hamm said the DNR Division of Enforcement always recruits outstanding men and women for officer positions, but the most recent class stood out. "This class was really an exceptional group," Hamm said, "I would expect to see some great things from them in the future."

The officers' talents will need to be broader than just law enforcement; conservation officers serve as the DNR's front-line representatives and interact with the public, landowners, schools, and conservation groups. Each conservation officer is responsible for a field station of about 600 square miles, where the officer is expected to be proficient at performing natural resources management and law enforcement-related activities.

DNR QUESTIONS

Q: How important is the spring run-off to Minnesota's ground water supply?

A: Snowmelt and rainfall during the spring months are the sources of major replenishment for the entire hydrologic system in Minnesota, including ground water. While a great deal of the spring run-off melts into lakes and rivers, some of it infiltrates the soil into two principal zones: saturated and unsaturated. The saturated zone is where aquifers are found. Water stored as ground water flows into rivers and lakes through springs and seeps, helping to maintain their levels. Most of the summer precipitation is taken up by growing vegetation or is evaporated. Ground water pumped from aquifers supplies 75 percent of Minnesota's drinking water and nearly 90 percent of the water used for agricultural irrigation.

- Sarah Tufford, Ground Water & Climatology Section Administrator

Minnesota lakes are reported as ice-free

While 2005 will not go into the record books as the earliest ice-out ever for any Minnesota lakes with long-term records, the rapid spring warm-up moved the ice out more quickly than what was expected at the beginning of April.

Pete Boulay, assistant state climatologist for the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, said conditions changed quickly.

"Prospects for an early ice-out for 2005 didn't seem to be in the cards for Minnesota," Boulay said. "The statewide temperature average for March 2005 was just a little cooler than average. Indeed the first few lakes in far south-central Minnesota lost their ice near historical averages."

Tiny Iowa Lake in Martin County was first, losing its ice by March 28. Budd Lake in Martin County followed on March 30, one day later than the historical average.

Then, however, April arrived with May-like temperatures. The first 17 days of the month were 10 degrees above average statewide. Even in northeastern Minnesota, which held onto a snow pack at the beginning of April, temperatures were seven degrees above average.

In central portions of the state, lakes like White Bear and Minnetonka were ice free by April 9, which was several days ahead of average. Green Lake in Kandiohi County lost its icy cover on April 10, six days ahead of its long-term average. In general, lakes were ice free three days to a week ahead of average in Central Minnesota.

"Mille Lacs was stubborn to lose its ice," Boulay noted. "One couldn't pilot a boat from Isle to Garrison until April 20, but that was still four days earlier than average."

The warmth continued during the third week of April and ice thawed on northern lakes more rapidly. As of April 21, virtually all lakes across northeastern Minnesota were ice free.

Even lakes that typically keep their ice the latest, like Vermillion, looked blue to airplane pilots on April 19. The last two years Vermillion was still iced until the end of April. Shagawa Lake, just north of Ely, lost its ice 10 days ahead of average. Most lakes in northern Minnesota were ice free seven to 10 days ahead of average.

By April 25, all Minnesota lakes were ice free. The last lakes to lose their ice were the Canadian border waters of Rainy Lake and Lake of the Woods, both ice free April 23.

Plans proposed for Red Lake fishing

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources has announced the proposed walleye regulations on Upper Red Lake. The regulations will take effect when walleye fishing resumes in spring of 2006. All of Upper Red and Lower Red lakes have been closed to walleye harvest since 1999 under a recovery agreement between the Red Lake Band and DNR.

The Red Lakes Fisheries Technical Committee has determined that walleye recovery is sufficient to resume some harvest by 2006.

"In anticipation of high angling pressure on a newly reopened fishery, regulations will need to be fairly restrictive to manage harvest within safe harvest levels," said Henry Drewes, DNR regional fisheries manager in Bemidji.

Fisheries managers utilized a citizen advisory committee to help select from a limited number of possible regulation options. The walleye regulation calls for a two-fish possession limit and a 17- to 26-inch protected slot, with only one over 26 inches allowed in possession.

"The two-fish bag limit option has the best chance of spreading the available safe harvest over a full summer and winter season," Drewes said. The protected slot was selected to protect the bulk of the mature broodstock that has been built up during the recovery period.

"The Upper Red Lake Citizens Advisory Committee clearly recognizes the importance of protecting this fishery through conservative regulations" said Drewes. "We sincerely appreciate their support and hard work over the last 12 months."

In addition, there are concerns about maintaining the quality northern pike fishery known to exist on Upper Red, with the expected increase in open water fishing pressure as walleye angling resumes. A 26- to 40-inch protected slot, with only one in possession over 40 inches, is being proposed to provide quality management for northern pike.

These proposed regulations have been announced for public review. Input can be directed by mail to Bemidji Area Fisheries Office, 2114 Bemidji Avenue, Bemidji MN 56601; by phone at 218-755-2974; or by email to gary.barnard@dnr.state.mn.us.

Public input meetings will be scheduled in September, with dates and locations to be announced.

Pen-raised turkeys not a good wildlife release

Landowners interested in attracting wild turkeys are encouraged to seek information about habitat improvement projects rather than introducing pen-raised or game farm turkeys on their property, according to the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

Wild turkeys found throughout much of southern and central Minnesota were trapped from healthy wild populations in the southeast and released by DNR personnel at carefully chosen sites. Growing wild turkey populations are found as far north as Pine, Atikin, Kanabec, Mille Lacs, Crow Wing, Wadena, Becker, Norman and Mahnomen counties.

"Only DNR personnel are authorized to release wild turkeys," said Bill Penning, DNR farmland wildlife program leader. "The best way for landowners to attract turkeys to their property is to provide the right habitat conditions. Local DNR wildlife staff will be happy to provide information for any landowner interested in habitat projects."

Pen-raised turkeys, which include any turkey that can be purchased from a game farm, farm supply store or catalog, could threaten Minnesota's wild turkey population through loss of reproductive capacity, and the transmission of disease and inferior genetics.

Generally, Penning said, pen-raised turkeys lack wild behavior, tolerate humans in close proximity, and will seek handouts in barnyards and at bird feeders. Pen-raised turkeys tend to roost near, on or inside buildings and often have become a nuisance.

"The challenge of hunting a truly wild bird is what makes turkey hunting so exciting," said Dave Mahlke, Minnesota chapter president of the National Wild Turkey Federation. "Our organization strongly supports the DNR's efforts to protect our wild turkey population."

Blood testing of Minnesota pen-raised birds has shown that a high percentage carry poultry diseases that can devastate a population of true wild turkeys. Any free roaming pen-raised birds should be recaptured by enclosing in a pen or building and kept permanently confined.

Landowners who are interested in learning more about wild turkey populations and habitat requirements may explore the DNR Web site www.dnr.state.mn.us or contact their local DNR Wildlife Division office.

Young wildlife should be left alone

What should Minnesotans do with so-called abandoned or lost wild animals?

"Just leave them alone," advises Carrol Henderson, Department of Natural Resources Nongame Wildlife Program supervisor. "The parent is probably nearby or will return shortly."

This is the time of year when young animals are scampering about lawns and roadsides. Young birds are falling out of their nests and turtles are crossing roads to lay eggs.

Fawns are often mistaken as abandoned or lost, but in reality the doe is nearby and will soon return. "People should always leave the fawns alone unless it can be verified the mother deer is dead or the animal is seriously injured," Henderson said.

Many small animals like rabbits attend to their young for a few short minutes a day and intentionally stay away to avoid drawing attention of predators. "If the young are really small and have been removed from the nesting site, return them to the nest as soon as possible," Henderson said.

Birds can be handled the same way. Sometimes young birds get crowded out of their nest before they are ready to leave. Other birds, like young owls, usually leave their nests before they can fly. These birds usually do fine because they will usually be fed by their parents on the ground, except for purple martins, which should be replaced in their nest box. Only very young birds without feathers should be picked up and returned to the nest, Henderson said.

"People should not be afraid of passing on human scent because it generally will not prevent parent birds from caring for their young," Henderson noted. "Most birds have a very poor sense of smell.

Henderson advises people to pen their dogs and keep cats indoors.

People should leave wildlife alone unless it can be verified that the mother is dead. "Many people do not know what to do when they find an injured or orphaned animal," Henderson said. "Injured wild animals require skilled care that can only be provided by a DNR permitted wildlife rehabilitator."

For information or help concerning injured or orphaned wildlife, call the DNR Information Center toll free 1-888-646-6367, or visit the DNR Web site atwww.dnr.state.mn.us/ecological_services/nongame/rehabilitation/listing.html.

Peat and Repeat.

That's the key to growing flowers in the heavy alkaline soils of the Red River Valley and surrounding region.

BERGESON PEAT is mined from a local bog. It is dark and finely ground-not bready and dry like the stuff you find at discount chains.

Peat lightens up heavy soils and helps sandy soils hold more moisture. At Bergeson Gardens, we put peat on top of our flower beds each year, mix in some 10-10-10 fertilizer, and watch the flowers grow like crazy.

By adding peat to your flower or vegetable garden, you will increase drainage. By mixing a little peat in the bottom of the hole when you plant a shrub or a tree, you will give the roots an early boost.

USE LOCAL PEAT. We have millions of acres of good peat in Minnesota. Don't buy in the dry, chunky stuff from somewhere else.

FERTILIZE FLOWER BEDS WITH MILD HORTICULTURAL FERTILIZER. Farm fertilizer is too hot for flowers. Till in a balanced fertilizer such as a 10-10-10 before planting.

ADD AMMONIUM SULPHATE each month as the summer progresses to give your annuals and vegetables a boost. Ammonium sulphate lowers the Ph of our soils and adds nitrogen as well. It works on everything.

Strandquist News

F. Myrtle Vagle • 436-2133

The weather in northwest Minnesota keeps me watching the outdoor thermometer several times a day to see if I need to cover the plants which were so brave to leave their winter beds and face northern Minnesota's early April temperatures. Hazel just told me that 50 degrees was the high for this coming week. That means to cover every night, as it usually goes down more than 20 degrees at night. I have it so handy to haul the potato gunny sacks in a shopping cart and cover as I go along and in the forenoon, I collect them and drive it into the garage. The tulips and the bleeding hearts are in full boom so I hope to make bouquets for churches next Sunday and then take them to the nursing home for the residents enjoyment.

The hedge is full of little birds which seem to be building nests in it. Some are flying into it with feathers and grass in their bills. Then, they swing on the chokecherry [illegible]. The chokecherry tree and the bushes that have come up from the roots of it are blooming. I love the fragrance of their flowers. It reminds me of the days when we had the "Herbal Essence Shampoo."

On Friday the 22nd we were together to celebrate our sister Mary Ronstrom's 92th birthday!! Next year at this time all 8 of us will be from 80 to 100 years old. Many treats and news [illegible] and names of those we used to know, which often we forget. Gloria put on the party in the dining room. Other guests were Lillian Germandson and Chris and Ruth Carrico.

Cathy Thompson returned home from Rochester where she spent last week with Robert Thompson who is there taking treatments. She gave us his address if any of us would be in the vicinity that we could stop and see him. It is Robert Thompson, Hope Lodge, Room 206, 4112nd St., NW, Rochester, MN 55901.

Sunday afternoon a benefit was held at the Community Center in Strandquist for Randy Nelson who is expecting to be sent to Rochester for medical reasons. You may look up Robert Thompson who has a few more weeks there.

I saw Judy Kleinvachter on Sunday and that was the sum total of her social life for this week, she said. If it will be snowing this week, like it did in Detroit yesterday, folks won't be spending time outdoors and since so many are aware of her great hospitality, I'm quite certain the coffeepot will be in use this week. Thanks.

The lawn keepers were here a few minutes ago and swept the lawn. I bought a thatching blade for the mower to loosen about 2 inches of the deep blanket of old grass. Now I will fertilize as soon as it will rain. I see a few snowflakes coming down. But I hope it will turn to rain.

Coleman's visa proposal expected to pass next week

Recently, the United States Senate passed an amendment offered by Senator Barbara Mikulski (D-MD), and coauthored by Senator Coleman (R-MN), to the emergency supplemental appropriations bill for military funding that would improve the H2-B visa program. The amendment passed by a vote of 94-6 and would split up the allocation of visas throughout the fiscal year so that employers in northern states who need seasonal workers during the latter months of the fiscal year are no longer put at a disadvantage. The bill also makes it so that temporary workers who received visas during the last three years are not counted against the annual numerical limit. The measure is limited to two years, however, so a more permanent approach will need to be explored at a later time.

"In my travels throughout northern Minnesota, I hear time and time again from folks like Marvin Windows about the need for an increase in H-2B temporary worker visas," Coleman said. "This amendment would provide a temporary fix for this problem which has been stifling Minnesota's northern economy. I am committed to working on a long-term solution to this problem."

Last year, Minnesota employers who relied on the H-2B visas for summertime seasonal workers were shut out of the application process because the limit available nationwide was reached by other states in the spring. The amendment would provide much-needed relief to Minnesota's manufacturing, tourism, construction, and forestry industries. In 2004, Coleman also proposed legislation to help northern Minnesota have better access to H-2B visas.

Don't trash highways and public lands

Lately, large and small groups have been conducting and planning cleanup projects along our highways. Out of a some altruistic sense of duty or obligation to their fellow citizens, these groups have agreed to cleanup trash along our highways. They shouldn't have to.

For several years now, Adopt-a-Highway signs have obstructed our views of the countryside. To me, it's somewhat ironic because this project came about because we preferred scenery over litter. In April, Minnesota Gov. Tim Pawlenty unveiled another cleanup plan for Minnesota called "Operation Cleanup." The effort targets the state's most littered highways using state and county Sentencing to Service (STS) crews along with Adopt-a-Highway volunteers to complete the project at minimal cost to taxpayers.

Pawlenty said, "We love spring and look forward to its arrival, but unfortunately when the snow melts, it reveals the litter that has piled up on our roadways."

The problem is that some people are using our roadside ditches as trash receptacles. They can't seem to keep their fast food bags, plastic and paper coffee cups, and other trash in their car for a period of time longer than it took for them to consume their food or beverage. Subsequently, they subject all of us to see their trash in the ditches. It makes me wonder if they do so because they arrogantly believe that since there are people and groups out there who are willing to cleanup our ditches that it's OK to throw their trash in the ditches. Or, are they lazy?

Leaving and throwing trash in our roadside ditches is harmful to the environment, and counterproductive. To me, it's nothing less than vandalism. The ditches aren't your personal trash cans or garbage dumps. Put trash where it belongs.

Technology gap continues to grow

It's by pure dumb luck that I ever succeed in recording programs with my VCR. Without naming names, I've heard several parents and grandparents say they're only able to use their VCRs with the help of their grandchildren. We do have an excuse though - we grew up in the days of No. 2 pencils.

I recently had an opportunity to see a demonstration of the technology some teachers are using at Challenger Elementary School. Students are taking tests on computers, creating books with computers and digital cameras, expanding their vocabularies and math skills online, and receiving classroom instruction with the help of a computerized chalkboard. It convinced me of two things: the older you are the faster you are progressing toward obsolesence; and secondly, elementary children will soon be the only people who know how to keep our society functioning.

I have to admit that the computerized chalkboard was pretty amazing. They only have one of them, but it was amazing. During the demonstration, Janet O'Hara, district technology assistant, could touch the lower right-hand corner of the board and a new page would noiselessly flip open. Standing in front of the classroom, she could navigate a lesson plan or the Internet. There was no chalk, eraser or dust.

A year or so ago, my dad gave me a Palm Pilot - a fancy miniature computer. With very little help, I've mastered recording addresses, note pad, recording my schedules, and playing solitaire. Of course, I come from a generation of men that don't think we need to read instructions, so theoretically, I should be able to use more than four of the 21 functions I have on my Palm Pilot, but that would require reading the instructions. In any event, children in our elementary schools are using these devices and others like them to take tests, record music, send messages and take photos. Children are not impressed that I have one. Rather, when I pull mine out to check my schedule, they look nervously at me waiting perhaps for me to ask them how to operate it, or even worse, fix it. They shouldn't be worried. Whenever I have a little trouble with my computer at work, I try to fix it myself - click on "undo," or "delete," or "quit," or if worse comes to worse, "forced quit." Only as a last resort will I call for our Web master/technology assistant. To her, it's always operator error, and she gives me one of "those" looks. You know the look I mean - the "you're an idiot, and I can't believe we let you have a computer" look.

Computers have taken over. They've progressed faster than their operators and now they're teaching our children.

It seems the computers we hoped for that would make our lives easier have arrived, and unfortunately, we've discovered that we've become almost completely unnecessary. If that makes you feel sad, you can always reassure yourself with the knowledge that someday the power will go out and those of us with No. 2 pencils in our desk will rule the world.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Remembering mothers on Mother's Day

In honor of Mother's Day, Caryl Bugge, director of Peder Engelstad Pioneer Village, shared this with us because she thought it might be of interest to our readers.

My family lived in Isanti County until 1935, when we moved to rural Thief River Falls. I and my siblings all graduated from Lincoln High School, and I taught in Pennington County from 1943 to 1962.

When I was six years old, I saw an advertising opportunity that afforded the possibility of securing a gift for my mother. We lived on a farm in the sandy area of Isanti County. In the middle of the Depression, our farm literally blew away during the years of drought. We were desperately poor and I had never been able to give my parents a real "store bought" gift. The advertisement promised four place settings of beautiful glassware – and a berry bowl – to the person who sold a specified amount of garden seeds. I spent the whole winter walking the countryside selling garden seeds. I finally had sold enough and proudly sent a money order. (I paid for the fee, too!) to pay for the dishes.

The big day arrived as the rural mail carrier came to the door with a big package for me! But, alas, the package came postage due – 20 cents I think – and I didn't have the money! Worse yet, my parents did not have it either. And so, with tears in my eyes, I watched the mailman leave with my package. The next day the scene was repeated. A compassionate mailman returned a third time and somehow my parents had collected the money. I was able to finally see my mother open the package.

As an adult, I was able to add to the setting and it always was the focal point of our holiday gatherings.

So here is the berry bowl, (chips and all)

Sen. Dayton: Separation of Church and State

by Sen. Mark Dayton

Senate Republican Leader Bill Frist recently appeared on a national television program which accused his Democratic colleagues of acting "against people of faith." During the same broadcast, self-proclaimed evangelist James Dobson called the United States Supreme Court "the despotism of an oligarchy" for its supposed "campaign to limit religious liberty." House Majority Leader Tom DeLay tells anyone who will listen that he is being persecuted for his Christian virtues, rather than prosecuted for his corrupt vices.

If those men and others like them have their way, they will divide this country between the people and policies on "God's side" and those on the other side. They, of course, are always on God's side. Whoever they disagree with and whatever they disapprove of are always on the other side.

I know many people of religious faith and serving in public office, including myself, who sincerely pray for God's wisdom in our personal and professional lives. However, praying for divine guidance is very different from publicly proclaiming always to have it.

Unfortunately, religion can be misused by charlatans to serve their own ambitions. Guess what aspiring politician, in the midst of a national election, stated, "I am convinced that nothing will happen to me, for I know the greatness of the task for which providence has chosen me." It was Adolf Hitler, in 1932. While no one in our nation's politics today compares with Hitler, his statement shows that there is no limit to the misuse of "providence."

Our country's founders understood human nature, especially under the influences of ambition, power and greed. So, they established our nation on certain unalienable, God-given rights: "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness." Those rights could not be taken away by any person or any government, except by laws made "with the consent of the governed."

To protect our rights and freedoms, they wrote a Constitution, which established checks and balances among three separate and equal branches of government: executive, legislative, and judicial. President Thomas Jefferson wrote, "In questions of power, then, let no more be heard of confidence in man, but bind him down from mischief by the chains of the Constitution." Despite their best efforts, many of our first leaders were pessimistic that our country's promises of equal rights and protections could survive the dark side of human nature. In his farewell address, President George Washington said, "The spirit of encroachment tries to absorb the powers of the several branches and departments (of government) into one, and thus to establish, under whatever forms, a despotism."

Today, those who would "absorb the powers . . . into one" threaten to do serious damage to our democracy. I shuddered when President Bush, in his speech last year to the Republican National Convention, promised, "Nothing will hold us back." That is the attitude of senators who would eliminate 216 years of accumulated Senate wisdom so that they can get all of Bush's judicial nominees confirmed. During Bush's first term, the Senate approved 206 of his nominees for lifetime appointments as federal judges. Democrats used long-standing Senate rules to block 10 other nominees, for what we believed were very important reasons. That is unacceptable to Republican senators even though they used other Senate rules to deny "up-or-down" votes to 69 of President Bill Clinton's judicial nominees.

As a member of the minority political party, it is bad enough to be called an "obstructionist," as though our opposition to appointments or legislation is improper. Our dissent is part of the "noise of democracy," and members of the majority party should respect it, even as they rightfully disagree with it.

They are wrong, however, to contend that our legitimate disagreements are actions "against people of faith." Our fellow citizens can properly judge for themselves who they believe are right and wrong on any particular issue. They can rightfully vote us into and out of office. But which of us are, or are not, on "God's side" is for only God to decide.

House DFL plan provides for strong schools, fair funding

by Rep. Brita Sailer
District 2B

Earlier in the session, I sent a legislative questionnaire to a large number of households in our district. I thank each and every one of you that took the time to let me know what you believe should be priorities for our district and our state during this legislative session. (If you didn't receive a questionnaire and would like to respond, please visit my Web site at www.house.mn/2B, and follow the link marked online survey.)

The responses showed overwhelming support for prioritizing education and healthcare in the budget debate. I brought this input to my colleagues, who had also been requesting input from their constituents.

I am proud to report that I joined my Democratic colleagues in the House last week to announce our education plan, which has already been called a "good idea" by editorial writers in the state. The Democratic plan is the only proposal that will stop the cuts to our schools. It will end the cycle of classroom size increases, teacher layoffs and reduced curriculum options. We provide for strong schools by increasing per pupil funding by 5 percent in each of the next two years. The plan also includes an additional 5 percent for special education in the second year of the biennium, dedicates funding for gifted and talented programs, and funds voluntary all-day kindergarten. It makes significant investments in early childhood programming.

Our plan centers on fairness and honesty in education funding. Our plan would provide $843 million total in new education spending, without the property tax increases and heavy reliance on shifts found in the Republican Omnibus Education Finance Bill. The reliance on the passage of property tax levies within their plan would lead to inequities between the quality of education that students in wealthy suburban districts and districts like ours in Greater Minnesota receive.

In addition, our plan does not "de-link" sparsity aid from the general education formula. Sparsity aid is designed to provide some additional dollars in recognition of the need of our districts to bus students in a larger geographic area. Our plan also provides a 4 percent adjustment to help school districts handle the increasing fuel costs.

Our plan receives its funding by relying on a balanced and reasoned approach based on ability to pay. Revenues include a top income tax rate adjustment, cutting bureaucracy in state government, and closing foreign operating corporation loopholes.

Education should not be a partisan issue. We all want our children and schools to be successful. This plan will help the two sides to come together to have an open and honest debate about what our schools and our students need and deserve.

As always, I appreciate your input on this or any other issue of state government. I can be reached at 327 State Office Building, Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Blvd., St. Paul, MN 55155, (651) 296-4265 or toll free at 1-800-920-5867, or by e-mail at rep.brita.sailer@house.mn.

Minn. continues to carve out a niche as a leader in renewable energy

by Gene Hugoson

Minnesota continues to carve out a niche as a leader in renewable energy production and use. However, to make a lasting difference for our economy and our environment, we also need to make progress on renewable energy at the national level.

Gov. Tim Pawlenty has made no secret of his desire to boost Minnesota's use of renewable fuels like biodiesel and ethanol. He has also started to push for greater use of these fuels at the national level.

The governor has repeatedly said he wants to convince other states to adopt a 10 percent ethanol requirement in their gasoline similar to the one Minnesota has had for years. He [illegible] (GEC) [illegible] dedicated to advancing the production and use of the corn-based fuel. Using this position of leadership, he is sharing the success story of Minnesota ethanol and pushing for greater national progress in replacing foreign oil with home-grown renewable fuels.

Just recently, Pawlenty and the GEC made news by calling for federal legislation to increase ethanol production from corn and new biomass sources. They announced the details in a new report entitled, "Ethanol from Biomass: America's 21st Century Transportation Fuel."

The GEC's first recommendation is for Congress to enact a National Renewable Fuel Security Standard that requires the annual use of a minimum of eight billion gallons of ethanol and biodiesel by 2012. The new standard would set a goal of providing at least 5 percent of the nation's fuel from ethanol and encourages a target of 10 percent from ethanol and biodiesel with a growing share of this production from biomass-derived ethanol. The nation currently uses 3.7 billion gallons of ethanol each year or approximately 3 percent of petroleum fuel sales.

This standard, in conjunction with a significant increase in applied research and production incentives, would allow us to meet our goal of significantly reducing our dependency on imported oil. It also offers the potential for the industry to provide greater production in all regions of the nation over time. This widespread distribution of the benefits is vital to winning national support in Congress and in other states' legislatures.

The GEC also recommends support of research, development and commercialization of ethanol from biomass resources. Additional biomass resources such as corn fiber, wheat, straw, rice hulls, paper mill waste and agricultural residues can expand ethanol production into a much larger, renewable energy resource.

The coalition recommends $800 million in research and development funding for biomass production over 10 years. This amount is equivalent to just four days of U.S. oil imports, or a modest $80 million, on average each year for this critical research.

A full copy of the GEC report is available on the Web at http://www.ethanol-gec.org/coalitionstudies.htm

Norwegians to Celebrate

"On account of the Norwegian Independence Day celebrations at Crookston and Minneapolis, the Great Northern will sell tickets to the above points at one and one-third one-way fares for the round trip. Tickets good for going May 16th and 17th, with return limited good until May 18th to Crookston and May 19th to Minneapolis. Consult local agent."

County Seat Fight

"The county seat controversy had another inning at Crookston last Wednesday before Judge Watts.

"The action causing the proceedings was the application of John A. Duffy of Red Lake Falls for an injunction restraining County Auditor Ford from filing the petition for county seat removal prepared by Thief River Falls people or calling a meeting of the county commissioners to consider the matter.

"Affidavits were submitted by both sides of the controversy, the Red Lake Falls people attempting to prove that cigars and liquor were employed by Thief Riverites in securing signers to the instruments, that the court house proposition wherein Thief River Falls gives the county the use of the city hall for $1 per year is illegal and that fraud was employed all through. Thief River Falls in its counter affidavits seeks to prove that no liquor and no cigars were employed but does not dwell upon the court house question.

"Judge Watts held that the county commissioners were the proper persons to act on the legality of the petitions; that the county auditor exceeded his authority when he held up the petitions. He is duty bound to receive them on their face and that the matter of legality is one for the commissioners in the first instance and the courts as a matter of appeal. He said he would deny the petition for an injunction. The Red Lake Falls attorneys asked for ten days in which to file a written argument. The case was continued until May 13.

"Red Lake Falls was represented by Attorneys Charles. E. Boughton, F. A. Grady and Thomas Germo. Auditor Ford and J. A. Duffy were also present from Red Lake Falls. Attorneys Miller and Richardson represented Thief River Falls."

Honorary City Officials Inducted At Elks Youth Day

"Hundreds of teen-agers had an enjoyable time at the annual Elks Youth Day party given in the Elks club rooms last Friday evening. ### Meeting Tonight To Revive County History Society

"Following discussions with residents of this community on several occasions in recent months, Arch Grahn, field director for the Minnesota Historical society, has called a meeting for this evening (Wednesday) at 8 o'clock in the Chamber of Commerce rooms in the city auditorium, at which time an effort will be made to revive the Pennington County Historical society, which has been inactive in recent years.

"While some of the materials relating to Pennington county's history are being preserved, said Mr. Grahn, much will be lost forever unless some concerted effort is made to save it. He added, 'If this society were re-activated with the support of all interested persons in the county, it could keep the loss of valuable items to a minimum in the future.' All interested people are urged to attend the meeting."

Lions Peddle 200 Brooms To Assist Crippled Children

"In a little more than an hour last Wednesday evening, forty members of the local Lions club, working in teams of two, sold to local residents 200 brooms made in the shop of the Minneapolis Society for the Blind, and could have sold another 100 if they had been available, Ted Kusmak, chairman of the drive, announced.

"Profits from the sale, amounting to slightly more than $140, were turned over to the Minnesota Society for Crippled Children to aid in constructing a dining hall at Camp Courage, summer camp for the crippled, near Annandale. In behalf of the Lions club, Dr. M. D. Starekow, president, thanked local citizens for the manner in which they supported the sale."

High School Progress

A New Regime

"And so the 'Progress' goes under a new regime, not exactly new either, for some of the occupants of new positions will be old members in different roles. But the idea of a 'new' and 'old' staff is there, so a little philosophizing is excusable.

"It is not without feelings of regret that the 'old' staff lays down its burden. There is not much of glamour or public acclaim as a reward to the faithful journalist. Of all Lincoln High's extra curricular activities, this one entails just as much effort as any and receives perhaps the least recognition. Most students take the 'Progress' as a matter of course, usually growl a little if it isn't the best, then read it hurriedly and little think of the time and effort that goes into the make-up of even a single issue. Despite these facts, the 'Progress' staff still lays down its work regretfully.

"In bidding adieu after a fling at high school journalism many thoughts present themselves. Foremost among these are the reflections that the experience has been of educational value, that the friendship of pals in toil is a true friendship and that the privilege of representing a high school with high standards is an exalted undertaking.

"We are not concerned over the future of the 'Progress.' We know that it will continue to mirror a truthful picture of life here at Lincoln High. We know that in accordance with the emphasis placed upon worthwhile things here, emphasis will also be given those elements in the columns of the 'Progress.' In retiring we thank those who have aided us during our brief period of activity and wish our successors good fortune and Godspeed in their rough but fascinating journey over journalistic seas."

Special Note:

"A novel and original scheme for advertising the Senior Class play has been planned by Jack Van Pelt, Senior treasurer. He will distribute ten to twenty-five free tickets for 'A Lucky Break' and a large amount of handbills from an airplane at exactly noon on the day of the play, May 8."

From The Upper Falls

The News, John W. Eastman, Publisher May 4, 1905
Thief River Falls, Red Lake County, Minnesota

The Low Water
Logs in Rivers Tributary to the Red Lake are Now Tied Up

"The matter of getting logs to the saw on the Red Lake river is bothering the local lumbermen considerably these days. Unless rains come before long, the lumbermen will experience a very hard time in getting their logs out of the small streams and into the Red lake. After they are once in the lake, there will not be much trouble in getting them down but unless there are some good showers before long the logs cannot be driven to the lake. The local lumber company has about 12,000,000 feet in the river. This is enough to run the mill for some time, but as the cut is usually not less than 40,000,000 it will not be enough to run quite half of the season."

Found Indian Remains

"While coming down river one day last week in a gasoline launch, Sam Cheeley and George Jarman saw the skeletons of a number of Indians on the bank of the river just above Kratka post office. The water had washed away a portion of the banks of the river at this point and exposed the skeletons to view.

"Just when these Indians were buried there it would be hard to tell, but it was long before the remembrance of any of the old Indians that lived in this section. It is said that for a hundred years at least the graves of all Indians on this portion of the reservation were kept track of and that, when the bodies were removed up-river last summer, all that had been buried during the past century were removed."

Masons to Build
So Decided at a Meeting Held Last Saturday Evening

"At a business meeting of the Masonic lodge held last Saturday evening in Dr. Tupper's office, it was unanimously voted that the lodge build a two-story cement block building just north of the building to be erected by F. J. Stebbins. The Masons are to build, in company with F. J. Stebbins, a building 50 by 75 feet. Mr. Stebbins will have one half of the first story and the other half will be rented. The second story will be used exclusively by the Masons for hall and club room purposes. A committee consisting of Dr. Tupper, Perl W. Mabey, Daniel Shaw, Jacob Borry and D. N. Winton will have charge of the building for the Masons."

Mill is Closed Down

"The sawmill is not running this week. The piston box on the carriage on the north side of the mill blew out Sunday evening and, in order to make this repair, it was necessary to close down part of the mill. As logs are not coming down very fast, it was also thought wise to close down the mill entirely and when the mill is again started up there will be no trouble in keeping it supplied."

High School Notes
Flora McNiven, Editor

"The second debate given by the members of the Civics class came off Wednesday morning, the affirmative side carrying away the honors though they found their opponents 'foemen worthy of their steel.' The question for debate was 'Resolved, that the senators should be elected by a direct vote of the people.' Gertrude Meehan, Lulu McCrum and Tom Tonson for the affirmative, and Irene Caldwell, Pauline Day and Gertrude Labbett for the negative.

"The debate last Friday on 'Resolved, that Universal Suffrage is detrimental to the well being of society' was also won by the affirmative [illegible] represented by Flora McNiven, Hulda Anderson and [illegible] Olga Kretschmar, Hazel [illegible]

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS - Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received at the office of the Middle-Snake-Tamarac Rivers Watershed District, 453 North McKinley Street, Warren, Minnesota 56762 until 1:00 o'clock PM on May 25th, 2005 for the rental of fully operated excavation equipment. Proposals are being requested for tractors, mowers, draglines, dozers, scrapers, blades and crawler mounted draglines or backhoes.

The work to be done consists of, but is not limited to, the cleaning and disposal of trees and brush, the removal of sediment from drainage channels, disposal of rocks, the construction of dikes, the installation of culverts, and the leveling of spoil banks. The work required and the locations of the work will be designated by the engineer of the district.

The equipment must be modern and in good operating condition and furnished with capable and experienced operators. Deficient operations or maintenance which results in reduced production or poor workmanship will be cause for contract cancellation.

All equipment proposed will be considered and evaluated based on many factors including, but not limited to the following: price, horsepower, machine rating, machine weight, track length, track width, track gauge, buckets available, boom lengths available, counter weights available and other factors.

Work will be paid by the hour and payment will be based on the actual time worked. The minimum hours per week will be 40 unless [illegible] cause but forfeits the right to any demobilization payment.

The type of equipment best suited for each project is dependent on the weather and other unknown job conditions. The district intends to rent equipment which in its opinion, will perform the required work at the least cost. Its evaluation factors will depend on conditions expected and encountered which will likely change along the course of the work. The District will release and rent different equipment from time to time as it deems necessary to economically perform the required work.

The contractor, in making this proposal, promises to furnish the equipment listed for the prices shown subject to its availability. He does not promise to make or keep the equipment available to the district. He understands, however, the equipment availability may be a factor in the district's evaluation of equipment.

The contractor will be required to furnish certificates showing that he has workmen's compensation insurance and liability insurance.

The Middle-Snake-Tamarac Rivers Watershed District reserves the right to reject any and all bids and to award contracts to other than the apparent low bidder. Dated at Warren, Minnesota this 18th day of April, 2005.

2004 Minnesota farm financial results now available in FINBIN

by Dale Nordquist
University of Minnesota Extension Service

The 2004 financial results for the 2,385 farms who participate in Minnesota farm financial management education programs are now available online at the FINBIN Web site (www.finbin.umn.edu). Average net farm income for all farms was $74,391 in 2004, up from $59,305 for 2003.

These averages mask the wide variation of financial performance across the diverse farms included in FINBIN. The purpose of FINBIN is to give users a tool to query the database for benchmarks farms that more closely resemble their own operations.

FINBIN contains current and historic data for farms in Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota and Ohio. Users can query the database by year, size of farm, type of farm, debt level and several other factors. There are a number of whole farm financial reports to choose from including income statements, balance sheets, yield and price summaries and general financial summaries.

Users can also query crop and livestock enterprise reports, sorted by size, profit level or even the profitability of genetically modified organism crops versus conventional crops.

New for 2004: FINBIN includes crop benchmark reports. While the traditional summary reports display the average results for each group, benchmark reports show the full range of yields, income and expenses. A benchmark report might tell a user that they are in the 70th percentile in seed expense per acre but only the 20th percentile in yield. The user is in charge of selecting their own peer group by region, enterprise size, crop tenure, etc.

FINBIN was developed by the Center for Farm Financial Management, University of Minnesota. FINBIN data is contributed by the Minnesota Farm Business Management Education programs and the Minnesota Farm Management Associations. All farm records go through a rigorous accuracy and standardization process. Only multiple farm financial reports are displayed; individual farm results are protected.

(Dale Nordquist is a farm management economist with the University of Minnesota Extension Service and associate director of the Center for Farm Financial Management.)

New NCTC coach racking up the miles

Sports Editor

Extensive travel is part of the package for athletes and coaches in the Minnesota Community College Conference. With campuses stretching from Thief River Falls to Rochester and from Worthington to Ely, miles add up in a hurry. Few, however, spend more time on the road than new Northland Community and Technical College head baseball coach Steve Gust, who faces a 120-mile commute just to attend practice.

Coaches often go out of their way to run their programs. Extra time is a requirement, not an option. Gust, though, takes it to another level while making daily trips from his home in East Grand Forks to Thief River Falls – either to practice, help prepare the Northland diamond for a home game, or to join up with his players and coaching staff before heading out on the highway again for a road trip.

Gust is an East Grand Forks native, who played football and wrestled for the Green Wave; graduated from the University of North Dakota with a degree in physical education and coaching; has served as head coach for both the East Grand Forks Sacred Heart High School and the East Grand Forks American Legion baseball teams; and been as assistant baseball coach at UND. He is also the sports editor of the weekly East Grand Forks newspaper, The Exponent.

Looking for new challenges and opportunities, the 34-year-old Gust went after the Pioneers' job when Guy Finstrom stepped down at the end of the 2004 season.

Being named Northland coach didn't mean a move to Thief River Falls. While he did give up the Sacred Heart job for Northland, Gust held on to his East Grand Forks American Legion coaching duties, and he continues to write for the Exponent – something that has produced regular paycheck for the past seven years.

Add an infant son to the mix, an almost-one Tommy John, and the Gust daily planner fills up in a hurry.

"It's a little hectic at times," admitted Gust. "Sometimes you need to be in three or four places at one time. If you are going to be successful (as a coach) you have to put in the time, seven days a week, year-round. But when I took the job, I knew it was going to be this way."

The multi-tasking works, according to Gust, because his sports editor position offers flexibility, and the fact that sleep doesn't seem to be a priority. "I do a lot of my newspaper work from midnight to 4 a.m.," he said.

Gust may be a rookie coach in the MCCC, but he's a diamond veteran. "I've been coaching baseball since I was 15," he said. "I think I've coached at every level from pee-wee to college. Baseball has been my life. I enjoy it."

Nine years as East Grand Forks American Legion coach has produced a 350-125 won-loss record, seven Tony Sipe League titles and three Ninth District Division I championships.

Gust started the East Grand Forks Sacred Heart program in 1997 and remained on the job until this spring. He was 127-33 with the Eagles with four conference pennants and four straight Section 8A tournament runner-up finishes.

A year ago Gust added to his coaching duties as an assistant with a UND team that went 36-18 and was an NCAA Division II regional qualifier. He worked with the college team during fall practice and through the early spring schedule until high school baseball started. Even then, appearances were made at UND games and practices when time permitted.

Splitting time between the college, American Legion and high school programs doesn't require multiple philosophical approaches to coaching, according to Gust. "There's not much difference in the way I coach at any level," he said. "There just isn't that big of an adjustment. My No. 1 motto is that I want a team that takes pride in what they do, has the desire to succeed and is hard-working. If you can do those things – at any level – then you will be successful, not only in baseball, but in life."

While some latitude is given to the words used and the tone of voice in which they are uttered when the age of the players increases, Gust doesn't feel he's gone overboard in that direction this spring. "Actually, I think I'm a little more mellow this year," he said. "I've probably done more teaching than I ever have, trying to get all these players to buy into a new system. And they're listening, because at every level, kids want to succeed."

As an opposing coach, Gust is often viewed as a fiery, competitive individual willing to challenge anyone in an effort to gain an edge. And he doesn't deny the charges. But the guy who puts on the uniform and steps on the field is not at all like the individual outside the fence. "Away from baseball, I'm probably one of the most mellow people you'll ever meet," offered Gust. "On the field, I'm intense. You have to be focused and intense because something is happening on every play. I coached against a lot of the kids who are playing for me now, and I admit they probably didn't like me, or like my style when they were playing against us. But now they're playing for me, and I think they understand, and maybe even appreciate, what I'm doing."

Gust is quick to point out that coaching at Northland is far from a one-man operation. He gives a great deal of credit to assistant coaches Terry Wiseth and Craig Peterson. Wiseth was Northland head coach for 10 years and has remained on the staff after giving up those duties after the 1997 season. Peterson is a former head baseball coach at Marshall County Central High School, and has worked with Gust in the East Grand Forks American Legion program as an assistant coach.

"Having good assistant coaches is crucial, and I have two of the best," said Gust. "Terry is an experienced coach who really knows the game. Craig is one of the hardest-working people you'll ever meet."

When the opportunity arose, Gust jumped at the chance to be a head coach at the college level. And there's no second-guessing the decision. "It's a lot of work and time-consuming," he acknowledged. "But I absolutely love it. It's a little higher level. It's a step up from Legion, just like Legion is step up from high school.

Coaching requires commute for Gust

It's a little more competitive."

Putting a title-contending team on the diamond each spring is the goal Gust has set for himself, his coaching staff and the Pioneers. "We want to build a program that is competitive at the state, region and eventually the national level," he said. "The coaches before me set the foundation. Now we want to elevate it even further."

That's a tall order for a team that has just two winning seasons in the past 15 years. The Pioneers had a 14-10 finish in 1990 and enjoyed a high-water mark with a 21-11 record in 1994. Both of those teams were coached by Wiseth.

Since that 21-win season, the Pioneers have gone 97-192 under four different coaches - Wiseth; Chris Mills (1998); John Ott (1999-2000); and Finstrom (2001-2004).

The Finstrom-coached Pioneers did hit double figures in wins for four straight years, but season-opening trips to Arkansas to face strong teams who had already played a bundle of games put Northland in a hole, record-wise, each spring. That made it tough, if not downright impossible, to get back to the .500 level.

Gust knows success on the state, region or national scene is not going to happen overnight. "It takes a while to get to that level," he admitted. "It takes a lot of hard work. We think it can happen, and the first step is to get the players to believe in themselves."

The Pioneers have already made strides in that direction. After a 1-4 spring trip – to Cocoa Beach, Fla. this year – Northland won 15 of 24 games. And more importantly, began MCCC play with a 7-1 Northern Division record that all but clinched a state tournament spot.

The top three teams in the Northern Division qualify for the state tournament. Itasca, Northland and Mesabi Range would appear to have those positions locked up, eliminating Vermilion and Hibbing from the picture.

Gust admitted the Pioneers' strong showing in the highly-competitive Northern Division caught him off guard. "The kids have been working hard and advancing quicker than even I expected," he said. "To be challenging for the Northern Division title this late in the season is an accomplishment in itself. With that said, we still need to improve. Our ultimate goals are still ahead of us."

The eight-team, double-elimination MCCC state tournament will be played May 6-7 in Rochester.

Top four finishers in the Minnesota state tournament will advance to the National Junior College Athletic Association Division III Region 13 tournament the following weekend in Willmar.

The regional winner will move on to the NJCAA Division III national tournament May 21-27 in Glens Falls, N.Y.

Ridgewater, Itasca and Fergus Falls were ranked 1-2-3 in the latest MCCC state polls. Ridgewater and Fergus Falls have already clinched titles in the Southern and Central Divisions, respectively.

Baseball Playoff Schedule
- MCCC state tournament - May 6-7 in Rochester.
- NJCAA Division III Region 13 - May 13-15 in Willmar.
- NJCAA Division III nationals - May 21-27 in Glens Falls, N.Y.

Red Lake and Pennington County discuss jail services

by Scott DCamp
Reporter

The Pennington and Red Lake county boards held a joint meeting last week to discuss the possibility of Red Lake County contracting with Pennington County for jail services.

Currently Red Lake County is a member of Tri County Corrections. Plans for expansion to the Tri County Corrections jail facility have led the Red Lake County Board to consider alternative locations and options to house inmates.

During a joint meeting of the two county boards, Pennington County Sheriff Mike Hruby presented a proposal, in which Pennington County would provide jail services for Red Lake County. The joint meeting was the first face to face meeting between the two boards to discuss the type of services Pennington County would provide to Red Lake County.

Hruby first appeared before the Red Lake County Board of Commissioners in March to discuss a jail services proposal after Tri County Corrections announced plans for expansion. Cost estimates for the expansion have not fully been determined, but Red Lake County Commissioners wanted to determine what options the county has besides continuing its relationship with Tri County Corrections.

Red Lake County Commissioner Velma Oakland said she was impressed with Pennington County's jail facilities, but admitted that the Red Lake County board would need to know more about proposed expansions at the Tri County Facility.

"I'm very impressed with the presentation made by the Pennington County Sheriff's Department," Oakland said. "I spoke with our sheriff and both sides feel there is already a good working relationship."

Oakland said the earliest the proposal would see action would be at the May 18 meeting of the Red Lake County Board. Susan Mills of Tri County Corrections will appear at that board meeting.

"I feel we need to know more about the Tri County Facility,"

School District 564 seeks funds for defibrillators

by April Schelnoha
Reporter

The health of its 500 employees, countless volunteers and more than 2,000 students is a concern of the Thief River Falls School District. As a result, the district is seeking funds for defibrillators.

The school district learned Tuesday that it has received funding for two defibrillators, but it would like to have at least three additional defibrillators. It is currently seeking donations for those machines.

"They are pretty important to have," said Jackie Anderson, the district's school nurse.

An automated external defibrillator (AED) determines whether there is any electrical activity in a person's heart. The machine then tells someone there is no electrical activity. The AED is then used to electrically shock a patient's heart and bring back the heart's normal rhythm.

Research has shown that 450,000 people have massive heart attacks every year and 50 percent die without warning from sudden cardiac arrest, Anderson said. Defibrillators may decrease those patients' risk of death.

The defibrillators are needed in school buildings not only for students, but also for parents, coaches and staff, Anderson noted.

The defibrillators would be placed in central locations at Challenger Elementary School, Franklin Middle School, Lincoln High School (LHS) and the School District Service Center. A portable model would be located in the LHS activity office to be checked out for special events.

It is the district's long-range plan to have multiple AEDs in each building, said Jodi Bergman, district

Bryan Steiger is TRF Entrepreneur of the Year

by April Schelnoha
Reporter

Bryan Steiger doesn't like the limelight, but he's in it now after being named the Thief River Falls Entrepreneur of the Year.

"It's an honor, but I'm not a limelight person," said Steiger, who owns Steiger Manufacturing.

Steiger will receive the honor May 17 at a breakfast sponsored by the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce. LeeAnn Nelson, owner of Diamonds & Designs, will also be honored for Business of the Year. The breakfast will be held at 8 a.m. at the Evergreen Eating Emporium. The public is invited to attend.

The Thief River Falls Entrepreneur of the Year Award honors an individual who has started a successful, new operation with a three-year track record; has demonstrated creativity; and overcome constraints or barriers.

Joe Kezar nominated Steiger for the award. Kezar said he nominated Steiger because Steiger has been able to continue with his business despite obstacles, including family tragedies. "He just took the ball and kept running," Kezar said.

Steiger Manufacturing is located about six miles west of St. Hilaire. The company has 12 full-time employees and three part-time employees, who are high school students.

The company manufactures the Toreq Earth Scraper. Over the years, the Toreq product line has grown from four to 12 different earth scraper models, PTO rotary ditchers and GPS laser trailers.

New hydraulic cylinders and custom projects are also manufactured. It also repairs used hydraulic cylinders and other equipment.

Steiger Manufacturing is "always growing," said Steiger, who noted two additions have been constructed on the building in the past 10 years.

Computers have also led to a change in the way the business is

Diamonds and Designs is TRF Business of the Year

by David Hill

As so often is discovered in life, friendships shine brighter than the brightest gem.

Almost 10 years ago, LeeAnn Nelson risked everything. She had two children, no job and no money. The only thing she did have was a dream to provide a secure future for her children Meghan and Jessica, and lots of friends. As she discovered, if friends could be counted as assets in her ledger book, she was a millionaire.

During the next 10 years, LeeAnn and her friends took a fledgling business and made it a success. This week, Diamonds and Designs is being honored as Thief River Falls' Business of the Year.

In 1995, LeeAnn had a dream of owning her own jewelry business. She needed a place to start, and a place for her business so she visited with Bob Ekeren of Ekeren Drug. LeeAnn said he didn't shoot down her dream, he asked "how much room do you need."

Roger Reuter at Northern State Bank, who heard her pitch, just said, "we'll get you a loan." Later on, Northern State Bank also provided assistance.

It came through just in time, said LeeAnn. A couple of weeks later the Small Business Administration stopped granting loans for a short time. The loan also arrived in time for LeeAnn to get some merchandise out in time for the important holiday season.

Lylian Richards, Kris Monson, Rochelle Anderson, Rebecca Fisher (now Nelson), sisters, sisters-in-law, and brothers all chipped in to scrape, paint, and move second-hand display cases into the space on Third and LaBree Avenue in Thief River Falls where Diamonds and Design was to stay for another nine years.

Vendors called, said LeeAnn, and they gave her more merchandise than she had ordered.

It all helped her succeed.

"The first 10 years have gone by so fast," said LeeAnn.

LeeAnn said her business thrived because of hard working employees, and very loyal customers. It

How to keep your mental health healthy

Everyone falls into a slump now and then. They may feel sad, lethargic or simply out of control with crazy family schedules.

Along with demanding schedules and general moodiness that can come and go, they also may be dealing with difficult family problems or work stresses that put additional strain on their lives.

Wondering how to stay positive and keep mental health healthy even in the midst of life's greatest challenges? May is Mental Health Month, and Eric Smemo, clinical director with Lutheran Social Service (LSS), has some ideas.

"Spring is a good template for our mental health," said Smemo. "We generally exercise more, we enjoy more sunshine, we take vacations and we re-engage in activities that we enjoy doing around the house and in the community. This all gives us a good formula for the rest of the year, especially for winter months when sunlight diminishes and we tend not to take a break from frenetic personal and work schedules."

LSS offers some general tips to help keep mental health in working order:

- Eat right. Don't forget the basics. If a person were overeating or not eating healthy, he or she should vow to return to a diet plentiful in fruits, vegetables and whole grains that will help him or her feel better and provide him or her with important nutrients and antioxidants needed each day.
- Exercise. The United States Department of Agriculture recommends that people get out and enjoy some type of regular exercise five times a week with at least 30 minutes devoted to each activity. Regular times of walking, biking, golfing and swimming are all excellent ways to improve mental health.
- Meaningful activities. Get involved in volunteer, church or civic activities. When giving back, people gain a good feeling and that can help them keep their mental health on track.
- Treat yourself. Everyone needs a break now and then or a positive experience to take their minds off of situations that may be putting too much stress on their lives. Consider signing up for a weekend away or dining out for lunch with friends. Re-energize with a massage or indulge with a special treat.
- Seek support. When feeling down or overwhelmed, avoid isolation. Become surrounded with supportive friends, family members or a trusted confidant with whom thoughts and feelings can be shared.

"Often, when we feel overwhelmed or stressed, we give up the things that help us stay healthy, like time for exercise and good eating habits," said Smemo. "It is exactly at times of over-stress that we need to ramp up on all of these basics of self-care."

Smemo also likens the importance of good mental health to airline safety. "The flight attendant instructs us to put on our oxygen mask first and then help others," said Smemo. "In the same way, we need to pay attention to our own mental health and be intentional in keeping our mental health healthy before we can be helpful to others."

If mental health needs a boost, talk with a pastor or set up an appointment to talk confidentially with an LSS counselor at 1-888-881-8261.

A tough shrub for four seasons.

The Bergeson Dogwood, discovered by the late Melvin Bergeson growing in a stand of native dogwood near Gary, MN, has steadily grown in popularity due to its outstanding shape, the beautiful fall color on its leaves, and its luminescent red winter branch color.

PLANT ONE ON THE CORNER

The Bergeson Dogwood is ideal for the corner of a house. It is native to our area and as tough as nails. It does not get long and lanky. If it ever gets too large, it can be simply cut to the ground and it will come back even nicer than before.

PLANT FOR WINTER COLOR

The Bergeson Dogwood's branches glow red in the winter. After a few years, cut the plant to the ground to encourage new shoots which will be even more red come winter-time.

PLANT FOR FALL COLOR

The Bergeson Dogwood's leaves start the autumn by turning to a deep maroon. Later on, they progress to a bright cherry red. Sometimes they finish off with a yellow-orange blend. Fall color is rare in a shrub as tough and reliable as the dogwood.

PLANT AS A HEDGE

No shrub makes a better informal hedge to mark off the edge of a yard than the Bergeson Dogwood. Its rich green foliage can also work to disguise propane tanks, gas meters and other unsightly mechanical features.

Bergeson Dogwood as well as all bare root trees and shrubs can be purchased out of the cold storage building at Bergeson Nursery. At Bergesons we offer our customers bare root trees and shrubs or easy planting and care. The time to plant bare root trees and shrubs is now!

Why I can't call myself a dog person

The events that I account to you in the following paragraphs happened one day about four years ago. I tell of my experiences with great sincerity.

It was a good day. The sun streamed down upon the early fall with kindness. It was my friend Dane's birthday, and I was going to partake in the festivities. It was quite an honor to be involved in this event, as he is allowed to choose only two friends each year. This was my third year running, and I was feeling pretty good.

We waited outside the school that afternoon for our carriage of conviviality to arrive. The grass was so green to be almost unhealthily vibrant. Someone had a fancy-dancy new footballesque toy created in order to make mothers buckle to their sons' squeals of consumerism. Several of us took advantage of this in every manner stereotypical of 12-year-old boys while we waited for our rides. Soon enough, Dane's mother came to pick us up.

Jovially, Dane's other Chosen One, Dane and I jumped into the truck. Dane, in the middle of us, was crammed against the front dash, bashing his knee.

"Friggin dangit!" he exclaimed.

"Remember Dane," his mother chided in a sing-song tone, "no swearing!" And the truck lumbered off.

Later that evening, we were ceremoniously playing old video games, having a merry old time ridiculing the 16-bit graphics and lack of plot. After being eaten by a large pixilated dog, I passed my button pad to Dane and eased back. Then there came a call across the room from the stairs.

"Ben, come here!" I stood up. I continued to stand as Dane's basset hound, Ben, cantered over to where his mother had called him. Silence.

I looked to the others. All eyes were on me. The dog had paused in mid step and his eyes were focused intently into my own.

"You're obviously in the wrong here," the dog offered, in a not-particularly-kind manner.

"Yeah thanks," I snapped back. "What do you suggest I do about it?"

"Just sit down," the dog suggested, rolling his eyes. "We all know who the real Ben is here."

To sit down would be to admit defeat. I had to remain obstinate! But how? My position didn't seem particularly tenable, as it actually had been me who had made the mistake. I contracted my weazand, dispelling the rising bile, and took a breath.

"You think I'm going to sit down on the order of a dog?" I said magnanimously.

"That's up to you," my adversary replied, "You look like a fool."

I realized he was right. But wait! Was that a duplicitous glint I saw in his eye?! He was up to something, I knew it!

"I won't!" I vociferated, planting my feet and crossing my arms.

Ben hesitated. Perhaps I had complicated his cabal. There was silence again, as we came to this impasse.

The mounting tension dissipated with Dane's sigh. "Geez, this always happens!" he lamented. "Come on, let's take this outside."

"B-but," I stuttered, "I am resolved to stand obdurate!"

"I don't give a flippin' yay-hoo," Dane replied. "We have to solve this the appropriate way: with a contest."

I was confused, but I hoped that it was a 'seeing color and grasping things with opposable thumbs' contest, and not a 'sniff yourself and bark at stuff' contest.

Dane's mother led the way upstairs and through the kitchen to the door out to the yard.

The events that followed seemed impossibly grand. We were challenged by tests of the wits, heart and soul. My opponent performed admirably; he had the competitive spirit. If it were not for the third round of the javelin hurl, he may have had a better chance. I would've thought that the judges would have accounted for his short and ungainly limbs, but they were harsh. When the end was brought about by the blowing of Dane's whistle (about which there was a controversy as it took a while for me to catch on because it was at a frequency beyond the level of my perception), I had more points to my name.

"Well, good job, I guess," I said to the contrariant Ben, who seemed not to think much of it.

"A great reward earned at the cost of one's soul is a pittance when compared to one lost for the betterment of another's," the dog averred earnestly.

To this day, I don't really know what he meant by that.

...Fast fat food

It started nicely with a little pizza - thin crust, little spread of sauce, few slices of pepperoni, little sprinkle of cheese. Now look at what we can get - fat crust, even one filled with cheese if we want, gobs of sauce slathered with every kind of meat, vegetables of every kind and lots and lots of cheese on top of it all. And how about a double chocolate, quart-sized malt with that?

It started with a thin hamburger patty with or without ketchup, on an ordinary bun if you were at a restaurant, or a slice of bread if you were having it at home. Now it's a double-triple quarter pounder whopper-burger-on a sesame seed bun that equals about half a loaf of bread, slathered with four or five slices of cheese, "special sauce" made with heavy duty mayonnaise and heaven knows what else, lettuce, a slice of tomato and a pickle circle or two to top it off.

It started with a little helping of French fries that we baked in the oven. Sometimes it wasn't French fries at all, but a frying pan full of last night's boiled potatoes. Now it's a stack of deep-fat fries that cover an entire dinner plate, and that's what you get no matter whether you order the small size or the large. One size fits all, take it or leave it.

Fast food when I was growing up wasn't anything like what we have now. Most of it was homemade and simply made, with no fancy trimmings. At home, foods were fried, but I don't remember having anything deep-fried except special treats like doughnuts or rosettes at Christmas. Deep-frying wasn't part of our everyday cooking.

Pizza did not become popular until the late 1950s around here. Really! The first pizza I ate was in 1960 or thereabouts. My cousin, Kay (a teenager back then), brought it to my house in a box and she made it for me. We didn't have pepperoni or anything fancy, so it was just a plain cheese pizza. But it was good. In fact, it tasted a lot better to me than pizza does now. Maybe it's just my old taste buds, hum?

There were no such things as a drive-through in the olden days. The closest we got was a "drive-in" where a little gal on roller skates came gliding over to our car with our orders and placed them on a tray she hooked to our windows. Many of my high school friends glided around drive-in parking lots on skates to earn some spending money.

Drive-in food was nothing like the drive-through food we get now. Back then, portions were small, burgers and dogs were plainly made without all of the extra added (fat) stuff on them, and we got big mugs or glasses of root beer or soda pop with them. I do believe that was about the time that French fries were starting to be made in deep fat though.

The Tastee Freeze was the first dairy treat place I remember, other than the wonderful ice cream store where we sat on round stools at the "bar" and drank icy malted milks from a tall footed glass with a frosted metal container holding the remainder of the malt when we made a little room for it in our glass. I remember that wonderful "ice cream headache" when I drank it too fast.

The Tastee Freeze was a little wagon set up on the corner where the Piggly Wiggly store used to be, and we could stand at the window and buy all sizes of cones and sundaes and malts there. You can imagine how busy that little place was on a hot summer night. One of those hot summer nights my bachelor uncle allowed one of his sisters-in-law (my aunt Betty) to use his brand new car to drive to the Tastee Freeze to get us all malts. There were too many malts for me to hold so we set them on the floor in the back of the car. She wasn't too good at driving that fancy new car - with the power brakes - and - you know what happened. Years later, my uncle said he could still smell sour milk in that car.

But now everything has gotten bigger and better, hasn't it? And so have we, they say. I think they are right about that, too.

More on Raising Responsible Children

In teaching children responsibility, a parent's job is to gradually shift the source of motivation from the external (parent) to the internal (child). We need to help our children develop the ability for self discipline.

We can do this by:
•encouraging desirable behavior through praise or rewards.
•giving children choices (when it's appropriate).
•helping children develop internal motivation by saying "you must be proud of yourself for hanging up your coat." or "Imagine how good you will feel when you can set the table by yourself."

Children do not automatically know how to do things around the house. Remember you must first show them. Preschool children learn best by doing, not by watching or listening. So when teaching your young child how to pick up his toys, you must first show him and let him help, step by step, with you right at his side giving encouragement. Then don't expect a miracle. Don't expect that just because he did it once he will remember or want to do it again. Developing responsibility is a long term task. But it can't happen unless we remember to encourage it.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Remind your children of the things you want them to do. Don't expect a young child to remember these tasks.

School News & Views

Irv Peterson, Superintendent, School District 564

Thank a teacher today

As I am writing this edition of School News and Views, we are approaching Mother's Day. By the time you read this, Mother's Day will be over. Mothers are key individuals in the lives of all children and all families every day of the year. Mothers and fathers are the first teachers that every child has, and they are the most influential and most important teachers for children all through their learning years. For the most effective education to occur for children, mothers and fathers need to be partners with schools. School teachers and parents, working together, can provide amazing opportunities for children and young people to learn. We can expect phenomenal growth and learning by children when this partnership is in sync. Research indicates that the two most important factors in a child's education are parent involvement and quality teachers.

It is natural then that I commend mothers at this time for all their efforts on behalf of their children. It also goes without saying that the role of the father is also extremely important. Parents, working together, provide the best possible scenario for their child's learning environment. It is also important to note at this same time the value of the quality instructors in the schools. Last week was National Teacher and Staff Appreciation Week. Teachers touch the minds and hearts of students. Many people, in fact most people, when asked who in their lives were most influential in their formative years, or most influential in their success - beyond their parents - will name a teacher who inspired them. Just like it is never the wrong time to express your appreciation or your love for your mother, it also is appropriate to express your thanks to teachers anytime of the year, or anytime in your life.

We are enjoying a much better spring this year than in the previous several years. In recent years at this time, we have been contemplating and making huge budget reductions and cutting programs, classes and opportunities for students. Due to the successful operating levy referendum last fall, we are able to maintain nearly all of our current programs for next year. With the success of the referendum, however, came the expectation from some people that we now have a large amount of revenue for new or enhanced programs and opportunities for students. This is an expectation that has been shared by some staff and others in the community.

Requests for new or enhanced programs total approximately $700,000. That is an annually recurring amount in most cases if those requests would be approved. That also is in addition to requests for updated curriculum and facility projects every year, which we do fund on a rotating basis and a smaller scale every year.

The board and administration will be very cautious and conservative in regards to adding programs. Our fund balance has been reduced in the past two years from approximately $2.8 million to less than $1.4 million - that amount is subject to our annual audit with final numbers not known until late summer or early fall. That has eliminated our flexibility to use the fund balance to soften program cutbacks in the near term. It is a high priority of the board and administration to start to rebuild the fund balance to an acceptable level. Our ability to do that is dependent on new dollars that may or may not be granted from the Legislature. We do not intend to start new programs one year and then have to make reductions the next year. We are looking at the long-term sustainability of programs prior to approval or implementation. State dollars for the upcoming biennium will not be known until at least early June. In the meantime, we plan for next year with continuation of most current programs, some reductions in specific areas that we have been cut back by federal funding, and possibly some minor additions in some areas.

The Legislature is currently debating not only the big funding picture for K-12 education, but also specific programs like early childhood, staff development, health and safety issues, gifted and talented funding, vocational funding, and yes they are still talking about the issue of all day, every day kindergarten (ADEDK). It certainly looks like it will receive only lip service again this year, but I strongly believe that, in the next three or four years, the Legislature will fund voluntary ADEDK programs - at least at an increased level, if not fully funded. Time will tell when that becomes reality at the legislative level. We will continue to study its possibility and feasibility at the local level, but we are unable to commit to it at this time.

Other areas of requests include restoring a theater/drama position, increasing science or math or physical education positions - all of which have been reduced in the past three years. Requests also include considering soccer as an extracurricular activity, restoring paraprofessional positions, supervision positions, and other staff and programs. All these requests and others will be studied by administration and board committees, as well as the board as a whole, in the months to come. No promises are being made at this time to add any of these requests to our current programs or budgets. In fact, most will not be approved for the 2005-06 school year and will be very questionable even beyond that. As I said repeatedly last fall at all the presentations I made, our main objective with the operating levy referendum was to stop the bleeding and maintain our current programs. I also said it would take significant changes by the state legislature in school funding formulas to keep us at the level we are at currently, without making additions. Current indications coming out of St. Paul are that we will receive some additional funding over the next biennium, but a commitment to a significant change currently is not on the table. I will continue to update you as the Legislature approaches its deadlines.

Call the district office to have me address a group or club regarding school issues and programs.

Farm Management Minute

The comments published in this column are intended to stimulate thinking and discussion among our readers. They are written by independent columnists and do not represent the opinion of the staff or management of The Times/Northern Watch.

Dairy report for the analysis year 2004

FBM Instructor, Detroit Lakes

The hardest working animal on the farm is the dairy cow. She gives you a calf every year and produces over 20,000 pounds of milk in 305 days. The second hardest working animal is you because you have to take care of this critter.

In 2004, the Minnesota Farm Business Management Program analyzed 533 dairy farms and some of the critical data is as follows: Average milk sold per cow was 20,163 pounds at an average price of $16.37 per hundredweight for a total value of milk sold of over $3,300. If you include the value of the homegrown feed, the cost to feed this cow was $1,175.27. The breeding fee was $36.37, and the vet cost was $103.56. Supplies were $124.15, repairs cost $111.36 and some other costs listed under direct expense are bovine somatotropin, Dairy Herd Improvement Association, fuel and oil, custom hire, hired labor, machinery leases, hauling, marketing, and bedding come to $263.75 for a total direct cost per cow of $1,814.46.

There are some overhead costs like building and machinery depreciation of $120.36 and interest of $112.41. Utilities, farm insurance, miscellaneous and other custom work comes to $408.81, so the overhead total is $641.58. The bottom line on cost is total direct of $1,814.46 and overhead of $641.58 for a grand total of $2,456.04. So did the farmer make any money working and milking this cow for 305 days?

After taking into account all expenses, and adjustments for the cost of maintaining the herd, the dairy farmer took home $748 per cow. In farm management, we also assign a labor and management charge to try to account for all the hard work that goes into the dairy operation, and that equals nearly $200 per cow. The bottom line is that the net return over labor and management was $554 and those farms in the top 20 percent of net return earned $1,014 per cow.

This is why some producers are smiling these days. My hat comes off to them for all the work they do and after several challenging years in the dairy industry, I say it's about time they made a good profit. For more information about our dairy analysis or any other farm product analysis, contact a farm business management instructor at 1-800-[illegible]

TRF Community Arts Council to hold auditions for Carousel

The Thief River Falls Community Arts Council announced auditions for its second show of the summer season last week. Auditions for "Carousel," an award-winning Broadway show written by Rodgers and Hammerstein, will take place on Monday, May 16 and Tuesday, May 17 from 5 to 7 p.m. each evening at the United Methodist Church in Thief River Falls. This musical will be directed by Jane Anderson.

"Carousel" is the story of Billy Bigelow, a smooth-talking carousel barker who falls in love with a millworker (Julie Jordan) on the colorful coast of Maine. They marry and decide to start a family. But right before the birth of his daughter, Billy is killed while committing a robbery. Now in heaven, years later, he returns to earth for one day to attend his daughter's high school graduation and teach her one very important lesson.

Anyone interested in auditioning must bring a selection of music to sing. Those who wish to audition should select something from Carousel or something they are comfortable with. There will be an accompanist provided for auditions, but sheet music must be provided by the auditioning individual. Those auditioning will also be asked to read dialogue from the play, unless they are only interested in a chorus role. Dancing will not be required during the audition. Packets which include scenes and more information are available at the Thief River Falls Public Library.

Performance dates for "Carousel" are scheduled for July 26-31, 2005 at the Northland College Theater. Stage rehearsal will begin during the last week of June and continue through the month until performance dates.

Anyone who is unable to make the audition times listed on the audition flyer but would like to be considered for "Carousel," should contact Director Jane Anderson at 681-3810 before May 16.

Otto L. Dale, 82

Denver, Colo. - Otto L. Dale, 83, of Denver, Colo., and formerly of Thief River Falls, died from complications of a stroke on Thursday, April 21, 2005 at the Select Specialty Hospital in south Denver, Colo.

Otto L. Dale was born on October 4, 1922 in Brinsmade, N.D., one of four sons of the Rev. Stephen A.N. Dale and Louise Foss Dale. At the time of his birth, his father was serving a parish in Montana.

Otto graduated from high school in St. James, in June 1940. In September of 1940, he enrolled at St. Olaf College in Northfield. In September 1942, Otto enlisted in the United States Navy as an apprentice seaman. On April 26, 1945, he was commissioned an ensign in the Naval Reserve. He was discharged from the Navy in January 1946.

During the summer of 1942, in St. James, Otto was introduced to Janette C. Rustad of Kindred, N.D., a graduate of Concordia College in Moorhaead. On May 19, 1945, Otto and Janette were married in the chapel at Harvard University in Cambridge, Mass., where Otto had been attending Midshipman's School prior to receiving his commission.

In 1945, Otto enrolled at the University of Tampa, Fla., to continue work on his bachelor's degree. Otto was an undergraduate at the University and Janette was the dean of women. In September 1946, Otto enrolled at Luther Seminary in St. Paul, to prepare for the ministry in the Evangelical Lutheran Church. He graduated in 1949 and was ordained as a Lutheran pastor in June that same year.

Shortly after his ordination, Otto began his ministry in his first parish at American Lutheran Church in Milbank, S.D. In 1951, Otto became the pastor of Hope Lutheran Church in Minneota. He served as pastor of Hope until December 1954, when he became pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church in Thief River Falls. In 1959, Otto was asked by the Home Mission Department of the ELC to start a church in Sarasota, Fla. He organized Holy Cross Lutheran Church in Sarasota during the summer and fall of 1959 and served that parish until the summer of 1961, when he was called to be the pastor of Bethlehem Lutheran Church in Fergus Falls.

During these years, Otto and Janette became the parents of seven children, Stephen in 1947, Gregory in 1949, Joan in 1951, Evonne in 1953, Bradley in 1956, Catherine in 1957 and Rolf in 1961. He and Janette have nine grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

While he was pastor at Bethlehem in Fergus Falls, Otto and Janette began to organize trips to Israel and to Europe. Otto made seven trips to Israel and Janette made nine trips, helping to make it possible for several hundred people to visit the Holy Land. Otto served as pastor at Bethlehem in Fergus Falls for 15 years, until the summer of 1976, when he became an agent for Lutheran Brotherhood in Alexandria. During the five years he worked for Lutheran Brotherhood, Otto continued to serve the church by substituting for pastors who needed to be gone or by assisting churches that were without a pastor. Indeed, Otto would say that he had done more preaching during the five years he was out of the parish, than he had when he had been a full-time pastor.

In 1980, Otto began assisting Glenwood Lutheran Church in Glenwood. In 1981, Otto was called to be the senior pastor at Glenwood Lutheran and he served that parish until his retirement in 1987 after almost forty years in the ministry.

Following his retirement in July of 1987, Otto and Janette moved to Westminster, Colo., to live near most of their children and grandchildren who had previously relocated to Colorado. During the early years of his retirement, Otto served as the interim pastor at several churches in Colorado and Nebraska. Later, he continued to serve as a substitute preacher on Sunday mornings at a number of churches in the Denver area.

In December 2003, Otto and Janette moved to University Place, Washington, where their daughter Evonne, resides with her family. They made several trips back to Colorado to visit with their other children, five of whom continued to reside in the greater Denver area.

Otto and Janette were on a visit to Colorado when Otto was stricken with a stroke on Easter Sunday. He died from complications of another stroke he suffered a week and a half after Easter Sunday, on April 21, 2005 at the Select Specialty Hospital in South Denver, Colo.

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q: I anticipate receiving benefits as a divorced wife from my ex-husbands Social Security. Can I get these benefits before he starts his Social Security retirement?

A: It is possible for SSA benefits to be paid to a divorced wife (or husband), even if their ex-husband (or ex-wife) has not yet started their own Social Security retirement. Remember that SSA benefits are very specific and this particular possibility will not apply to all. For purposes of this answer the person's record from which benefits are paid is the number holder (NH), as in holder of the social security number involved. In other words, if you receive benefits from the record of your ex-husband, he is the number holder.

In general, a person can receive benefits as a divorced spouse based on age if they are at least age 62, have filed an application for benefits, are finally divorced from the NH after having been married to him/her for a period of at least 10 years, are not currently married, and not entitled to a Social Security benefit from their own record that is high enough to prevent a spousal benefit from being paid. There is a mathematical formula used for this requirement. In addition the NH must have insured status, meaning enough work to be eligible for Social Security benefits, and be receiving SSA benefits.

Within the realm of divorced spousal benefits a subcategory known as "independently entitled divorced spouse" exists. Those eligible as an independently entitled divorced spouse can receive SSA benefits before the NH starts his or her own benefits but they must meet additional requirements. In addition to all the above items, independently entitled divorced spouse benefits can be paid if they have been finally divorced from the NH for at least two continuous years and the NH is at least age 62, even if he/she has not filed a claim for SSA benefits. One last item for consideration is that, by definition, all SSA spousal benefits mean that both parties are alive.

Survivor benefits are involved if the NH is deceased. The benefit type to a former wife or husband or her in that situation is called "surviving divorced spouse." Requirements for surviving divorced spouse benefits based on age are similar to divorced spouse (life) benefits but can begin as early as age 60. For more information see the SSA Web site, www.socialsecurity.gov, call the SSA toll-free number 800-772-1213, or contact any SSA office.

Peterson calls for support of energy bill

School districts, municipal utilities and rural cooperatives will benefit from a provision in the Energy Bill that passed the U.S. House of Representatives on April 21. The provision reauthorizes the Renewable Energy Production Incentive (REPI) program to allow these entities to invest in renewable energy sources, such as wind, solar, geothermal and biomass generation systems.

Congressman Collin Peterson (D-Minn) praised the reauthorization of REPI and also introduced a bill to promote investment in wind energy facilities.

"It is getting harder to keep up with the cost of doing business in rural communities as energy prices continue to skyrocket," Peterson said. "The only sensible way to control our energy costs in the long run is to get serious about investing in renewable energy sources.

Peterson's bill encourages the development of renewable energy facilities by allowing passive investors to receive tax credits and deduct losses related to their investment in wind energy facilities. Such tax credits and loss offsets are currently available to investors in oil, gas and real estate.

"In rural communities, wind turbines can produce additional income, but installing them is expensive," Peterson said. "I am proud that Minnesota leads the nation in renewable energy efforts and I will continue to support efforts to create and promote renewable fuels."

New Breakthrough Technology in Cataract Eye Surgery

Cataract surgery has become one of the most successfully performed surgical procedures in modern medicine. Now there is a new technique for cataract surgery that makes the experience easier and more comfortable for the patient.

The Clear Cornea technique makes an incision ⅛th of an inch long. The opening is so small, that in most cases, no eye patches or sutures are required.

When making this tiny incision, your doctor uses a sharp diamond blade that causes very little trauma to the eye and allows clearer vision more rapidly than with older techniques. Patients can return to normal activities with minimum interruption in their daily routine.

If you or someone you love has signs of cataracts; such as blurred vision or glare, call or visit your local eye care provider and learn more about this new procedure.

Volunteer fire departments to the rescue

People who let grass fires get away have always been pretty low on my totem pole. Good grief, what did they expect to happen, lighting a fire on a windy, dry spring day? Do they get some sort of sick thrill out of having the fire department come out?

Just when I was getting to feel pretty superior about this, a fire, the origins of which could be traced directly to somebody who looks a lot like me, jumped a road and started heading in the general direction of my new house.

By the time I arrived at the scene, a good chunk of forest was aflame, and the fire, backed by a stiff southeast wind, was headed for the reeds on the edge of the swamp. Once it reached the reeds, I knew it would really take off.

I ran back to the place and got two helpers. We brought out the skid steer loader with a load of sand, as well as some garbage cans to roll over the flames which crept through the leaves.

Unfortunately, the forest was filled with downed trees, and once they started on fire, there was no putting out the flames by rolling garbage cans around.

Still, the thought of calling the fire department never occurred to me. That is what irresponsible people do - rely on others to put out the fires they start. No sir, I put out my own fires, thank you very much.

My helpers were Cassio and Danilo, two Brazilian students working for me on a farm exchange program. They attacked the problem with their customary zeal. They pounded out the flames with boards and scooped sand. One jumped on the skid steer and pushed up dirt on the flames.

The fire was still expanding. By now it was threatening the wood pile. I ran up to the house and called Dad, figuring a little wisdom of the ages might come in handy if were going to get this thing put out.

He didn't hesitate to impart his wisdom: Call the fire department. Now.

Calling the fire department for our little fire seemed a little to me like killing a house fly with a sledge hammer, but it was pretty clear that we weren't going to put the thing out on our own.

After I called 911, I ran back to find the two Brazilians valiantly battling the fire to the point of putting themselves in danger. I told them to back off, help was on the way.

Soon, several of Fertile's Finest, jolted away from their cold Friday evening beers by yet another spring grass fire, appeared on the scene and made quick work of our little inferno.

Small town volunteer fire departments are one of the great institutions around here. To city folks, the term "volunteer fire department" might conjure up an image of a bucket brigade, but these days, small town fire departments are well-equipped and highly trained.

They are trained in diplomacy, too, for if the firemen were chagrined at having their supper interrupted for a foolish fire, they were too professional to show it.

One of the firemen is one of the carpenters building the house. There was some joking about him not wanting to start the thing over.

A couple of others were curious where it was I had put the skid steer loader through the ice last winter. Ah yes, the humiliations are starting to build upon each other.

After the fire department left, Dad went out with his chain saw and cut up some of the logs which were still smoldering. We hauled a few pails of water to dump on the remaining ember. By dark, we couldn't see anything glowing.

What a relief. As Ma Ingalls of Little House on the Prairie was fond of saying, "All's well that ends well." Even if you have to call the fire department.

On April 14, Mike Distel (left) and Ardelle Anderson accepted a $488,600 grant on behalf of the city of Viking from Matt Kramer, commissioner of the Minnesota Department of Employment and Economic Development. The grant will be used to complete sanitary sewer work and to rehabilitate owner-occupied housing. The United States Department of Agriculture Rural Development will provide additional funds for the project.

The Challenger Elementary Readathlon was held during an overnight lock-in on Friday, April 29. The Readathlon is like a decathlon for reading. This year, 56 second through fifth grade students at Challenger Elementary School participated in the event. Students spent their time participating in Pantomine Poetry, Readers' Theater, Bingo for Books, reading, writing the Silliest Story Ever Written, telling Mysterious Mysteries, a Book Olympics, completing an Almanac Challenge, dancing, and designing the cover for the next "Harry Potter" book. Students signed up for the event in March. The Readathlon was held in conjunction with TV Turn-Off Week at Challenger as the students did not watch any movies or tv during their entire 22 hours in the media center. Pictured are students acting out scenes from Reader's Theater Mystery. Volunteers for the event included Karol Haubrich, Sheryll Wheeler, Maryfran Twistol, Denice Nelson, Shannon Mosbeck, Sandy Fladeland, and Jane Anderson. Danny's Pizza donated pizzas for the event. Jamie Bakken arranged for the event to take place, and she plans to have the Third Annual Readathlon next spring. (Submitted photo)

Lincoln High School Orchestra rehearsed in its rehearsal hall on Monday in preparation for an upcoming concert. The Lincoln High School and Franklin Middle School orchestras will perform a concert beginning at 7 p.m. on May 16, in the Lincoln High School auditorium.

FMS and LHS orchestras to perform spring concert May 16

The Franklin Middle School (FMS) and Lincoln High School (LHS) orchestras will present their annual spring concert Monday, May 16 at 7 p.m. This will be the last orchestra concert for many orchestra seniors. The cost is $5 for adults and $3 for students and senior citizens with proceeds to benefit the orchestra program in Thief River Falls.

The FMS Sixth Grade Orchestra will perform first with four songs from its classroom book, "Fugue in C" by George F. Handel; "Springtime," "Tchaikowsky Festival" and "Brandenburg #3" by Johann Sebastian Bach. The orchestra will then perform the song "Can you Feel the Love Tonight" from the movie "The Lion King." The sixth graders will conclude their portion of the concert with "Dramatic Essay," featuring slow and fast contrasting sections and modern rhythms and harmonies.

The FMS Seventh and Eighth Grade Orchestra will open its portion of the concert with "Concerto in G," an arrangement of Antonio Vivaldi's "Concerto for Two Horns," written instead for first and second violins. It will then play three themes from recent movies: "My Heart Will Go On" from "Titanic," "Theme From Mission: Impossible," and "Themes from Harry Potter and the Sorcerer's Stone."

The LHS Ninth and 10th Grade Orchestra will perform Christoph Gluck's "Symphony in G." Gluck is more known for his operatic work, and "Symphony in G" is reminiscent of the overtures of his operas. This particular piece gives the violins quite a workout.

The LHS 11th and 12th Grade Orchestra will perform "Concerto in C for Two Violins" by George Telemann. Senior violinists Kayla Gallagher and Angie Blom will be featured with the orchestra. It is a three-movement work with a slow second movement sandwiched between two energetic movements.

The combined LHS Orchestra will then perform "Two Elegaic Melodies" by the famous Norwegian composer Edvard Grieg. The first melody, "Heart-wounds," is a tone poem describing a wounded heart. The second movement, "The Last Spring," describes an old man who is reminiscing about his life as he knows that this will be his "last spring." The combined orchestra will then play the popular song "Bohemian Rhapsody," by the rock group Queen, made famous by such movies as "Wayne's World." The string arrangement features a piano and drum set.

The concert will conclude with a performance by the LHS Symphony, which includes members of the LHS Wind Ensemble combined with the LHS Orchestra. The symphony will perform "Pirates of the Caribbean" from the movie of the same name.

There will be a reception for the graduating seniors after the concert in the cafeteria.

The musicians include in the FMS Sixth Grade Orchestra – on first violin: Kelly Fynboh, Allison Holter, Devin Spears and Kayla Nelson; second violin: Casey Braastad, Caitlin Nelson and Taylor Woods; bass: Brett Drevlow; viola: Lauren Bauer and Kenton Johnson; and cello: Leeann Szeto and Shelby Dvergsten.

Sen. Stumpf's education plan gains support

The K-12 Education Funding Bill authored by Sen. LeRoy Stumpf (DFL-Plummer) passed May 5 unanimously on the Senate floor. The legislation provides a 9 percent funding increase over the next two years.

"The Senate plan directs adequate resources to our classrooms so we can deliver on core educational programs," Stumpf said. "Ultimately, Minnesota will succeed if we focus on quality education for our children." Stumpf is the chairperson of the Senate Education Finance Division.

The bill increases the state's education basic funding formula by 5 percent in 2006 and 4 percent in 2007. The "Basic Formula" is the "workhorse" of education funding -- providing the main dollar source for schools to lower class sizes, purchase books, computers, supplies and fund basic education programming for all public school students.

The bill reinstates special education cuts made two years ago by providing a 4.2 percent increase in FY2006 and 4.6 percent in FY2007. In addition, the bill includes $93 million in performance pay matched by $35 million in federal dollars to reward quality teaching.

"Everyone certainly agrees that quality public education is a core Minnesota value," Stumpf said. "The fact that this K-12 education funding bill attracted a unanimous 67-0 vote underscores our bipartisan commitment to educating Minnesota children."

The bill [illegible] area provisions. The Red Lake School District receives an appropriation to help with repair costs stemming from the tragic school shooting earlier this year. Funding for a handicap accessible elevator was provided to the East Grand Forks School District.

Scheduling jail time?

Oakland said. "The thing we are looking at is how much more will it cost our taxpayers."

County boards meet

The proposal Hruby presented Tuesday was the same one he presented to Red Lake County Commissioners in March. The Pennington County Jail includes 28 beds with a medium/maximum security designation. An additional 72 beds, located in an annex, are available for minimum security and work release inmates. The jail also offers three holding cells that can house juveniles for 24 hours on week days and 72 hours on weekends.

As part of the proposal, Hruby guaranteed up to five beds of jail space for Red Lake County inmates. He told Red Lake County commissioners, "if they contract with Pennington County and at any time the jail is full, he would move local inmates to make room for Red Lake County inmates.

Hruby highlighted many court-ordered programs that are available to inmates, including Alcoholics Anonymous, Narcotics Anonymous, anger management, GED certification and home monitoring.

Juvenile detention was another topic highlighted by Hruby. Under the proposal, Red Lake County has many options available for dealing with juveniles. As was stated earlier, three holding cells are available for short term incarceration. Rates would be the same as adult detention.

According to the proposal, in cases where long term detention is needed, the Northwest Regional Juvenile Center in Bemidji is available to serve Red Lake County at non-member rates. Placement would be dependent on the recommendation of probation or the court and would include both delinquent and status offenders.

Juveniles, whose immediate needs are not as severe, could potentially be placed at Pathfinders Group Home in Thief River Falls. Pathfinders is a Pennington County funded group home and it was included in a tour of county law enforcement facilities that both counties' commissioners participated in during the joint meeting.

Currently Red Lake County offers a juvenile transition program. According to Hruby, who noted that Pennington County once offered a similar program, the juvenile transition program could continue through either county's sheriff's offices and/or probation and parole offices.

Two major topics at the meeting were inmate medical costs and the Sentence to Serve program.

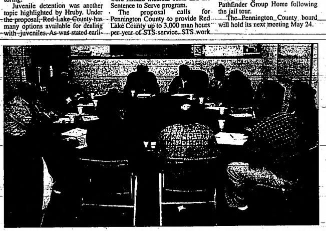
The proposal calls for Pennington County to provide Red Lake County up to 3,000 man hours per year of STS service. STS work would include maintenance and upkeep of government buildings, access ramps, elderly/area aging work such as chore services, raking leaves, shoveling snow and many other services.

Pennington County tries to maximize its use of STS, resulting in fewer jail days and a large reduction in housing fees. As an example, Hruby stated that 4,400 jail days were saved and $24,000 in fines payed through sentence to serve in 2003.

Medical costs were also a key point in Hruby' presentation. Red Lake County's medical costs would be $2,443, approximately $1.77 per jail day for the proposal's estimated 1,380 jail days per year. Hruby said most of the county's medical expenses would come from prescription drugs. Hruby added that bogus medical claims are rare, since inmates are required to cover copay costs.

Both boards toured the jail facility following discussion of the proposal. Commissioners were able to see the jail first hand. The tour included sections of all security levels, the dispatch center, booking room as well as the annex facility. Red Lake County Commissioners were also granted a tour of the Pathfinder Group Home following the jail tour.

The Pennington County board will hold its next meeting May 24.



The Pennington and Red Lake county boards held a joint meeting last week to discuss the possibility of Red Lake County contracting with Pennington County or jail services. Pictured clockwise from top is Pennington County Board Chairman Charles Naplin; RLC Commissioner Nancy Haglund; Pennington County Sheriff Mike Hruby; PC Commissioner Arden "Bud" Comstock; Jail Administrator Susan Halvorson; Bob Cardinal, STS; Wayne Nomeland, Department of Corrections; Red Lake County Board Chairman Ron Weiss; RLC Commissioner Brent Strand; RLC Commissioner Velma Oakland; PC Commissioner Bob Carlson; PC Commissioner Skip Swanson; PC Commissioner Don Jensen; and RLC Commissioner Edward Larson.

About 150 local residents prayed for government leaders Thursday during Thief River Falls' observance of the National Day of Prayer at Floyd B. Olson Park. Organizers hope it will be the first of many National Day of Prayer observances in the city.

grew beyond what would fit in their location at the intersection of Third and LaBree.

"We needed something more secure for the future," said LeeAnn.

LeeAnn said she had been looking at the building formerly occupied by Bjorkman's. The time was right. "Marsha Bjorkman was very helpful."

While she relied on friends and relatives to help her set up shop in her first store, this time LeeAnn said she relied mostly on local experts. Joel Dahlen did the construction work and the decorative cherry wood. Jared Kalsness and Karen Kirkeby of Paint and Glass found her the right carpet from Belgium. Monson Electric (an employee's husband) provided the electrical work. Kenny Aarestad put down the carpet, Blair Lund the painting, Joel Borchert the tiling, and Brodin's provided a fireplace. Lee Plumbing did the plumbing, Mike Thull the awning, and Paul Odette the security system. There were many more friends and experts there to make sure Diamonds and Designs moved into a store that reflects its image and customer's preferences, but the point she's trying to make is that she kept her business local as much as possible.

"Someday I'd like to go on a long vacation," said LeeAnn of the long hours, stress, and hard work.

She's been on a few long trips, including a trip to South Africa, which a vendor provided. It was on that trip she said that she realized how much of a miracle it really was for her to have her own jewelry business. All of the people on the trip, she said, were second or third generation jewelry shop owners. All of them were men except for one, and she was a second generation owner.

In the 10 years she's owned and operated Diamonds and Designs, LeeAnn said the best part about it was the camaraderie. "We're like a family," she said. It's secure, she added, and there's a high-degree of trust.

She's also developed a long list of friends during that time. Donna Mickelson, who nominated her for the award, said they met when LeeAnn was a Sunday School teacher at Zion Lutheran Church. In the nearly 20 years since then, Mickelson said she found LeeAnn to be a very hard worker, and of not being afraid to put in the long hours it takes to make a business succeed. "She's knowledgeable about the jewelry business and is concerned about each one of her customers being completely satisfied. She also genuinely loves her job."

Look at the brass plaques on the cabinets in Diamonds and Designs. They read "Diamonds and Designs: Your Family Jeweler." It could also read, this miracle brought to you by friends.

NWMC celebrates National Hospital, Nursing Home weeks

Northwest Medical Center (NWMC) is celebrating National Hospital Week May 8-14 with the theme of "A Calling to Care." "From the most remarkable medical breakthrough to the simplest act of compassion, the people of health care are changing the world around them."

It is also celebrating National Nursing Home Week. This year's theme for National Nursing Home Week, "Celebrating Life," highlights the wisdom, joy and love older adults have to share with other generations, and provides an opportunity to celebrate the special relationships that exist among seniors, the community and those who provide care and services.

A number of activities have been planned for this week, including Kid's Day, where area second graders are invited to learn more about disabilities. As always, residents of the NWMC Convalescent and Nursing Care (CNC) Unit will have many activities planned for them and their families throughout this special week. Those activities are as follows:

- Wednesday (today) – Kid's Day for area second graders; Discovery Place will be at CNC1 at 10 a.m.; International Day Party on CNC1
- Thursday – Planting flowers with Roxanne at 2:30 p.m. on CNC2
- Friday – Red Hat Society Open House 2 to 4 p.m. on CNC2
- Saturday – Ice cream sundaes with residents and family at 1:30 p.m. on CNC1 and 2; musical entertainment at 2 p.m. on CNC1 and 2.

Earlier in the week, Monday's activities included big buck bingo and pizza, and entertainment from the Sunrise Singers. Tuesday marked free popcorn day. Eagles View Outreach Church also held a puppet show Tuesday at CNC2.

Miss Marshall County honored at reception

Brianne Johnson, Miss Marshall County, will be honored at a reception on Saturday, May 14, at the Farmer Dell Steakhouse and Lounge in Argyle, at 2 p.m.

Brianne will be competing in the Miss Minnesota Scholarship Pageant in St. Paul the week of June 12-18.

Miss Johnson will model her competition wardrobe and share her talent with the well-wishers at the reception. She will also present information on her platform.

Lunch will be served and everyone is welcome.

Brianne is the daughter of Tracey Ebertowski of Argyle, and Lynn Johnson of Grafton. She represented the community of Argyle as Miss Argyle prior to being crowned Miss Marshall County in June of 2004.

There will be an information workshop for the 2005 contestants for Miss Marshall County, and a committee meeting following the reception.

Knights of Columbus hold annual recognition banquet

On May 1, the Lady of Lourdes Council No. 4619 of the Knights of Columbus held a recognition banquet for its past Grand Knights. Deputy Grand Knight Chris Bruggeman presented the slate of past Grand Knights since the council was formed in 1958.

There are 34 past Grand Knights. Among the past grand nights attending were Dennis Bachland, 1961, Clarence Semanko, 1970, Bill Fogarty, 1981, Darryl Tveitbakk, 1983, Larry Langevin, 1994, Jeff Fox, 1997 and 2003 and Jim Amundson, 2001.

Bruggeman also presented a sports achievement certificate to Zach Hockert for his accomplishment to make it to the state finals in the freethrow contest.

Ralph Cox presented the Knight's annual scholarship grants to Heidi Jung, Lara Kuznia, Matthew Langevin and Aaron Swanson. Two grants are for students pursuing education at Northland Community and Technical College and two are for students attending any other college.

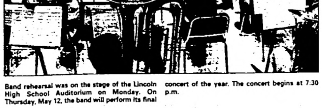
These are the top council awards and recognize these individuals for their contributions to Council activities, church involvement, youth programs and involvement in the community.

The awards program was concluded with an inspiring presentation by Art Heinze on the capabilities of the handicapped. He demonstrated how any person can overcome a physical disability by being positive in their actions.



Band rehearsal was on the stage of the Lincoln High School Auditorium on Monday. On Thursday, May 12, the band will perform its final concert of the year. The concert begins at 7:30 p.m. operated. Twenty years ago, without computers, Steiger said he would have had twice as many employees, including at least one or two additional office staff members.

The history of Steiger Manufacturing

Steiger Manufacturing's history goes back approximately 40 years. Steiger's grandfather John; father, Maurice; and uncle Douglass incorporated the business in the 1960s. They created the first four-wheel drive agricultural tractor, which became known as the Steiger tractor. Demand grew, and the Steigers determined their rural Thief River Falls facility was too small to continue to manufacture the tractors. In the early 1970s, the tractor business was sold.

Despite selling the tractor business, the Steigers continued manufacturing other items, including the Toreq Earth Scraper and Hydra Mac. They manufactured those items at separate Thief River Falls locations.

However, by the early 1980s, the Steigers shifted their workload. Steiger; his father, Maurice; and brothers, Bruce and Bradley, became the owners of Toreq and Steiger Farms. They moved business operations back to rural Thief River Falls in the same facility where Steiger tractors were first manufactured. In 1985, that building burned, and the Steigers decided to build a new facility on that same location.

Six years later, Steiger's father and brothers were killed in a private airplane crash. Steiger then became the sole operator of Toreq and Steiger Farms.

payroll/benefits director and member of the district's Safety and Wellness committees.

Each machine costs $2,198. The Thief River Falls Education Foundation has already agreed to pay for two defibrillators. However, the district would like to have at least three additional defibrillators.

Besides the defibrillators, there are the added costs of training and annual oversight, among other things, for an additional $6,550.

Approximately 30 staff members will be trained on the defibrillators at each site Anderson hopes to set up school emergency teams as well and even train kids on AED use.

"A third grader can even do it," said Anderson, who noted her daughter was able to use it during CPR training.

Last fall, the district's Safety and Wellness committees began exploring the possibility of having defibrillators after an AED representative sent information to Superintendent [illegible] Peterson.

To make a tax deductible donation to the defibrillator fund, send a check to the Thief River Falls Education Foundation, 230 LaBree Ave. S., Thief River Falls, MN 56701. In the memo area of the check, write defibrillator.

The Thief River Falls TIMES

Pioneers lose two games at state baseball tournament

It was an 0-2 Northland showing at the 2005 Minnesota Community College Conference state baseball tournament played Friday and Saturday in Rochester.

The Pioneers lost an 8-3 first round game to Itasca Friday morning and were beaten by Dakota County 3-2 that same afternoon.

Fergus Falls won the eight-team event with a 4-3 nine-inning championship game decision over Ridgewater.

Northland finished second to Itasca in the Northern Division standings, but the state tournament draw was done on a seeding basis, and the Vikings were No. 3 while the Pioneers drew the No. 6 spot.

MCCC State Tournament
- Quarterfinals - Ridgewater 8, Mesabi Range 1; Rochester 3, Central Lakes 2; Fergus Falls 5, Dakota County 2; Itasca 8, Northland 3.
- Semifinals - Ridgewater 3, Rochester 2; Fergus Falls 5, Itasca 4.
- Championship - Fergus Falls 4, Ridgewater 3 (9 innings).
- Third place - Itasca 4, Rochester 3.
- Consolation semifinals - Central Lakes 5, Mesabi Range 2; Dakota County 3, Northland 2.
- Consolation final - Central Lakes 7, Dakota County 3.
- True fourth - Rochester 11, Central Lakes 1.

"Playing Itasca was a tough first round match-up for us," acknowledged Northland coach Steve Gust.

Itasca jumped out to a 4-0 first inning lead, and after giving up a pair of runs to Northland in the top of the second, came right back with three more in the bottom of the inning.

"The one thing we did not want was Itasca getting off to a good start," said Gust. "We made some mistakes and they hit the ball well early in the game. We battled the whole game, but just couldn't solve their pitcher. Brandon Fritz did a nice job mixing up locations and speed. The difference in the game was Fritz and their timely hitting."

Northland ran into another strong pitcher in the loser-out bracket when the Pioneers could muster just a first and a seventh inning run off Dakota County's Dan Miller.

"We just couldn't get the timely hit when we needed it," explained Gust, whose team had the tying run on base when the game ended. "Their pitcher (Miller) did a nice job of throwing strikes and mixing it up."

Northland pitcher Adam Violette scattered five hits in his six innings of work. "Dakota County hit the ball in the early innings, but Violette did a nice job in his complete game," offered Gust.

Northland finished the year 20-19 – the Pioneers' first 20-win season since 1994. They went 11-5 in Northern Division play.

"I am very proud of our players and the season they had," said Gust, who was in his first year as Pioneers coach. "A 20-19 record isn't spectacular, but the guys certainly laid the foundation for the future. I can honestly say these kids played up to and sometimes beyond their potential. These kids will always have a special place in my heart."

With the top four state tournament finishers earning spots in the National Junior College Athletic Association Division III Region 13 tournament May 13-15 in Willmar, third place Itasca and fourth place Rochester also had their seasons extended.

The regional winner will move on to the NJCAA Division III national tournament May 21-27 in Glens Falls, N.Y.

Jeff Chandler of Crookston was almost on top of the plate as teammate Peter Curran attempted to put down a suicide squeeze bunt during Thursday's high school baseball game against Thief River Falls. Curran missed the bunt, but Chandler still scored – on a steal of home – before catcher Michael Benedict could make the tag. It was the first run of game won by the Prowlers 20-7.

Mustangs test Prowlers in 11-7 contest

On paper, a young, 2-12 Class A Red Lake County Central team didn't match up well with a veteran 9-3 Class AAA Thief River Falls ball club in Monday's high school softball game at the Multi-Events Center. The Prowlers did win all right, but the scrappy Mustangs didn't go down without a fight. The visitors cut into a 10-4 deficit and forced a seventh inning pitching change before bowing 11-7.

Sophomore shortstop Brittany Gustafson and eighth grade catcher Kayla Pelletier, the top of the Red Lake County Central batting order, gave Thief Falls fits. Together, they reached base seven times (in seven official at-bats) with five hits a walk and an error, and scored five of the Mustangs' seven runs.

The late-afternoon contest started with a bunt single by Gustafson and an infield hit by Pelletier. An infield ground-out gave Ashley Johanning an RBI and Pelletier scored on an error for a quick 2-0 Red Lake County Central lead.

Thief River Falls answered with four runs in the bottom of the inning. Kjelsy Loeffler duplicated Gustafson's efforts with an inning-opening bunt single, then stole second and scored on a double into the right-center field gap by Jamie Hoglo. A walk and an error loaded the bases, providing Trudy Erickson with an RBI on a walk. A two-out, two-run error made it a 4-2 game.

Gustafson and Pelletier were at it again in the third when Gustafson was hit by a pitch and Pelletier singled. With two out, Kelsey Jensen singled to right for a run, and when an error was tacked on to the play, the trying run crossed the plate.

The Prowlers gained the upper hand by scoring six times in the bottom of the third - an inning that started with singles by Kindra Trontvet and Chasity Johnson that were followed by a walk issued to Allyson Helling to load the bases with nobody out. An infield error broke the tie. Megan Berg then drilled a two-run single off the third base bag. Hoglo drew a bases-loaded walk and a fly ball to left field by Trontvet went for a two-run error to make it 10-4.

Trontvet doubled and scored on a base hit by Jenny Grove in the fifth, but Red Lake County Central got that run back on a Thief River Falls error in the sixth and scored two more runs in the seventh when back-to-back singles by Haven Lundeen and Gustafson were followed by an infield throwing error that allowed both runners to cross the plate.

That prompted Thief River Falls coach Matt Okeson to use Berg, his ace, as a relief pitcher. Berg was being employed as a batter-only designated player while Allyson Helling handled the pitching duties. Helling struck out nine through six innings, but eight hits, two walks and four Thief River Falls errors put Mustangs on the bases. Berg ended it quickly with two strike-outs and an infield ground-out.

Prowlers handle tennis foes, 13-1

Thief River Falls boys high school tennis coach Troy Hanestad has put a variety of line-ups together this spring. The different combinations, however, have not kept the team out of the winner's circle. The Prowlers pushed their record to 9-1 Friday with one-sided wins over Detroit Lakes (7-0) and Fergus Falls (6-1) in a double-dual hosted by the Lakers.

Michael Forney, Cody Bottem, Jacob Engelstad and Chase Haviland posted singles wins, while Jon Kays-Joe Ihle, Jordan Swanson-Corey Horien and Jordan West-Brian Kays were doubles winners in the the Thief River Falls sweep against Detroit Lakes.

"Detroit Lakes is very young this year, which gave us an opportunity to rest players and move people up in the line-up so they could be challenged," explained Hanestad.

The Prowlers' winning combinations against Fergus Falls included Justin Pyle, Forney, Bottem and Engelstad in singles; Ihle-Swanson and Jon Kays-Horien in doubles.

"We played a strong singles line-up against Fergus Falls and they put their strength in doubles," pointed out Hanestad. "It had the makings of a great match. But our boys came up with big wins at No. 1 and No. 2 doubles against their top players, and our singles players all won easily. The boys really stepped it up."

Format switch sets up close team race

Park Rapids golf tournament

Switching formats resulted in an extremely tight team race Friday at the Park Rapids Invitational boys high school golf tournament.

The six golfers from each school were divided into three two-man teams, who played nine holes of best ball and nine holes of scramble golf. Scores of the three tandems were added up for the team totals.

The format found four teams finishing within two shots of each other atop the leader board. Moorhead emerged the winner with a 213. East Grand Forks and Crookston both came in at 214 and Thief River Falls had a 215.

Thief River Falls coach Dick Tyler was looking for better results. "It was a beautiful day, but the team just couldn't get anything going to be able to score real low," he said.

Medalist honors went to a Travis Ross-Jake Sanders combination from Crookston with a 36 best ball and 32 scramble for a four-under par 68.

The Prowlers were led by Paul Sjoberg and Brady Stanley with a 37-34–71.

Itasca runner Stacey Villebro crossed the plate before Northland catcher Tiffany Malwitz could turn and make the tag after catching a throw from the outfield during an April 3 Minnesota Community College Conference softball action at the Multi-Events Center. It was the only run the Vikings scored in a 9-1 Game 1 setback.

Two TRF wrestlers have first, second place state meets

Jacoby Bergeron and Andrew Peralta of Thief River Falls both turned in Freestyle title-winning performances and Greco runner-up finishes in the 2005 Minnesota USA Championships state youth wrestling tournament over the weekend.

Competition started Friday with Greco matches.

Bergeron competed in the 70-pound Schoolboy Division, where he beat Jacob Staffenhagen of Elk River 12-3 and Jordan Land of the St. Francis Gladiators 13-3 before losing to Jordan Kingsley of Apple Valley 9-6 in the finals.

Wrestling heavyweight in the Cadet Division, Peralta pinned Ben Stalberger of the Cougars, then lost to Blaine Hjelm of the Gladiators 5-2 in the title match.

The two Thief River Falls wrestlers won state titles during the Freestyle portion of the tournament.

Wins over Land 7-4 and Derek Scott of Sartell 15-4 put Bergeron into the finals against Kingsley – the wrestler who beat him in the Greco title match the day before.

Bergeron had a 1-0 lead at the end of regulation time, but freestyle rules require a wrestler to score at least three points to win a match. Kinsley began overtime with a

Sabres edge Prowlers

Sartell-St. Stephen scored in the bottom of the seventh inning to edge visiting Thief River Falls 1-0 Friday in high school softball.

Two bunts – the first for a base hit; the second a sacrifice – got the Sabres' seventh inning going. A base hit to right field plated the run when a throw to the plate was up the line.

With Megan Berg of the Prowlers and Ashley Heidebrink of the Sabres engaged in a pitcher's duel, base hits were hard to come by. Sartell-St. Stephen finished with three hits; Thief River Falls wound up with just two.

"We just didn't show up with our bats," said Thief River Falls coach Matt Okeson.

Prowlers split games in Alexandria tourney

Alexandria Invitational

■ Semifinals - Thief River Falls 3, Alexandria 1; Bemidji 6, Minneapolis Southwest 1.

■ Championship - Bemidji 6, Thief River Falls 1.

■ Third place - Alexandria 12, Minneapolis Southwest 1.

Contrasting results for Thief River Falls Saturday at the Alexandria Invitational high school softball tournament included a 3-1 semifinal win over the host Cardinals and a 6-1 championship game loss to Bemidji.

It was a 1-2 weekend for the 9-3 Prowlers, who were coming off a 1-0 Friday loss at Sartell-St. Stephen.

"We played two pretty good games, then that last one against Bemidji," reported Thief River Falls coach Matt Okeson.

The Prowlers scored a first inning run against Alexandria when DD Rambeck walked, stole second and crossed the plate on a Jamie Hoglo single to right-center field.

It was a 3-0 game in the top of the second on a lead-off bunt single by Kjesly Loeffler a base hit by Allyson Helling, a passed ball, then RBI singles by Brittni Johnson with one out and Amanda Timm with two out.

Berg struck out 12 Cardinals. A two-out triple and single in the third plated the lone Alexandria run.

Against Bemidji, Thief River Falls had more errors (5) than hits (2). Half of the Lumberjacks' runs were unearned.

"We have to play a lot better than that if we're going to compete against good teams like Bemidji," acknowledged Okeson. "We just didn't play very well."

The tone was set for the title game when an error on the first Lumberjacks' batter and a fielder's choice preceded a pair of wild pitches for a quick 2-0 Bemidji lead.

Three straight Bemidji hits loaded the bases in the second inning and a fielder's choice made it a 3-0 game.

It was 6-0 before Thief River Falls got on the board in the top of the seventh on a walk issued to Chasity Johnson, a one-out single by Allyson Helling and a wild pitch.

throw for two points, but Bergeron countered with a lift for a 3-2 win.

The victory gave Bergeron the 70-pound spot on the Minnesota USA Schoolboy team that will wrestle in Indianapolis June 15-19.

Peralta pinned three opponents en route to his title. Those came against Trenton Lustfield of Benson, Greco conquer Helm and Ben Condon of the Blue Dragons.

The performance earned Peralta a spot on the Cadet team that will wrestle in Kansas City June 23-27.

A third Thief River Falls wrestler placing in the state tournaments was Stevie Keogh, who was third in Greco and sixth in Freestyle.

Bergeron, Peralta and Keogh have all qualified to wrestle in the Northern Plains Kids/Cadet Regional Greco and Freestyle Championships June 9-11 in Rochester. The event will draw wrestlers from Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Illinois and Nebraska.

Shortstop Brittany Gustafson of Red Lake County Central fielded a low throw as Thief River Falls runner Kjelsy Loeffler completed her slide into second on a stolen base during Monday high school softball action in Thief River Falls. Umpire Mike Drury made the call on the play. The Prowlers won 11-7.

Prowlers golf at Bemidji

Two Prowlers shot in the 70s, but a scorecard gap between them and their teammates dropped Thief River Falls in the team standings at the Bemidji Invitational boys high school golf tournament Monday.

The host Lumberjacks edged Roseau 306-307 for team honors. Thief River Falls finished eighth at 324.

The Prowlers were led by Paul Sjoberg with a 75 and Matt Nordhagen with a 76.

"We had steady play from our two top players," reported Thief River Falls coach Dick Tyler. "We needed the other two counters to keep their scores in the 70s."

Pawlenty proclaims May as Teen Pregnancy Prevention Month

Gov. Tim Pawlenty has proclaimed May as Teen Pregnancy Prevention Month in Minnesota in conjunction with the national observance.

While both teen pregnancy and teen birth rates have declined in Minnesota and nationwide, even limited success can have a downside if it means the public begins to believe that the problem has been solved.

Teen Pregnancy Prevention Month provides an opportunity for citizens to get involved in community based prevention efforts, along with youth, parents, schools, businesses, faith communities and other youth-serving organizations.

As the governor's proclamation states, "...working together, all members of a community can provide the information and support necessary to affirm positive choices that young people can make to avoid early pregnancy, finish high school and enjoy happy, fulfilling lives."

The Minnesota Department of Public Health supports several programs that use prevention and community health promotion approaches to reducing adolescent pregnancies. Program components such as school curriculum, community organizing, peer education and a public awareness campaign educate young people about how to make positive decisions and build healthy relationships. The program also encourages parents and other primary caregivers to talk to their children about postponing sexual involvement.

The weather in northwest Minnesota is causing a lot of confusion and extra work for its inhabitants! If it doesn't settle down to business soon there are those who planted in early April who will have to reseed. There is something weird about this spring that makes me wonder if the ground will warm up enough to plant the dahlias that are sprouting. The first half of April it was so warm that all my perennials shot up out of the ground, and the past two weeks it has been freezing almost every night. On Sunday, it remained cold and with a couple of inches of snow that didn't go away entirely until today. It didn't warm very much today so I didn't uncover them. It is heading for a real freeze tonight again.

Paul and Shirley Anderson traveled to New Ulm April 21st to welcome their now grandson Nathaniel David Janssen, son of David and Jenny Janssen who was born April 21st. Nathaniel joins his sister Bethany who had until this last month was only ready to accept another girl. She kept saying, "We only want girlies in our house". Now, she won't take a trade for any price. Uncle Kristopher Anderson visited Jenny and Nathaniel on Friday before leaving for Florida. Paul and Shirley also visited family in Chatfield and enjoyed supper with Robert Thompson in Rochester. They returned home on Thursday night.

Judy Kleinvachter, June Kasprowicz, Lois Kleinvachter, Brad and Brendon went to Vance and Kelly Lefrooth's home to celebrate Kelly's birthday. Vance Sr. and Adrienne Lefrooth joined them later. On Friday, Judy went to visit her brother, Elmer Holmstrom who was in the hospital in Thief River Falls.

After visiting Elmer Holmstrom in the hospital, Isaac ad Betsy Thompson joined Richard ad Carol Thompson, Robert and Cathy Thompson, Karl Olson and Kirk and Nicole Sampson and 6-week old Carter Sampson at the Best Western in Thief River Falls for dinner. Friday evening, Richard, Carol, Robert and Cathy were dinner guests at Isaac and Betsy Thompson's on Sunday afternoon. Cathy Thompson accompanied Robert Thompson to Rochester for 2 weeks when he should be done with his medical treatment. Isaac was so proud that he had held his first great grandchild.

I read that a fool and his money are soon parted. My question would be, how did they ever get together? I'm on my way to Hallock to pay my taxes today.

Support Grand Forks Air Force Base

Don't be fooled into thinking that closing Grand Forks Air Force Base has nothing to do with people living in northwestern Minnesota.

The mission of our military has changed dramatically since the days of the Cold War when Grand Forks Air Force Base was built. As of late, the mission of our military seems to be one of being the world's police officer, and a terrorist response team. Regardless of the argumentative tone of my comments, there remains in our world many security concerns - many new security concerns. Unfortunately, for the military and public, none of our enemies seem willing to share their plans. We don't know what threat we'll be facing next, nor have our enemies provided us with the kind of information that would permit long-term planning.

In terms of its contribution to current strategy, Grand Forks Air Force Base would seem to be a long way away from Iraq and Afghanistan. Nevertheless, it played an important and vital role in those conflicts, and it seems that there is no reason why it can't continue to play a vital role in the military strategy of this nation.

Grand Forks Air Force Base is our neighbor, and it is an important economic engine in our economy. It employs hundreds of people, and in doing so generates business and more jobs. Because of its significant impact on our economy, an economic loss of this magnitude would no doubt have an impact on surrounding communities including many communities located in northwestern Minnesota. Please continue to support Grand Forks Air Force Base.

Not all marriages last a lifetime

Many people who enter agreements as best friends eventually terminate those agreements as enemies. Joint operations agreements are not marriage contracts, but as with any contractual agreement, there will be ups and downs during that partnership.

A few years ago, joint operations agreements between governmental agencies, and sometimes quasi-governmental agencies were seen as the best way to reduce costs and save taxpayer dollars. Hindsight now inarguably provides us with a good vantage point from which to anticipate problems. Not all government agencies share the same goals; duties; and responsibilities - nor should they. Thus, as Pennington County commissioners are attempting, it's important to clearly spell out the responsibilities under any joint operations agreement they enter into. And, that includes setting up a method of solving disputes.

The joint operations facility on the west edge of Thief River Falls will probably serve citizens and taxpayers well for many years to come, but commissioners are wise to discuss and spell out everyone's duties and responsibilities within that agreement.

Sludge pond plan is not a waste

A proposal to construct three sludge ponds, a new wet well and sludge lift station will do much to solve a problem that is a growing concern for the City of Thief River Falls.

For numerous reasons, including a zero-discharge permit issued by the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency (MPCA), the city is facing several problems with its existing sludge ponds. A telling point in the environmental information worksheet is that the existing sludge ponds were never designed to be sludge ponds.

The city is attempting to address this problem with a simple system that appropriately addresses its needs for at least 10 years. After this time period, the sludge ponds will require cleaning or dredging or additional sludge ponds will need to be constructed to replace the proposed remote sludge ponds.

It seems odd that this "fairly simple project," which is mostly an earth-moving operation, would cost $3.31 million, but no other proposal could be accomplished for less. City leaders are still considering the options, but addressing the problem now would not be a waste of taxpayer dollars. Allowing time for costs to increase and penalties to be assessed, would be a waste of taxpayer dollars.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Rollback taxes for the rich and richest

To the Editor:

Considering all state and local taxes of all types, a recent study by the Minnesota Department of Revenue reveals that the top 1 percent in income pay an effective tax rate of 9 percent while the lowest 10 percent in income pay an effective tax rate of 18.2 percent. The tax structure in Minnesota is unfair. The wealthy always benefit from the regressive nature of sales and property taxes. The only way to bring some fairness in taxation is to increase the income tax rates on the higher incomes.

Recently, the House Democrats proposed increases on single persons earning over $125,000 and married couples earning over $250,000. In rural Minnesota, we do not hear or read about how wealthy some individuals are. Here are a few whose incomes for 2004 were reported in the Twin Cities newspapers: Joel Ronning, CEO of Digital River Inc. - $8.6 million; Allan Schuman, chairman, Ecolab Inc. - $18 million; Randal Hogan, chairman and CEO of Pentair Inc. - $9.7 million; Robert Ulrich, chairman and CEO of Target Corp., $39 million; William McGuire, chairman and CEO of United Health Group Inc. - $124.8 million; W. James McNerney, Jr., chairman and CEO of 3M Company, $8.4 million (figures include salary, bonus, stock options and "other compensation").

These are some of the super rich who are being protected by the Republican House in refusing to raise income taxes and by Gov. Tim Pawlenty who is hiding behind his "no new tax" pledge. Right now, the state of Minnesota has a revenue problem. The governor is trying to make up part of that with a $200 million tax on American Indian gaming.

The fair thing to do at this point is to rollback the tax breaks for the rich and richest to put some balance into our total tax system.

Vulnerable citizens counting on legislators

To the Editor:

I've spent my life trying to make life better for people on the margins. We've seen some remarkable gains.

People with disabilities who used to live in prison-like, sterile institutions are now living and working in the community. Crisis Nurseries are helping parents keep their kids safe. Poverty among seniors has been cut in half.

And, we've been in sight of some exceptional milestones. We have been close to four very important attributes of a society that cares for its neighbors:

- That every child has a safe place every night, knowing that they are loved and will have opportunity to develop their potential.
- That every person with a disability can live and work in community and be full participants in society.
- That frail, elderly neighbors are not isolated, but have community, independence, and dignity in their lives, and who receive services that encourage these.
- That all Minnesotans suffering have access to health care, including mental health services.

But, we are now slipping backwards.

Right now, today, the state of Minnesota is limiting access to care. Some children in need of in-home support services are not getting them. There are fewer emergency shelter beds and group homes for children today than a year ago. The waiting list for persons with disabilities is growing day by day. The threat of taking health insurance away from many poor persons is too real.

I believe that Minnesotans should invest in its people and expect results. We should not regard the status quo as an attractive benchmark from which we retreat.

Why should we all care about the well-being of our most vulnerable citizens?

First, it's the right thing to do. It's an important part of what makes our society a civilized place to live. When we cut funding for people in need, we say that these people don't matter, that they must fend for themselves, even if they can't.

For people of faith, including Christians, Jews and Muslims, caring for the poor and vulnerable in our society is a priority, not just something nice to do. God yearns for us to love our neighbor.

Second, we, as taxpayers, want our money spent wisely and responsibly. In social service, that means catching problems early and effectively. When we do that, we avoid higher, long-term costs.

The truth is: When the money goes away, the problems don't magically disappear. In fact, when the problems go untreated, they generally lead to bigger and costlier problems.

Some people view social service as a drain on society and that hard-earned tax dollars go down a black hole because poor people are lazy and want to live off government assistance.

But inaccurate stereotyping prevents us from creatively addressing the real causes and solutions to social problems. Investing in solutions allows us to be good stewards of our resources. And when we spend our dollars wisely and avoid expensive long-term costs, we all benefit.

Encourage your legislative officials to lead us in the right direction. It's important. Our most vulnerable citizens are counting on you. They need our help.

Thanks for being a ray of sunshine

To the Editor:

I would like to know the names of a handsome young man and a pretty blonde young lady that presented a beautiful bouquet of flowers to this white-haired gal who would like to thank them. Their loved ones, wife and mother are very fortunate to have them as their family.

I imagined as I received the bouquet what it would be like as a volunteer to receive them. I volunteered for 23 years at the Pennington County fairs and the Pioneer Village as president for four years.

In tearful gratitude from this thoughtful twosome, they brought such a ray of sunshine into my life.

In grateful appreciation,
Dorothy Woolson Chapman

Memorial Day: a tribute of appreciation

To the Editor:

It was 140 years ago, in 1865, when a druggist by the name of Henry C. Welles from the small city of Waterloo, N.Y., suggested that there ought to be a way of remembering and honoring people who had died in service to the United States. To do so, he initiated the first "Decoration Day" to promote the idea of adorning the graves of fallen soldiers with flowers. The idea caught on, and by 1868, the Army officially started [illegible] the day.

In 1882 [illegible] to Memorial Day, and in 1971, it was declared a national holiday to be held on the last Monday in May, creating a three-day holiday.

Yet, Memorial Day should be more to us than another holiday. It should continue to be a time to remember the people who have died in service to our country.

To honor our forebears who fought for our freedom and security, I encourage all Minnesotans to observe Memorial Day, perhaps by attending a memorial service or visiting a veterans' cemetery. It is important to remember the past to understand our place today and our future.

On Memorial Day, I remember my father, who served in World War II, and convey to my kids and grandkids what his service meant to me and to our country. Probably every family has compelling stories about those who served and made the ultimate sacrifice for us.

Together we can make this Memorial Day truly a time of appreciation and remembrance.

Thank you,
Mary Kiffmeyer
Secretary of state

Penas bills included in omnibus bill

Several bills authored by Rep. Maxine Penas (R-Badger) have been included into various Minnesota House of Representatives committees' omnibus packages.

Legislation that would extend the life of the Organic Advisory Task Force (HF2249) has been included in the Agriculture Finance Committee's omnibus bill, which was approved May 5.

The task force is designed to advise the commissioner of agriculture on policies and practices to improve organic agriculture in Minnesota, and is comprised of three farmers using organic methods; two organic food wholesalers; one representative of organic food certification agencies; two organic food processors; one representative from the University of Minnesota Extension Service; one representative from a Minnesota post-secondary research institution; one representative from a nonprofit organization representing producers; one at-large member; one representative from the U.S. Department of Agriculture; and one organic consumer representative.

Current law says the task force must meet at least twice each year through June 30, 2005. This bill would extend that time frame until June 30, 2011.

A second piece of legislation was money appropriated for turf grass research. It would provide $70,000 the first year and $75,000 the second year to the Northern Minnesota Forage-Turf Seed Advisory Committee for basic and applied research.

"Turf seed is important to our economy, and its application goes beyond our state and country," said Penas. "We always need to keep working on new and improved varieties."

However, it has been an amendment added to Rep. Tom Hackbarth's all-terrain vehicle legislation that has garnered a lot of Penas' attention. It became a part of the Environment Finance Committee's omnibus bill.

Language mandates all forest lands north of U.S. Highway 2 must be classified as managed for off-highway vehicle (OHV) use. "Some people just don't understand that we are not out to destroy our environment, nor do they understand the size of these forests," said Penas.

There is also enforcement in this bill for those who choose to harm the environment. The bill creates an ambassador program to have OHV users patrolling the state's forest trails. It also involves penalties to OHV drivers who damage wetlands. It would be a penalty of $100 for the first offense; $500 for the second; and $1,000 for the third and subsequent offenses.

The bill calls for $200,000 in grants to assist state officials to train OHV riders about the rules, what to look for in violations, and how to contact Department of Natural Resources officers to ticket any offenders. The program is similar to one currently used in Wisconsin and mirrors Minnesota's snowmobile ambassador program.

Penas passionately spoke on the House floor to maintain the managed status on forests north of Highway 2 and said a managed area does not mean destroyed wetlands.

"Does managed mean ATVs can go anywhere? No. Does managed mean we can go out and destroy wetlands? No," said Penas. "We're already obeying the Wetlands Protection Act, and I will not go out and destroy wetlands on our farms and in our forests. The ATVs can't go off the trails. We talk about regional warfare, and this is regional warfare at its best."

Penas represents District 1A in the Minnesota House, and can be reached at 1-888-727-0979 or at rep.maxine.penas@house.mn.

From The Upper Falls

The News, John W. Eastman, Publisher May 11, 1905
Thief River Falls, Red Lake County, Minnesota

Day Train on the Soo
One to Be Put on Between Thief River Falls and the Twin Cities

"While in Minneapolis last week Daniel Shaw was assured by the passenger department of the Soo road that a day passenger train will be put on this line in about a week or two. The train will leave Minneapolis at about 8 o'clock in the morning and arrive in Thief River Falls at about 5 o'clock in the evening where it will remain over night, leaving here again in the morning for Minneapolis. A mixed train will run from this city north to Emerson.

"This new service will greatly improve our train facilities and will be a great accommodation to the people living along the line. The train will carry mail and the Twin Cities morning papers will be received here in the evening in the future. As there is a great deal of travel over the Soo line, the new service will without doubt prove a paying one.

"There will be no change in the Winnipeg flyer schedule."

Town Is Dead
County Seat Fight Has Had the Effect of Killing Red Lake Falls

"In conversation with a citizen of Red Lake Falls recently he stated that the policy of Red Lake Falls in the county seat fight was to delay the matter in the courts as long as possible and that, when a vote was finally ordered, no fight would be made by the down river town, as they realized that a large majority of the people of the county was against them and that they could never win. The gentleman also stated that the county seat fight was having a ruinous effect upon real estate in that city and for that reason it was, in his opinion, a bad thing for the town to have the matter postponed. No one will locate there while there is a possibility of the town going backwards and prices are far below the actual worth of the property. With few exceptions there is not a business in Red Lake Falls but what is for sale and it is impossible to secure any buyers. People will not go to a town that is going backwards and is sure to lose the county seat in time. They would rather locate in a town that has a future. Thief River Falls has nothing to lose and a great deal to gain and that is why it is going ahead so fast."

To Start Work
R. E. Patterson, the Water Works Contractor, Sends His Bond to the City

"City Clerk Lars Backe on Monday received the bond of R. E. Patterson, the Minneapolis man who has secured the contract for installing the system of water works here. Mr. Patterson's bond is $19,100.00 and he stated that he had placed his orders for all of the material that would be used in constructing the plant, and would be here in a short time and rush the work. He desires very much to have the work all completed before harvest commences as the wages then will be much higher than at present."

Another Dentist

"Dr. G. A. Penney, a practitioner of 12 years' experience, has recently located in our city. Dr. Penney's office is equipped with all modern conveniences and the gentleman himself, we learn, is possessed of the highest qualifications for the pursuit of his vocation. Dr. Penney comes highly recommended as a careful, painstaking gentleman and we bespeak for him, on behalf of the citizens of Thief River Falls, a hearty welcome."

High School Notes
Flora McNiven, Editor

"A mock trail is expected to be given soon in the Civic class. Full particulars have not as yet been given out, though Irene Caldwell is expected to be the criminal."

A Warrant Is Issued
Casper Weiner in Trouble for Having a Moose Head

"Upon the complaint of a deputy game warden, a warrant has been issued for the arrest of Casper Weiner, charging him with being the owner of a 'green' moose head. The moose head is in the possession of Knut Reinstran, it having been placed there by Mr. Weiner for the purpose of being mounted and was discovered in his shop by the deputy game warden. There is nothing to show that the animal was killed out of season, and Mr. Weiner's friends feel confident that he can prove that there is nothing illegal about the matter.

"Mr. Weiner is at present out on his claim south of the Red Lake river and the warrant has not yet been served upon him."

Kay Barzen To Head County History Group

"Miss Katherine Barzen, member of a pioneer local family and instructor at Lincoln high school, was elected president of the re-activated Pennington County Historical society at a meeting last Wednesday evening in the council chambers.

"About 25 persons attended the meeting, which was conducted by Judge Paul A. Lundgren, former president, assisted by Arch Grahn, field man for the Minnesota Historical society.

"Other officers elected included C. E. Hellquist, vice president; Mrs. Alf Borry, secretary; and Paul Roy of St. Hilaire, treasurer. Also named were five directors to represent various sections of the county, including Bert Vigen, Smiley; Edgar Naplin, Polk Centre; Ernest Swanson, Highlanding; Mrs. Vivian Copp, North; and Paul Engelstad, Rocksbury.

"Judge Lundgren, who had served as president of the society since its incorporation in February 1939, recalled that in its early years the society acquired a considerable collection of historical objects and other materials, which were on display in the basement of the city auditorium until the quarters were taken over for other uses. Since that time, he added, the material has been in storage.

"Lundgren announced that the Pennington county board has made available to the society a room, 17 by 34 feet in size, for a museum in the new court house now nearing completion, and he added that this is the primary reason that the society is being re-activated at this time.

"It was recommended that the board fix the membership dues at $1 a year, instead of the former fee of fifty cents."

Salk Vaccine Supply In State Is "Frozen"

"Enough Salk polio vaccine to inoculate 138,000 first and second graders is now under refrigeration in Minnesota, and it will be kept in cold storage indefinitely. The 'freeze' came as a result of the recommendation Sunday by Surgeon General Leonard A. Scheele in Washington. He suggested postponement of all polio vaccinations until each lot of vaccine already prepared or in the final stages of production has been reappraised.

"Dr. D. S. Fleming of the Minnesota board of health said that the vaccine now stored in Minnesota would be held up until final clearance for its use is obtained.

"'We are still convinced the vaccine has lots of real value,' Dr. Fleming said. He added that Minnesota health officials had not lost faith in the vaccine.

"The only Minnesotans to receive polio inoculations thus far have been private patients."

Telephone Firm Adds New Cables

"Northwestern Bell Telephone company has started placing additional telephone cable in southeast Thief River Falls to serve residents of new housing in that section of the community, according to A. J. Rau, phone company manager. Besides taking care of new customers, the extra cable will enable the telephone company to fill orders from existing customers with party line service who have requested individual lines. The project, scheduled for completion in early summer, requires placing 4,600 feet of overhead cable and 750 feet of underground or buried cable. It will cost approximately $4,500."

Chas. Samuelson Heads TR Falls Education Association

"Charles Samuelson was named president by the Thief River Falls Education association at its meeting on May 4. He succeeds T. Q. Hellie, who has headed the organization for the past two years. Other officers elected are Verner Johnson, vice president; James Carlson, secretary; and Andrea Olson, treasurer.

"The slate of officers was presented by a nominating committee with Gladys Johnson, chairman; Stanley Nelson, Philip Beadle, Ruth Sorenson, Quentin Jones and Helen Hanson.

"A report was given by the committee in charge of arrangements for a dinner to be given in honor of Superintendent W. G. Clafly on Wednesday, May 18. Members of the committee include Emma Tandberg, Ruth Mickelson, Lyda Batten, Bernice Troumbly, Kalmer Ostby, Clarence W. Pope, J. Arthur Johnson, and Olga Bloomsness.

"It was voted by the association to send a delegate to a workshop to be held at Eshquaguma, Minnesota. This delegate will be named later."

St. Hilaire Spectator

St. Hilaire, Red Lake County, Minnesota May 13, 1905

News Items

"The threshing machine salesmen and the farmers meeting on Wednesday made it fairly lively for a rainy day.

"There have been quite a number of claims filed this spring on the reservation and very little of the land is left.

"We have had all kinds of weather the past week except the good kind and it is to be hoped that it will now let up for a while.

"The roads are almost impassible at present and it will take a couple of weeks of dry weather to put them in fair shape.

"It is a relief to know that this spell of bad weather has been general and it was even worse in North Dakota where they had over a foot of snow.

"Clearwater county will now indulge in a county seat fight as the village of Shevlin is serving notice that they will circulate a petition to move the county seat from Bagley.

"We understand that the village council has decided to postpone all matters pertaining to sidewalks until after the tax dodging cases have been decided. If they are against the village, when the old sidewalk wears out, we will have to 'mud it' and look pleasant.

"Owing to the heavy rain last Thursday night, the sawmill shut down. The night crew reported for work with the exception of the platform men who refused to work, so the mill was shut down for the night.

"The log drive between here and Thief River Falls arrived this week with about three million feet. The Upper River is full of logs and the recent rains have given sufficient stage of water to insure plenty of logs for all this season.

"'Royal' Dahlin is making big preparations for the cultivation of his reservation farm. He has decided to plant five acres of horse radish, some potatoes and a garden. On the low land he will sow wild rice and on the high spots wild oats. He expects the boys here in town will come out and help him harvest the crop.

"H. D. Pettibone was up the river above Thief River Falls last Thursday helping the big tow boat to start up the river. It did not look promising for a ride home and the weather was bad so he started across country for home on foot. He did the trick in five and one-half hours, arriving here at eight o'clock in the evening.

"While in Minneapolis last week, Daniel Shaw of Thief River Falls was assured by the passenger department of the Soo road that a day passenger train will be put on the line in about a week or two. The train will leave Minneapolis at about eight o'clock in the morning and arrive in Thief River Falls at about five o'clock in the evening. Then it will remain overnight, leaving again in the morning for Minneapolis. A mixed train will run from Thief River Falls north to Emerson."

Baseball Excursion Sunday

"Thief River Falls News: The first baseball game of the season will be played in Thief River Falls on Sunday afternoon.

"Manager LaBree has secured the Crookston league team for a game Sunday and it is expected that it will be one of the best ever played in this city. A special excursion train which will leave Crookston at about nine o'clock Sunday morning is expected to bring many people from Crookston, Red Lake Falls and St. Hilaire to this city to witness the game. The local team is a decidedly strong one this year and the local players feel confident that it will keep the league team busy if they succeed in defeating the local club.

Farmers Combine
Farmers Near St. Hilaire Form a Company and Buy a Threshing Rig

"The Farmers' Threshing Machine Association Number One of St. Hilaire held a meeting at the village hall last Wednesday completing their organization and purchasing a threshing machine outfit. The officers of the new company are as follows: president, J. S. Roy; vice president: Albert Geske; secretary: N. E. Beebe; treasurer: Henry Randolph; trustee: Andrew Soderberg.

"The company is composed of the following well known farmers: J. S. Roy, N. E. Beebe, Michael McAndress, E. A. Aubol, John Nelson, Ole Loeberg, Paul Olson, O. H. Skottem, H. J. Hanson, Henry Randolph, Charles Gustafson, N. A. Nelson, W. A. Sorsoliel, G. W. Casbon, Albert Geske, Martin McAndress, Anton Aubol, and Andrew Soderberg. A few other farmers in this vicinity will probably join the company in the near future.

"The fact that the new company would pay cash for their rig seems to have been well advertised for some sixteen agents representing seven of the large threshing companies were present and submitted bids. These included S. A. Swanson of Red Lake Falls and W. H. Higham of Grand Forks, represented the 'Waterloo'; J. C. McAndress and W. G. Bannerman of Fargo, for the 'Nichols & Sheppard'; Messrs. Babcock, Murphy and Blanchard for the 'Reeves'; James Libert of Grand Forks for the 'Minneapolis'; C. C. Thornberg of Fargo and A. M. Edstrom of Hazel for the 'J. I. Case'; L. W. Larson of Crookston for the 'Advance'; and McAdams, Ryan and Stone for the 'Aultman & Taylor.'

"Each company was allowed thirty minutes to present arguments after which they submitted sealed bids. It was late in the evening before all the talking was done and the last bid submitted. The prize was awarded to the Nichols & Sheppard company of Battle Creek, Michigan, who will supply a twenty-five horse power engine and a 36 by 56 separator. The price usually paid for rigs of this kind is in the neighborhood of $3,700, but it is thought that owing to the number of companies competing and that cash would be paid, the price was considerable less. We cannot state, however, how much was paid as the bids were not made public."

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received at the office of the Middle-Snake-Tamarac Rivers Watershed District, 453 North McKinley Street, Warren, Minnesota 56762 until 1:00 o'clock PM on May 25th, 2005 for the rental of fully operated excavation equipment. Proposals are being requested for tractors, mowers, draglines, dozers, scrapers, blades and crawler mounted draglines or backhoes.

The work to be done consists of, but is not limited to, the clearing and disposal of trees and brush, the removal of sediment from drainage channels, disposal of rocks, the construction of dikes, the installation of culverts, and the leveling of spoil banks. The work required and the locations of the work will be designated by the engineer of the district.

The equipment must be modern and in good operating condition and furnished with capable and experienced operators. Deficient operations or maintenance which results in reduced production or poor workmanship will be cause for contract cancellation.

All equipment proposed will be considered and evaluated based on many factors including, but not limited to the following: price, horsepower, machine rating, machine weight, track length, track width, track gauge, buckets available, boom lengths available, counter weights available and other factors.

Work will be paid by the hour and payment will be based on the actual time worked. The minimum hours per week will be 40 unless delayed by weather or equipment operating problems.

In addition to the payment for hourly work, the contractor will be eligible for a demobilization payment. The amount will be equivalent to 5 hours rental rate for each type of equipment authorized for use by the Engineer. If determined to be eligible the demobilization payment will be included in the last payment for hourly work satisfactorily completed.

The District may cancel the contract at any time without cause by paying the demobilization payment. The contractor may cancel the contract at any time without cause but forfeits the right to any demobilization payment.

The type of equipment best suited for each project is dependent on the weather and other unknown job conditions. The district intends to rent equipment which in its opinion will perform the required work at the least cost. [illegible] promises to furnish the equipment listed for the prices shown subject to its availability. He does not promise to make or keep the equipment available to the district. He understands, however, the equipment availability may be a factor in the district's evaluation of equipment.

The contractor will be required to furnish certificates showing that he has workmen's compensation insurance and liability insurance.

The Middle-Snake-Tamarac Rivers Watershed District reserves the right to reject any and all bids and to award contracts to other than the apparent low bidder. Dated at Warren, Minnesota this 18th day of April, 2005.

Knights of Columbus raise $2,400

The Knights of Columbus have raised $2,400 for their annual tootsie roll drive. The proceeds will be split between the Falls Day Activity Center, local Special Olympics team and the Knights of Columbus Fall Classic for Special Olympics.

Every year, the Knights of Columbus throughout Minnesota complete a tootsie roll drive during the month of April. The donations are used to support approved organizations with special needs as verified by the State Knights of Columbus Council.

Over the weekend of April 29 through May 1, local Knights of Columbus members were at Kmart, SuperOne Foods and Falls Liquor accepting donations for their annual drive. UBC Lumber, Erl's Market, Dee's Kitchen, Cenex and Hardware Hank had canisters available to accept donations.

Many thanks go to those who donated towards this project.

A plan to construct a proposed Greenwood Street bridge is moving closer to fruition. At its May 10 meeting, Thief River Falls City Council members approved an engineering agreement for the bridge.

"The agreement covers the cost for the design of the bridge," said Public Works Director Ron Lindberg.

Depending on the cost of the bridge, Widseth Smith Nolting of Alexandria will provide its services for approximately $130,000. As part of that estimate, the firm will receive 4.75 percent of the total bridge costs for certain portions of the project, including such things as preliminary and final bridge plans and a bridge cost estimate.

The firm will also bill the city for the hourly wages for its employees to work on certain portions of the project, including such things as a waterway analysis and the bridge and approach design survey. Those hourly wages are an estimated $33,249 of the approximate $130,000 service agreement.

In March, city leaders learned Thief River Falls has been granted $577,500 in federal funding for the estimated $2 million project. Municipal State Aid will fund the remainder of the bridge project.

The bridge will span from the Greenwood Street and Oakland Park Road intersection across the Red Lake River and through Greenwood Cemetery to Pennington Avenue South. It is expected to be completed by the end of 2009.

City leaders have said traffic congestion, along with the increasing number of houses on the southside of Thief River Falls, are reasons for the proposed bridge. The amount of traffic generated by Arctic Cat and Digi-Key employees has also been listed as a reason for the bridge.

Thief River Falls resident Jim Burkholder, who lives near the proposed location of the bridge, spoke out against the project at the council meeting. He suggested having the bridge on County Road 8.

A bridge probably should be there, said council member Terry BlackLance, who noted Pennington County and not the city of Thief River Falls would be responsible for that area.

"It's long overdue, and there's been plenty of notice on it," said council member Dave Carlson, who added city leaders have planned for the Greenwood Street bridge for the past 30 years.

For many years, city leaders have also planned to connect Greenwood Street to Pennington Avenue. If Greenwood Street intersected Pennington Avenue, a railroad crossing may be needed east of that intersection.

"Why are you putting the horse before the cart?" Burkholder asked in reference to constructing the bridge prior to the intersection and railroad crossing.

Council member Harriet Worker replied that both projects cannot be funded at the same time.

"The bridge can still stand alone without the railroad crossing," said Lindberg, "Hopefully, that won't be the case."

Jobs Inc. provides forum for Ingenuity Frontier

Mike Moore estimates that about 500 new jobs were created in Thief River Falls last year. Moore, director of Jobs Inc., an economic development organization in Thief River Falls, believes Jobs Inc. played a role in that growth.

Wed., May 12, Jobs Inc. held its annual meeting at the Evergreen Eating Emporium. During that meeting members elected three to its board of directors - Lenae Iverson, Dave Jung and Larry Lee - and reviewed the efforts made on behalf of the organization to attract, retain and expand jobs in Thief River Falls.

Jobs Inc. has been involved in many economic growth projects over the years. During the past year, Jobs Inc. participated in sponsoring a high-speed broadband Internet initiative, provided funding for transportation during the World Juniors, supported the governor's JOBZ initiative in the community, promoted development in the city's industrial park, conducted a housing study, and Wednesday, they introduced three people from Ingenuity Frontier.

Ingenuity Frontier was formed in 2004 by a group of businesses and organizations with a common goal - to attract, educate and train the best and brightest appliedengineers to share in the region's prosperity.

Targeting services to students

School Board 564 discusses "targeted services" program

by David Hill
Editor

School District 564, Thief River Falls, will be implementing a "targeted services" program beginning this summer that will provide assistance to at-risk learners in the District.

Funded under current state funding mechanisms, the Alternative Learning Center (ALC) in Thief River Falls will focus its "targeted services" efforts on social and emotional skill building and remediation of classified at-risk learners.

Mary Forney, director of the ALC, Nancy Tofte, director of the community education department, and Patrick Marolt, Challenger Elementary School principal, explained the program to the board of education Monday, May 9.

The targeted service program will be offered year-round - four weeks during the summer, and two days a week between November and April. The program will address a cross-section of classified at-risk learners not heavily dominated by any category, such as special education, or ESL, in grades kindergarten through grade 9.

Although there doesn't appear to be any data supporting the success of targeted services, Forney said the advantages include: improvements in student performance/academic achievement, reductions in grade retention, encourages creativity among staff, creates family connections, increases attendance rate and decreases truancy, addresses individual learning styles, and provides a safe environment.

Marolt said schools have been making money on the program.

Forney noted, however, that the unknown variable is transportation.

County Board hears bar and grill proposal

New bar and grill establishment would be located near Seven Clans Casino

by Scott DCamp
Reporter

Wyandotte Township may be the site of a new restaurant that would serve wine and strong beer. The proposed establishment would be located near Seven Clans Casino, in section four of Wyandotte Township.

Chad Beito, representing a Fargo, N.D. based corporation, presented a description of the proposed business at the May 10 meeting of the Pennington County Board of Commissioners.

Beito, who chose not to disclose the name of the Fargo, N.D. based corporation he was representing, said the restaurant would serve a short order menu and would offer alcoholic beverages like beer and wine. Beito said his group does not want to bring a hard alcohol or an off sale establishment to the area, stating "we don't want to interrupt the quality of life out there."

According to Beito, plans call for the restaurant to serve a capacity of 40 people, currently in a smoke free setting. Proposed hours of business for the establishment would be 10 a.m. to 1 a.m. Thursday through Saturday and 10 a.m. to 11 p.m. Sunday through Wednesday.

Beito's establishment would be required to seek an on sale liquor license because it wants to serve a combination of strong beer and wine. His group must first get approval from Wyandotte Township, before the Pennington County Board can approve an on sale liquor license.

An additional Sunday liquor license would be needed for the business to sell any alcohol during Sunday operations. According to Pennington County Attorney Dave Olin, the business would need majority approval through a vote by residents of Wyandotte Township for that license to be granted.

Public safety introduces new State Patrol chief

Friday, Department of Public Safety (DPS) Commissioner Michael Campion named Mark A. Dunaski, 50, chief of the Minnesota State Patrol. A 22-year veteran of the Patrol and current captain of its Flight Section, Dunaski is the 16th chief of the organization.

Dunaski was introduced prior to the graduation of 22 trooper cadets of the 49th Trooper Academy at the Earle Brown Heritage Center in Brooklyn Center, home of the first State Patrol training academy. Capt. Kevin Daly, 45 was named lieutenant colonel. Daly was the captain of the Rochester district of the State Patrol.

Dunaski will be promoted to rank of colonel effective Wednesday. He joined the Patrol in 1982 and patrolled metro area roads and conducted crash investigations until 1989 when he was assigned to the Flight Section. He was promoted to lieutenant in 1998 and to captain in 2000. Dunaski directed the implementation of multiple airborne technologies for Patrol aircraft to aid traffic enforcement, and search and rescue missions.

"I am confident the new chief will continue to build on the success of the State Patrol and ensure Minnesotans are safe when traveling our roads," said Gov. Tim Pawlenty.

Dunaski, a Sturgeon Lake native, graduated from the University of Minnesota – Duluth in 1982 with an associate of arts degree. In 2004, he earned a bachelor of science degree in criminal justice administration from Bellevue University in Nebraska. Dunaski also served in the Air Force for four years and received an honorable discharge in 1981.

"I'm excited for the opportunity to lead our proud organization and dedicated troopers," Dunaski said.

Starting at 9 a.m. and until 11:15 to 11:30 a.m., bicyclists and runners will be located throughout the course. The bike course includes an area near Franklin Middle School (FMS) onto Nora Street and Pennington Avenue (County Road 17). Runners will traverse a course covering Spruce Avenue, Gulf Street, Edgewood Drive, Greenwood Street East, Kendall Avenue South, Annie Street, Conley Avenue South, Nora Street, Tindolph Avenue South and Michael Street. Murphy asked motorists to be especially cautious near the Kendall Avenue and Michael Street intersection as it only has a yield sign and triathlon participants will be running in that area.

"SBA's disaster declaration was issued as a result of a similar action taken by the secretary of agriculture to help farmers recover from damages and losses to crops caused by excessive rain, flooding and below normal temperatures that occurred May 11, 2004 and continuing," said SBA Disaster Area Coordinator Michael C. Allen.

Under this declaration, SBA's Economic Injury Disaster Loan program is available to small, non-farm, agriculture-dependent businesses and small agricultural cooperatives that suffered economic injury as a direct result of the weather's effect on agricultural producers. A business that sells goods/services to agricultural producers may be unable to pay bills and/or meet expenses because of the reduced purchasing power of the farmers and ranchers. Examples of eligible businesses are, but not limited to, farm implement dealers, seed and feed stores, and spraying and irrigation businesses.

Eligible small businesses may qualify for loans of up to $1.5 million. These loans are available at a 2.75 percent interest rate with loan terms up to 30 years. SBA determines eligibility for the program based on the size and type of business and its financial resources. Loan amounts and terms are set by SBA and are based upon each applicant's financial condition. Under this disaster declaration, SBA cannot provide loans to agricultural producers and cannot provide loans to non-agricultural dependent businesses.

"SBA can help these small businesses overcome their economic injuries by offering these working capital loans, but the help can't start until they apply," said Allen.

Interested business owners should contact the SBA Disaster Area 2 Office, 1 Baltimore Place, Suite 300, Atlanta, GA 30308; call 1-800-359-2227 or visit its Web site (www.sba.gov/disaster) for more information or to obtain an application. # Missing Greenbush woman returns home

A missing Greenbush woman returned home early Tuesday morning, according to the Roseau County Sheriff's Department.

WyAnn Jo Janousek, 41, was reported missing Sunday morning and was last seen leaving the Greenbush Community Center between 9 and 9:30 a.m. Saturday.

A Roseau County dispatcher indicated Janousek did not need medical attention upon arriving home. No further information was available.

Law enforcement to battle unbuckled motorists

The Thief River Falls Police Department, Pennington County Sheriff's Office and Minnesota State Patrol will join more than 450 Minnesota law enforcement agencies from May 23 through June 5 in the state's largest seat belt enforcement crackdown. The Safe & Sober May Mobilization will be coordinated by the Minnesota Department of Public Safety to boost Minnesota's seat belt use rate and decrease traffic deaths and injuries.

In last year's May Mobilization, police and deputy sheriffs issued 71 seat belt citations in Thief River Falls and elsewhere in Pennington County. Since 2002, statewide mobilizations have resulted in the issuance of nearly 29,000 seat belt citations.

Contradicting common assumptions, nearly three-fourths of the state's traffic deaths and one-half of the serious injuries occurred on rural roads in 2004. Last year, more than half of the nearly 2,400 severe injury crashes occurred outside the metro area.

Safe & Sober is funded by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration and is designed to reduce traffic deaths and serious injuries.

In Loving Memory of our Husband, father and grandfather
Mayer Holen
On Your birthday May 16th
It broke our hearts to lose you, but you did not go alone. A part of us went with you, the day God took you home. A million times we've needed you, a million times we've cried.
If love could have saved you, you never would have died. To the grave we travel, the flowers are placed with care, but no one knows the heartache, as we turn and leave you there.
No Farwells were spoken. No time to say goodbye. You were gone before we knew it, and only God knows why.
If tears could build a staircase, and heartaches make a lane, we would walk the path to heaven and bring you back again.
We love you and miss you so very, very much.

VITA site wraps up third year of service

The Northland Community and Technical College (NCTC) Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) site prepared its final return for the 2004 filing season on April 12.

According to Site Coordinator and NCTC Accounting Instructor Norma Konschak, the site has again increased the number of returns prepared.

"The appreciation expressed by taxpayers is the best reward for our work through VITA," Konschak said.

Volunteers are the driving force of the success of the VITA program in Thief River Falls. This year, 14 volunteers worked at the VITA site. Konschak said the efforts of the following volunteers were greatly appreciated: Jodi Bergman, Paula Nelson, Dennis Paesler, Tina Homme, Tammy Sorenson, Kari Moyer, Layne Blakely and Kathy Olson, all of Thief River Falls; Barbara Lunsetter, Middle River; Paulette Dougherty, Grygla; Jual Carlson, Karlstad; Jacqueline Cross, Oklee; Tiffany LaJesse, Crookston; and Jennifer Rice, Lancaster.

The VITA site was open 28 hours during income tax filing season. A total of 170 tax returns were prepared, and 94 percent (159 returns) were e-filed. The total refund amount for all taxpayers receiving refunds was $132,588.

Through the assistance of trained volunteers from VIA and Tax Counseling for the Elderly programs, the IRS and its partners across the country and abroad are able to offer free tax help to taxpayers having low-to-moderate income. Volunteers help prepare tax returns for taxpayers who often include seniors, disabled persons, people with limited English proficiency, and others who cannot afford professional tax assistance.

Kompelien appointed NDSCS arts, science and business dean

Ken Kompelien, who had been serving as an interim associate dean the past year, has been appointed dean of the Arts, Science and Business (ASB) Division at the North Dakota State College of Science (NDSCS) in Wahpeton.

Dr. John Richman, vice president of academic affairs, made the announcement to the campus May 9. The appointment was effective May 16.

Kompelien succeeds Harvey Link, who has been the ASB dean for the past 16 years. Link will continue at NDSCS as vice president for institutional advancement and government relations, the post to which he was appointed in September. He has held both positions during this academic year.

Kompelien fulfilled several administrative duties for the division as interim associate dean during the last academic year. He has worked since 1996 as the ASB academic counselor, and he has been an adjunct faculty member in the Social and Behavioral Sciences Department.

Richman cited Kompelien's knowledge of NDSCS as one of his many strengths.

"Ken understands our curriculum," said Richman. "More importantly, he connects well with our students, and he is a strong advocate for their academic success. Ken has a track record of working cooperatively with faculty, staff and students, and I expect that his experience at NDSCS will lead to a relatively seamless transition in the dean's office."

A native of Thief River Falls, Kompelien earned a bachelor's degree in communications and a master's degree in counseling at the University of North Dakota. Prior to joining NDSCS, he was the state director of career development programs in the Office of Adult and Vocational Education for the South Dakota Department of Education in Pierre.

Kompelien and his wife, Jan, a substitute elementary school teacher, have three children, Emily (14), Scott (13) and Melissa (10). They live in Wahpeton.

"Honey"
One year has passed away,
and I look across the room,
dear heart and see your empty chair.
I can't believe that you are gone;
and I'll never see you there.
Each day the house is empty,
my heart and all my cares,
no matter where I look around,
I see your empty chair.
I know you're in a better place, happy, free, but still aware the only thing that's left for me is your empty chair.
So save a place for me up there, when once again we'll share all our love and companionship with out the empty chair.
Love, "Toots"

Farm Management Minute

The comments published in this column are intended to stimulate thinking and discussion among our readers. They are written by independent columnists and do not represent the opinion of the staff or management of The Times/Northern Watch.

Factors in the hot land market

by Jim Sackett
Farm Business Management, Bemidji

According to the United States Department of Agriculture, farmland values are rising faster in Minnesota than any other state. Minnesota farmland values greatly vary in price due to location, quality of the land and a host of other reasons. The state average is now $1,800 per acre, which is up over 12 percent from a year ago.

Much of the highest quality farmland in Minnesota now approaches $4,000 per acre. $3,000 per acre is now a normal price throughout the southern Corn Belt regions of the state. There are reports of marginal rangeland in less productive state counties now bringing $6,000 or $7,000 per acre. How can such high prices occur in a farm economy that cannot justify such high land values?

There are several factors at work to create a hot land market. Relatively low interest rates certainly play a large role. Farmers nearing middle age can all remember interest rates into the teens. Along with this is uncertainty in the stock market. Very few investors have had stock market returns equal to the gains in land values in recent years. A profit that is realized upon the sale of an asset is called a capital gain. Capital gains are subject to capital gains taxes. Some investors are using the tactic called a 1031 exchange to defer paying taxes when a gain can be realized by exchange of property of similar value.

Smaller farms where people made a living and raised families are now often purchased by couples who command a high income in town, but wish to live on a lifestyle farm. They often have a few chickens, a couple of horses or more, perhaps even a cow or two, but sell almost nothing in the agricultural marketplace. Their salary and desire to live a rural lifestyle dictate what they will bid for a farm.

Many buyers are seeking hunting or recreational land that was someone's farmland until a buyer with enough money came along. Non-agricultural money normally will outbid another farmer who wishes to expand. Some of the most highly sought after hunting land is Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program (CREP) land. CREP is a local, state and federal partnership that combines the Conservation Reserve Program with The Reinvest in Minnesota Program to retire environmentally sensitive land. Urban sprawl has the same effect on land prices in certain areas of the state where cities that have become regional centers are rapidly growing.

Your view of whether the rapid increase in land values is good or bad is likely influenced by your future intention to buy or sell land. About 60 percent of land sales are to other farmers. Farmers should be cautioned to do their homework before paying too much for land. Find out all you can about the productive history of a piece of ground before making an offer that may be too high for cash flow. Know your cost of production and what it will be when factoring in higher land ownership costs. Most farmers only buy land a few times during their life. Although it may seem that the price always goes up, it is important to consider the effect on your business if you get caught in one of the time frames when land prices fall. It has happened before, usually with dire consequences.

I recommend you discuss this important management decision with a Farm Business Management instructor. You can contact one by calling Northland Community and Technical College at 1-800-959-6282.

...Spring has sprung

Although they were certainly around, it wasn't raindrops that kept falling on my head a week or so ago. It was mud. Let me explain.

I like birds as much as the next person. In fact, I've been known to put out food for them and give them a place to bathe now and then (until the bird bath gets too dirty and looks unsanitary, then I usually put it back in the garage). Anyway, I don't need to feed birds because I have some real bird people neighbors and they take care of that hard part. I can just watch the birds fly back and forth over my yard on their way to the neighbors' house. Once in a while, they sit on my lilac branches and that is nice, too.

Anyway, last week I noticed a lot of straw, twigs, string and bits of cloth lying on my front door mat every time I went out to get the paper or my mail. I wondered how it got there, but you never know about things like that, so I ignored it. I thought maybe the mailman or paper person had really dirty feet and took the opportunity to give them a wipe on the mat while they were at my house.

But the mess kept getting worse. It got so bad I had to shake the stuff off my newspaper so I could bring it into the house. It got so bad that when I stuck my head outside to bring in the paper there was stuff falling on me. What was wrong?

Finally, I figured there had to be something above the door, so I dragged my stool outside and peered up there. I found the problem: I have a little ledge above the front door where there is room for a light and a bird was trying to build a nest up there. It must have been mighty frustrating for the bird, because it looked like every time she got something going that might turn into a nest, it fell down - in pieces - on my mat and my newspapers and my head.

I really didn't want her to build a nest up there - it just wasn't safe with that light up there. So I spent several days going out with my broom in the morning and sweeping the steps and above the door before I picked up my paper. Every day, I got rid of the stuff that was there and every day, immediately after I swept, I saw the bird flying back to my door with twigs and string in her mouth. I had a problem and so did the bird. At the rate we were going, she wasn't going to have any place to lay her eggs at all.

I tried to think of things to stuff up there that would make her go somewhere else, but everything I thought of seemed to be nest-building material. It just wouldn't do to stuff rags or anything soft up there. She would build with it. I decided it had to be something stiff, something metal, like chicken wire.

You would never guess it, but I do have some chicken wire in my garage, but it is in a big roll. No, it wouldn't do to go out and try to hack off a little piece to stuff in the small space above my front door. What else could I use? After wracking my brains a bit, I came up with a pretty good idea. I used bent hangers. I rolled them up so they were quite small, and I used four or five on each side of the light fixture, winding them around each other and hooking them together, and being very careful not to electrocute myself in the process.

The hangers worked perfectly. Mrs. Bird must have come back and found the wire there and gone elsewhere. There isn't a sign of any mud or twigs anymore, and I don't see any sign of the bird. My newspapers are clean as is my front door mat, and so is my head. I've left the hangers above my front door ledge and I think they can stay there for a while. Now I'm looking around to see if I can see which tree she picked to put her nest in because I'd love to watch the eggs hatch - just so they aren't above my head.

Dr. Storhaug is Optometrist of the Year

Dr. Bruce Storhaug, a doctor of optometry with Opticare-Forks Vision Clinic, Minnesota, received the Optometrist of the Year award from the Minnesota Optometric Association (MOA) at its annual meeting recently.

This award is presented to an MOA member who has shown a particular passion for optometry over the past year. For the past three summers, Storhaug has devoted many days to working with the Minnesota Special Olympics to provide vision screenings for all the athletes. He has also volunteered with the Salt Lake City, Utah, Special Olympics.

Storhaug is also active in the Grand Forks community, and currently serves as president of the Downtown Leadership Group Board of Directors. He is past president of the East Grand Forks Rotary Club and the Good Samaritan Center Advisory Board, and has served as vice president of his church council. He is also currently a member of the Altru Health Systems Corporate Board.

A native of Thief River Falls, Storhaug has been in practice at Opticare as a partner with Dr. Steven Gander for the past 17 years. During the flood of 1997, their eye clinic, located just three blocks from the Red River of the North, was completely destroyed. With the help of many, including the MOA and the Red River Valley Eyecare Relief Fund, they were able to rebuild and continue to grow their practice, recently welcoming Dr. Destin Coles as a partner.

Storhaug earned his undergraduate degree from the University of North Dakota, where he majored in psychology. He graduated with distinction from Pacific University with a doctorate in Optometry, placing sixth in a class of 88.

In his free time, Dr. Storhaug enjoys golfing, camping, rollerblading, bicycling, snow skiing and water sports. He and his wife, Jodie, live in Grand Forks with their two daughters, Kaia, age 14, and Mara, age 12.

The MOA has 525 member doctors of optometry around the state. The MOA is committed to furthering awareness of optometrists as primary eye care or family eye doctors and to bringing about change that positively impacts the MOA member doctors and their patients. For more information on the MOA, visit www.mneyedocs.org.

PARENTING TIPS
More on Encouraging Responsibility

Parents frequently ask, "How can I get my children to do what they should do?" Several things can be done to encourage your child's help and involvement in household tasks. Let's examine a few:

- Divide the task into small steps. If you say to a young child, "Go clean your room" or "Pick up your toys," they may not know what to do. It would be better to break it into smaller steps for them. For example, say "Put all the books on the shelf" or "Put all the blocks into this box." How specific you get with your instructions will depend on your child's age and experience with doing household tasks.
- State your expectations clearly and positively rather than negatively. For example, "Don't leave your coat on the couch" would give your child permission to put it on the floor. "Hang your coat on the hook" is much clearer.
- Set a good example. Children learn more from what we do than what we say. If you want to help a child be responsible, look at the models in his or her life. Some parents often put their children off with unfulfilled promises. "Let me finish this now, and I'll play with you later." In spite of good intentions, "later" never comes. These children may conclude that "promises" are made to be broken. Later, these parents wonder why their children say they will carry out the trash and then don't.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Talk with your child about why they need to help with tasks around the house. Don't assume that they know how. For example, "you need to pick up your toys. Someone could step on them and break them."

State Envirothon held next week

Nearly 140 high school students from across Minnesota will test their knowledge of the environment at the 2005 Minnesota State Envirothon on Wednesday, May 18 (today), at Camp Onomia.

Three Lincoln High School Envirothon teams will participate in the State Envirothon, the culminating event of regional Envirothons. Regional Envirothons are organized by the state's Soil and Water Conservation Districts. The top tw or three teams (depending on the region's size) from regional Envirothons are invited to attend the State Envirothon, which begins at 9 a.m on May 18.

At the event, teams of four or five students visit five learning stations, each of which focus on one environmental topic. Stations cover soils, water quality, wildlife, forestry and a current event topic. Teams take an exam at each station, earning points for correct answers. Teams have 30 minutes at each station. Students are also required to make a brief oral presentation to a panel of judges. This year's oral presentation topic is "Managing Cultural Landscapes," and focuses on Mille Lacs Kathio State Park.

The winner of this event will represent Minnesota in the Canon Envirothon, which will be held July 18-24 at Southwest Missouri State University.

Down On The Farm

Getting a birds-eye view of the swamp

Swamps are mysterious. Our farm is full of them, but the only time I got the chance to explore them as a child was after freeze-up.

Muck. Stink. Reeds. Snakes. Mosquitoes. Weeds that leave your socks full of stickers. Swamps are secretive, fortified by some nasty natural barriers.

Lakes have obvious shores, perfect-for-frolicking families with inner tubes. Swamps have murky, dangerous boundaries which gobble up small children who wander too far from the fold.

I remember stretching my neck above the reeds to glimpse the turtles sunning themselves on a log in the swamp, only to have them all plop, plop, plop into the water seconds after they figured out they were being watched.

My childhood bedroom in the old bunkhouse was only a few yards from the big swamp. The ribbit of frogs was overpowering on cool spring evenings, but I never yet have seen a swamp frog puff up and croak.

From the same bedroom, I could hear the grouse drum their wings. As a first grader, I thought the thumping was Uncle Orville trying to pull start an engine, even though Uncle Orville lived 16 miles away. I asked Dad why he didn't go help him get it started so I could get some sleep.

A highlight of childhood was when Dad helped me build a raft to take out on the swamp. This was just after I read Huckleberry Finn. We tied logs together and cut down a long sapling to use as a pole.

After nearly throwing us off, the raft simply sunk. There we were, Dad holding me above the knee-deep muck. The struggle to get to shore was terrifying enough to cure me of the raft urge for good and make me certain that whoever wrote Huckleberry Finn was a lying creep.

Fast forward 30 years. Some neighborhood commentators have questioned my sanity for putting the prow of my new house 10 yards from the edge of a swamp. Aren't you going to get bit up by mosquitoes? Isn't your basement going to get wet?

It didn't occur to me at the time, but now I realize: I have been wanting to see what was going on out on the swamp since I was a little kid.

To insure that I could get a good view of what was going on in the swamp, I had the carpenters hang a crow's nest from the ceiling. Even though the house isn't ready to occupy, I have already spent hours sitting up there scanning the old swamp with binoculars.

Ducks. Mallards. Teal. Scaup. Swans. Geese. I have a bird book up in the crow's nest, but I have finally decided that attempting to name them all just breeds frustration. Better just to enjoy watching the yellow-bellied thingamabob catch mosquitoes than to fumble through a bird book trying to name the critter and miss the whole point.

The highlight of my swamp-watching came last week during the warm spell. I snuck away from work and climbed up into the crow's nest with the binocs to scan the swamp.

After watching a few ducks nibble swamp scum, my binocs fell upon a rare sight - ten turtles sunning themselves on a log.

I fully expected them to plop, plop, plop into the water once I spotted them, but they did not. I watched them for a good 20 minutes as they clumsily competed for log space, knocked each other into the water, crawled back up, all at a turtle's pace.

Just as I tired of the turtles, a beaver head noiselessly cruised into view followed by a perfect V of a wake. When he came upon a patch of algae, he ducked underwater for a few yards to avoid getting all mucked up, only to reappear on the other side and continue his cruise without a hitch.

What fun to finally, at age 40, conquer one of my childhood frustrations. For the rest of my life, I will have a bird's-eye view of what is going on out on the big old swamp.

McCullough recertified as civil trial specialist

The Minnesota State Bar Association (MSBA) has announced that attorney D. Patrick McCullough has been recertified as a civil trial specialist.

Certification refers to an attorney who has completed a rigorous approval process to establish full qualification for reliable experience and skills in his or her specialty area. This certification makes McCullough one of a limited number of attorneys in Minnesota to have earned the credential. Approximately 2 percent of the 1,300 attorneys belonging to the MSBA Civil Litigation Section are board certified as civil trial specialists.

McCullough has been board certified as a civil trial specialist since 1993. Originally from Thief River Falls, he concentrates on personal injury and family law at his St. Paul firm.

"Becoming a board certified civil trial specialist is one way for me to demonstrate my commitment to civil trial work," said McCullough, senior partner of McCullough, Smith, Kempe, Williams & Cyr, PA. "I want my clients to have the peace of mind from knowing my credentials have been documented by an independent organization."

The MSBA board certified civil trial specialist credential is earned by successfully completing a day-long examination. The attorney must also demonstrate a substantial level of experience and legal education in trial skills. He or she must pass a disciplinary check and successfully obtain objective review by judges and attorneys who have actually seen the attorney in court appearances. Compliance with certification standards is audited every year. Every six years, the specialist must be recertified to insure that the attorney has maintained his or her expertise.

Leonard Furuseth, 83

Thief River Falls - Leonard Furuseth, 83, died Sunday, May 8, 2005 at Veterans Medical Center, Minneapolis.

Funeral services were held on Thursday, May 12, 2005 at Trinity Lutheran Church, Thief River Falls, with Rev. Arlen Hermodson officiating. Casket bearers included Art Buringrud, Roger Tunberg, Kenny Asp, Dale Wennberg, Ron Johnson and Mark Bieganek. Honorary casket bearers included the 99th Infantry Battalion (Sep) and Doctors and Nurses at Fargo and Ft. Snelling Veteran's Hospitals. Military honors were provided by American Legion Ecklund-Holmstrom Post 117 and Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 2793. Interment was held at Greenwood Cemetery, Thief River Falls.

Leonard Manley Furuseth was born January 16, 1922 in Gully, the son of Peder and Johanna (Fladeland) Furuseth. He was baptized and confirmed at Gully. He grew up and attended Lincoln High School, graduating in 1940. He entered the military, November 4, 1942.

On June 24, 1948, Leonard was united in marriage to Mildred Hanson in Roseau. The couple lived in Thief River Falls all of their lives. Leonard attended the School of Business, Fargo, N.D. and was a milk hauler in the Thief River Falls area. He was manager of Mid-Land Co-op for 19 years, inventor of a wild rice harvester, of which he built 48 of them and helped start the industry and also was a salesman for Hershal Manufacturing.

Westside Motors encourages local schools to participate in AYES

Just as cars and trucks have become increasingly sophisticated and dependent on computers, the skills of service technicians have become increasingly technical and more demanding. Gone is the image of service technicians as simply people who know how to change carburetors.

The amount of jobs for well-qualified service technicians' is growing, which can be attributed to both the increasing number of vehicles on the road and to the ever increasing use of electronics and computers in today's cars and trucks.

To increase the number of qualified technicians, Westside Motors of TRF Inc. would like to see local schools adopt the Automotive Youth Education System (AYES), a program that is helping to introduce students to careers in the automotive industry.

"Believe it or not, today's Chrysler, Jeep® and Dodge cars and trucks contain more technology than the Apollo spacecraft that carried astronauts to the moon and back," said Ron Nelson of Westside Motors. "A career in the automotive service field requires intensive and extensive training, and we'd love to see our local schools adopt this program."

AYES prepares students to entry-level career positions or advanced studies in automotive technology. The program also prepares students for the ongoing education the automotive manufacturers provide. For instance, every day, nearly 1,000 technicians attend training on the latest diagnostic equipment and vehicle updates used to service Chrysler, Jeep and Dodge vehicles.

The AYES program is introduced to students at participating schools during their junior year. In addition to takin the required academic courses toward high school degrees, students experience challenging classroom/laboratory courses in basic automotive technology or collision repair and refinish. Eligible students will then begin an internship at a dealership on a full-time basis during the summer between junior and senior years. Under the guidance of a mentor, an experienced technician, students will develop both their technical skills and their skills as valuable employees. Upon high school graduation and AYES certification, participating students are prepared to begin full-time, entry-level employment or to advance their technical education.

For more information, visit www.ayes.org.

The product of Pondering

Man, I mutter to myself while tapping my pencil idly on the page in front of me, brainstorming is hard. I've been straining my brain for a substantial series of moments now, but to no avail. How did I get myself into this ordeal, anyway? Oh yeah...

Sure, I'll do an On the Other Hand this week! I volunteered. Let's see...That was Monday. The day I optimistically resolved to initiate my Inspiration Mode for t-minus five minutes and put whatever masterpiece my mind invents in that space to the page. Ironically, shortly thereafter the task vanished into the backwater regions of my subconscious. It'll come to me in a dream, write itself... Yeah, right!

By the time it becomes apparent to me that I should have prepared a topic a week in advance—before it was my turn—I drift from the tabletop, abandoning my clean notebook, and take post in front of my computer. Good, good. The convenience of no lead or erasers to deal with, I muse in a vain attempt to persuade myself of my being advantageous. Unfortunately, the freedom to spill out an indecipherable mess of random keyboard letters (for example:guvkmjjivmdtokhdkxs...) and my submission to the mind-warping hypnosis of my constantly-mutating screen saver don't help me to win any creativity trophies, either.

Think! ...Don t give me that look. Brain, I know you can! I've seen it! Remember the old days, when the world was adventurous and new, and your young imagination defined reality? The ideas flowed like the blood through my veins, and life was good, I debate.

Um... Nah. Can't say that I do. I probably threw out all that stuff to make way for cold, hard logic and television lore, counters my pragmatic lump of gray matter.

I slouch dispiritedly in my computer chair, and Brain declares, Check and mate!

I turn off the iTunes, rethink my posture and assert myself to the mission of conceiving a topic.

How about.. .A current event? I offer hopefully.

We don't follow politics, if you'll remember. I think the upstanding newspaper to which you will be contributing your drivel will have taken care of that facet. Oh, and besides, you're an ignorant teenager.

I begin creating eye-catching headlines for questionable stories aiming to draw attention, disregarding their lack of true merit. Like a ridiculous conspiracy theory about a community figure who moonlights as a vigilante crime fighter... Hmm. After toying with the idea, I think better of it. Or maybe Brain just won't allow me to go through with it ( It may be idiotic, but it's still slander! ).

My ponderings illuminate the possibilities-some good, many bad. Originality is key!

I've got it! How about an OTOH about hunting... .or tattoos... .or about my magnetism to a certain brand of peanut butter.. .or about fictionalized birthday parties with talking dogs...

Deja vu, anyone? scoffs my brain, as if finding amusement in its own faulty functioning.

Aha! I exclaim suddenly in resounding success, I've got it! It s perfect!

What's that? drones Brain skeptically.

The perfect topic for my On the Other Hand. It's. . .

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q: The estimate on the Social Security Statement is different from the estimate I got using the calculation program on the SSA website. Why?

A: Different estimates obtainable from Social Security, or other organizations, use varied economic forecasts. Estimates on the SSA Statement are based on intermediate assumptions. The online estimates offer a choice between today's or inflated dollars. Also, since you input your own plans and earnings data to the SSA online programs, be sure you are comparing estimates using the same retirement date and based on the same earnings.

Free SSA online and downloadable calculators to estimate retirement benefits are on the SSA website at www.socialsecurity.gov/planners/calculators.htm. The American Savings Education Council has a useful retirement estimate program at Web site www.asec.org.

Q: If I retire at 55 will the estimate on the automatically received Social Security Statement be correct?

A: No. The computer program for the Statement automatically sent to people before their birthday if over age 25, employed and not receiving SSA benefits, assumes work will continue at the same last posted earnings level. To adapt for early retirement either request a new, free, Statement with a more accurate future earnings estimate or use the estimate programs from the SSA website.

Q: What is the difference between my Social Security number (SSN) and my Social Security claim number?

A: While everyone has a SSN, only people who have actually filed application to receive Social Security monthly benefits will have a SSA claim number. Your SSN is the usual nine digit number used to associate your earnings with your record for the proper payment of future SSA benefits.

A claim number is how the agency can access your specific claim for those benefits and consists of a SSN plus an alpha code that tells us what type of application is involved. For example, if you receive Social Security based on your own work, your claim number is your SSN followed by an "A." If you receive benefits only as a wife or widow, the claim number is the SSN of your husband followed by a "B" (wife) or "D" (widow).

Wold to compete at National FFA Convention

A Lincoln High School (LHS) student recently learned he will be competing at the National FFA Convention this fall.

Matt Wold, an LHS junior, was named the Minnesota FFA Grain Production – Placement winner. He received a plaque and $100 check for his efforts and will now compete at the national competition scheduled Nov. 1-6 in Louisville, Ky.

"I'm proud of it, and it makes me happy to see that my work has paid off," Wold said.

Wold will compete against 51 other applicants, including one from Guam and another from Puerto Rico, for the national award. He said their applications will be examined and then the top one-third of applicants will be interviewed.

National finalists will each receive a plaque and $250 check. From that group, a national winner will be selected to receive an additional $250 check and plaque.

For this project sponsored by Pioneer Hi-Bred International Inc., competitors are supposed to use the best management practices available to efficiently produce and market groups for grain production such as corn, barley (including the malting types), millet, buckwheat, oats, grain sorghum, milo, wheat, rice and rye.

As part of his award-winning project, Wold completed a substantial amount of paperwork about his summer project – working at his family's Thief River Falls farm. Wold drove a tractor, hauled grain, did general maintenance, completed lawn care, applied chemicals and more.

"I think he's very well deserving for this award because he's put a lot of hard work and dedication into his summer project," said FFA Adviser ADawn Melbye.

Besides competing in Grain Production-Placement for the past two years, Wold has participated in other FFA competitions. He has competed in farm business management competitions as well as parliamentary procedure. Wold also serves as the vice president of the Thief River Falls chapter.

Arctic Cat reports record sales for fiscal 2005

May 12, Arctic Cat Inc. reported record sales and earnings for the fourth-quarter ended March 31. Sales for the quarter increased 12 percent to $157 million versus $140.2 million in the same period last year. The company's net earnings grew to $2.7 million, or $0.13 per diluted share, compared to a net loss of $1 million, or $0.05 per diluted share, in the prior-year fourth quarter.

Arctic Cat posted its fifth consecutive year of record sales with full-year net sales totaling $689.1 million, up 6 percent versus $649.6 million last fiscal year. Net earnings totaled $28.3 million, or $1.36 per diluted share, compared to net earnings of $30.4 million, or $1.40 per diluted share, for fiscal 2004.

"Although I'm pleased that the company posted another year of record sales, our fourth-quarter performance was not as strong as we had anticipated," said Chris Twomey, Arctic Cat chairman and chief executive officer. "Our results were impacted by rapidly escalating raw material surcharges during the quarter as well as another mild winter across much of the United States that produced lower than projected sales of snow-related parts, garments and accessories. In addition, we announced a snowmobile promotion late in the quarter to assist our dealers."

During the 2005 fourth quarter, Arctic Cat repurchased 242,000 shares of its common stock. The company's board of directors also has provided a new authorization for the company to repurchase up to $20 million additional shares of its common stock from time to time in open market transactions.

Commenting on the new authorization, Twomey said, "The share repurchase program increases shareholder value for investors. Our board of directors believes that the repurchase of Arctic Cat's shares is an excellent use of the company's cash."

At the end of the 2005 fourth quarter, Arctic Cat reported $88.4 million in cash and no long-term debt.

Business line results

Sales of all-terrain vehicles (ATVs) grew 12 percent in the 2005 fourth quarter to $117.1 million versus $104.2 million in the same period last year. During the quarter, Arctic Cat shipped its first 1,000 ATVs featuring the new 650 H1 engine. The H1 is the first ATV engine designed and assembled by Arctic Cat. For fiscal 2005, the company's ATV sales rose to $341 million, up 16 percent compared to last year. Arctic Cat's ATV retail sales continued to grow faster than the overall industry growth rate for both the quarter and year.

Snowmobile sales in the 2005 fourth quarter rose to $10.9 million versus $5.1 million in the prior-year quarter as dealers responded enthusiastically to Arctic Cat's early release of the 2006 model CrossFire™, a hybrid snowmobile for mountain and trail riding. During the quarter, the company's dealers also ordered additional M7 series mountain sleds due to its strong retail sales. The M7 earned accolades as Snowmobile of the Year. As planned, Arctic Cat's full-year snowmobile sales declined 2 percent to $252.5 million, compared to $258.4 million in the prior year.

Sales of parts, garments and accessories in the 2005 fourth quarter were $29 million versus $30.8 million in the year-ago period. For the full fiscal year, sales of parts, garments and accessories were down 1 percent to $95.7 million compared to $96.8 million last year. Fourth-quarter and full-year parts, garments and accessories were lower than anticipated due to the mild winter season in key regions across the United States.

Outlook

"Although we expect further sales growth in the year ahead, led by continued ATV market share gains, we believe that high raw material costs, lower snowmobile sales and an unfavorable Japanese yen/dollar exchange rate will impact the company's earnings potential in fiscal 2006," said Twomey. "To address these factors, we are aggressively pursuing a variety of cost-reduction initiatives and continue our emphasis on producing best-in-class products in order to enhance customer satisfaction and drive shareholder value."

Arctic Cat anticipates fiscal 2006 first-quarter net sales for the period ending June 30 will be in the range of $100 million to $105 million compared to $102.6 million in the prior-year period. Net earnings for the first quarter are estimated between break-even to a loss of five cents per diluted share versus earnings of one cent per diluted share in the prior-year quarter.

For the fiscal year ending March 31, 2006, Arctic Cat anticipates net sales will grow 3 percent to 5 percent and be in the range of $710 million to $723 million. Arctic Cat is forecasting lower margins in fiscal 2006 due to increased raw material costs, lower snowmobile sales and a less favorable Japanese yen/dollar exchange rate, resulting in estimated full-year diluted earnings per share in the range of $1.31 to $1.40.

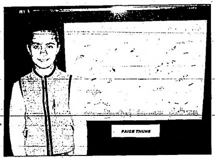
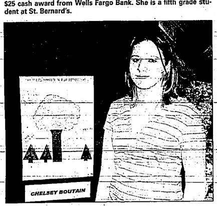
Ashley Marquis, a sixth grade student from Goodridge, was a poster contest winner for the Pennington Soil and Water Conservation District. She received a $25 cash prize from Border State Bank.



Paige Thune was one of three Pennington Soil and Water Conservation District poster contest winners. Thune received a $25 cash award from Wells Fargo Bank. She is a fifth grade student at St. Bernard's.



Chelsey Boutain, a sixth grade student from Goodridge, was one of the Pennington Soil and Water Conservation District poster contest winners. Her $25 cash award was provided by Northern State Bank.

SWCD poster and mural contest winners listed

Pennington Soil and Water Conservation District (SWCD) recently announced its conservation poster and mural contest winners. Poster winners were: Chelsey Boutain and Ashley Marquis, sixth graders from Goodridge; and Paige Thune, a fifth grader from St. Bernard's. Each winner received a $25 cash award. Prize sponsors were Northern State Bank, Border State Bank, and Wells Fargo Banks.

The mural contest was won by Mr. Mickelson's fifth grade class at Goodridge. The class received a $50 cash award from Bakke Insurance and the Pennington SWCD.

The contest was for fifth and sixth graders. "Trees - Rooted in Our Future" was the theme. The winners now advance to an area competition in June.

Get active and fit in May with NWMC's Life Fitness Center

May is National Physical Fitness and Sports Month. This year, Northwest Medical Center's Life Fitness Center joins the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports (PCPFS) to challenge Americans to get moving for health and to get active and fit during May.

Life Fitness Center is asking members to participate by signing a "Get Active" Contract in order to help meet the President's Challenge on fitness. Members who sign the contract will get a free physical activity fact sheet and a chance to win prizes from the Life Fitness Center. Prizes include everything from t-shirts, gym bags, free month memberships and free personal training sessions.

NWMC Trainer Rick Karboviak, CSCS, explained the benefits of being active at any age, "Being active can add up big for you in the long run. The combination of cardio, strength training and a healthy diet can help you shed excess body fat, lowering your chances at getting heart-related problems, and improve your overall daily work capacity. Things like yard work and taking in groceries become easier and less taxing for you."

Melissa Johnson, executive director of the PCPFS, said, "Americans of all ages need to incorporate more movement in their daily lives. Adults need at least 30 minutes of activity five days each week. This can be done by choosing to bike or walk instead of driving, taking stairs instead of elevators, or pushing a lawnmower instead of riding one. Children need at least 60 minutes of active play daily. They need to run, climb, jump and just get up and move around, away from their desks, the television and computer games."

Twenty minutes of vigorous physical activity three times a week, such as sports, aerobics, working out in the gym, and running, have added health benefits. Johnson said, "But it's important to understand that you don't need to sweat in a gym or run a marathon to reap the health benefits of daily physical activity. Even 30 minutes a day, broken up into shorter increments of 10 or 15 minutes, can greatly improve your health."

For more information about National Physical Fitness and Sports Month events in your local area, contact Life Fitness Center at 683-4367. For information about the PCPFS, go to www.fitness.gov. To start a physical activity and fitness program, log on to www.presidentschallenge.org and sign up to take the President's Challenge.

Lincoln High School Band Director Bruce Felt led a band of first-year performers at Northland Community and Technical College on May 7 during The Minnesota Band Directors Association Beginning Band Festival. Each student who participated in the festival was a first-year fifth or sixth grade band student.

Weather doesn't stop area runners in Fargo

by David Hill
Editor

Snow, rain and wind didn't dampen enthusiasm of the more than 2,700 participants or the thousands of spectators lining the routes of the Fargo Marathon events Saturday.

As if running 26.2 miles isn't enough to make you say Uff-da, Mother Nature decided to make it a little more difficult. Runners participating in Fargo's first Scheels Fargo Marathon awoke to a snow-rain mix, temperatures in the low 30's, and a north wind fluctuating between 20- and 35-miles per hour. Fargoans used to these conditions could only smile and say, "Welcome to Fargo."

Mark Knutson, one of the organizers of the event, was very pleased with the turnout. Initially, organizers thought they might be able to attract 800 to 1100 runners. They were optimistic that they might be able to attract 2,000 runners. Their estimates were quickly surpassed, and Saturday at the starting line for the events - 5k (3.1 miles), half marathon (13.1 miles), marathon relay, and marathon (26.2 miles) - there were over 2,700 runners, representing nearly every state and several countries.

As with any first-time event, there were a few glitches, Knutson said, but overall it went very well.

While weather conditions were less than favorable, not a discouraging word was heard - not even from spectators. Within the first mile there were hundreds of spectators, a rock band and belly dancers. Throughout the rest of the course spectators who were bundled up against the weather yelled, blew horns, shook bells, banged pots and pans, played loud stereos and honked car horns. When the miles started to get long for the runners, there were more spectators, including a garage band of teenagers, and a group playing bagpipes.

Runners were surprised almost to the point of being stunned. Even longtime residents of Fargo, N.D., were surprised - but very proud of their community.

Peter Ringerud of Fargo, N.D., said that in talking with a few local spectators and volunteers, they said that in spite of the weather, they enjoyed themselves and were pumped up by watching the runners. Some were so excited they wondered whether they should start running. The spectators also said they were amazed that runners were cheering the spectators and thanking them for the support.

"The important point for me," said Ringerud, "was the gracious support shown by everyone and the sheer numbers of spectators and runners. It made me proud to be a Fargoan."

The course

The first half of the marathon route took runners south through the old and scenic residential area, and then back north along the Red River of the North. It then crossed the new Main Avenue bridge where it had started, and then strayed into some residential areas and parks in Moorhead. Turning north again, it took runners across the 12th Street bridge back into Fargo and north, north beyond the airport to Wall Street before turning south, taking runners through the campus of North Dakota State University and finishing at the Fargo Civic Center.

Area Runners

The inaugural event included several area runners. Their results were as follows.

5K (3.1 miles)

Half Marathon (13.1 miles)

Russell Sorenson, 46, Roseau, 1:27:19, 16th; Kent Warne, 36, Newfolden, 1:37:45, 56th; Chris Wright, Thief River Falls, 39, 1:38:24, 61st; Mark Yuska, 35, Thief River Falls, 1:38:36, 63rd; Michael Grover, 29, Warroad, 1:40:32, 82nd; Bob Melby, 54, Oklee, 1:48:11, 149th; Lori Warne, 36, Newfolden, 1:49:15, 162nd; Kari Holmstrom, Newfolden, 20, 1:51:03, 180th; Lori Grover, 27, Warroad, 1:51:48, 185th; Steve Lancette, 33, Roseau, 2:15:23, 580th.

Marathon Relay

Four-person teams competed on the marathon course. The relay divisions consisted of mixed marathon, men's marathon and women's marathon relays.

There were lots of imaginative team names - 3 Girls & A Guy, Dragons with Numchucks, and Killer B's, for example. Twenty-five mixed relay teams were listed as having finished the course. The results did not list hometowns, but the Killer B's, which finished fourth overall in the mixed marathon relay, consisted of four individuals from Thief River Falls - Pat and Laura Brickson, Rob Burkel and Cammy Bahner.

A second team from Thief River Falls - the Bjerk Chicks - finished in a little over four and-a-half hours. Team members consisted of Lisa Simenson, Christy Sorenson, Tiffany Sorenson, and Becky Hulst - three sisters and Christy Sorenson's daughter. Christy said one of the team members was directed in the wrong direction and that caused a significant gap. Despite that, Christy said she enjoyed the event and noted that there was great support from the community.

Marathon (26.2 miles)

David Hill, 45, Thief River Falls, 3:20:51, 50th; Adrian Pat, 34, Roseau, 3:55:46, 224; Kristi Kvien, 34, Roseau, 5:25:54.

The overall marathon winners were: Scott Jansky, Two Rivers, Wis., 31, and Cindy Lewandowski, Sartell. They finished in 2:31:12, and 3:16:27, respectively.

Thief River Falls student Bailee Walker participated in The Minnesota Band Directors Association Beginning Band Festival, held at Northland Community and Technical College on May 7. Each student who participated in the festival was a first-year fifth or sixth grade band student

Greenwood St. Bridge proposal progresses

City Council approved $5,000 for the city's share of the cost for the assessment and evaluation of proposals to purchase Aquila assets. Aquila has put its natural gas assets up for sale in Minnesota, said Utilities Director Arlo Rude.

The Minnesota Municipal Utilities Association then asked city leaders throughout the state whether they would be interested in purchasing those assets. The organization held a meeting April 28 on the matter, and leaders from over 100 cities attended and unanimously voted to look into purchasing those natural gas assets, Rude noted.

Before making a decision, an engineering analysis has to be completed. "The first question is, 'Is it reasonable to make an offer?'" Rude said.

That engineering analysis will cost about $50,000, according to Rude. He said some of the larger cities, including Thief River Falls, have been asked to make a $5,000 donation toward that analysis.

The council tabled a motion to approve the low bid for the 2005 Street Improvement Project. Lindberg said city leaders have not yet signed an agreement with Wal-Mart. As a result, the city cannot award the low bid until that agreement is signed since Wal-Mart will be paying for Nelson Drive improvements near its future store.

City Council approved an ordinance amending the definition of a restaurant as it pertains to the sale of alcoholic beverages. City Attorney Paul Ihle noted the change means that restaurants with seating for 25 guests or more will be able to have 3.2 malt liquor licenses and/or wine licenses. In the past, that number was 40, which is the current number required for a business to have an on-sale intoxicating liquor license.

City Administrator Jodie Torkelson said May 11 that owners of The Getaway had requested the change, which was also brought up in earlier meetings by the owners of Café Rhombus.

The council approved the transfer of an on-sale liquor license and cigarette license from Pennco Inc. to The Lantern of TRF Inc. The council also approved a request for a Sunday liquor license for The Lantern. Council member Ken Schmalz abstained from voting since his brother Keith is The Lantern's president.

City Council approved a policy making direct deposit mandatory for all city employees. BlackLance voted against the measure.

The city issues about 101 checks each pay period, Torkelson said. She added that having direct deposit would save the city approximately $8,000 per year. In addition, Torkelson noted it would alleviate the potential for checks to be lost.

Twenty city employees signed a petition in opposition of that plan. Most of the reasons given for signing the petition centered on it being the employees' money and the city not having a right to tell them what to do with their money, according to Torkelson.

Direct deposit has been an option for city employees for four or five years, said Gary O. Anderson, a wastewater department employee who signed the petition. He noted most city employees receive "hard checks." "I don't know why it can't be that way," Anderson said.

BlackLance said he had a problem with making it mandatory and suggested offering employees incentives to have their payroll checks deposited directly.

Burkholder addressed the council on two issues – Ralph Engelstad Arena (REA) management and the council meeting schedule.

Burkholder said it was a conflict of interest for Mayor Dale Wennberg to serve as the interim REA general manager while the city determines how REA should be managed.

Ihle replied that it is not against city or state law for Wennberg to serve in that capacity.

Burkholder also asked whether the council meetings could be scheduled at 7 p.m. In the 1990s, council meetings were held at that time. However, that meeting time was later changed to 5 p.m. He said more people would attend the meetings if the meetings were scheduled later.

Schmalz responded that a time change would not lead to more people attending the council meetings. Remarking that he attended the 7 p.m. meetings prior to being elected to the council, Schmalz said a 7 p.m. meeting time would not bring more people to the council meetings.

The next council meeting is scheduled May 24 at 5 p.m. at City Hall.

were privately constructed during the trailer court's history.

Anderson, along with the property owner's owner, Cloose, of McKenna Properties LLC, stated that poor drainage in the area and frost boils on cross roads, have made it impossible at times for vehicles to reach the trailer court's properties.

Anderson said he has contacted various township officials for the past six years in an attempt to cure drainage problems along the roads, but stated that he has always received an excuse as to why the township would take no action.

An official plat, presented by Cloose, did not mention who owned the private drives, of which both Cloose and Anderson were attempting to have the township or county take ownership. No action was taken. Flaagen was asked by the board to investigate the history of the drives; determine which government entity would be responsible for their maintenance; and present suggestions on how to best repair the drives to the Smiley Township Board of Supervisors.

- Flaagen presented HDR Engineering's latest proposal for solving County Ditch 1 drainage problems along U.S. Highway 59.

Alternative 1 plan calls for the installation of a 60-inch RCP storm sewer from Greenwood Street to U.S. Highway 59, diversion of CD 1 west along CR 8 and a cleaning, repair and re-sloping of the Aaseby ditch.

Alternate 1A plan includes an extension of the CD 1 storm sewer from U.S. 59 to the Red Lake River.

The Alternate 2 plan calls for the installation of a 72-inch RCP or arch-pipe storm sewer from Greenwood Street to U.S. Highway 59; CD 1 improvements between Greenwood St. and Pennington County Road 8, including a 12-foot bottom within the ditch and a 3-to-1 slope; and cleaning, repair and re-sloping of the Aaseby ditch.

Alternate 2A calls for an extension of the CD 1 storm sewer from U.S. 59 to the Red Lake River.

No action was taken regarding the CD 1 drainage alternatives.

Pennington County Solid Waste Officer Howard Person updated the board on the possible addition of recycling roll-offs. Person met with the Thief River Falls Public Works Committee to discuss the roll-offs, which would be located at Hugo's and Super One Foods. Previously the board approved the purchase of two roll-offs, while proposing the city pay pull charges.

The Thief River Falls Public Works Committee had a different scenario in mind, proposing that the city of Thief River Falls purchase the roll-off containers and the county would pay pull charges. No action was taken on behalf of the proposal.

Person said full recycling is available at the Pennington County Solid Waste Transfer Station, but the location is not as convenient as the Hugo's and Super One Foods locations will be. With the new containers, Alpha Recycling would be able to accept cardboard, mixed metal including aluminum and two types of plastics. Only newspaper recycling is currently available at the Hugo's and Super One Foods locations.

Discussion turned to possibly purchasing used recycling roll-offs, an option Person agreed to investigate.

Solid waste items

- Person said he has received more bids for repairs to the solid waste transfer station. Bids have been received for repair to the load-out area and for the roof covering the office portion of the building. No action was taken.
- Person reported that the University of Minnesota Extension will be offering a program geared toward protecting the nation's food supply on June 23, beginning at 9 a.m. According to Person it is the only seminar like it in northwest Minnesota

- The board received property descriptions of tax forfeited land. Each property's value will be estimated by the commissioner that resides in that district.
- The board approved the Sheriff Department's acceptance of a $1,766 Boat and Water Safety Grant. The grant will be used to cover costs associated with patrolling the Red Lake River.
- The board approved an updated Sentence to Serve agreement.
- The board authorized the Pennington County Highway Department's operation of a vending machine in the Joint Operations Facility.

Kari Howe spelled out the program specifics of Ingenuity Frontier, a program that would help develop a pool of applied engineers. Howe gave her presentation at the Jobs Inc. annual meeting in Thief River Falls on Wednesday, May 11.

NCTC recognizes student, faculty, staff and alumnus

woman that I admire and have high regard for."

Cindy Cedergren named employee of the year. Cedergren has been an employee at Northland since 1976. A graduate of Lancaster High School and the former Thief River Falls AVTI, Cedergren was first hired as a secretary in the Administration and Registration department and later became the Adult Extension Secretary. Since 1988, she has served as administrative assistant to the president.

Cedergren has taken on increasing and ever-changing responsibilities in her positions, working the countless hours needed to get the job done right. She has taken on a leadership role for the NCTC Foundation several times in the absence of an executive director.

John Hitchcock named alumnus of year. Hitchcock graduated from the Aviation Maintenance Technology program in 1993. He came to Northland as a graduate of the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks, N.D., where he had earned a B.A. degree in social sciences and a minor in aviation administration, with an emphasis on aviation law and business management. To accompany this strong focus on many aspects of aviation during his studies at the university, he decided to learn all he could about the mechanics of airplanes and accomplished this at Northland.

Hitchcock's education in aviation served him well when he joined the team of Cirrus Design in Baraboo, Wis. The company was in its infancy and Hitchcock was able to apply his training and learn the business of building aircrafts from the bottom up. As the company grew, Hitchcock advanced to higher levels of responsibility, moving to Duluth, when the company headquarters were relocated and then to Grand Forks, N.D., to serve as the to executives at the North Dakota-based plant. He is the director of production at the Grand Forks facility, which has grown from building two planes per week, to building 12 to 13 planes at present.

Turning NW Minnesota into applied engineering capital

It all began, said Kari Howe, when the group began asking what is the competitive advantage of the 12 counties in northwestern Minnesota. In visiting with businesses and manufacturers, she said they discovered some "commonalities," needs, and knowledge gaps. One thing stood out - the need for applied engineering.

Ingenuity Frontier would like northwestern Minnesota to be known for its applied engineering. They plan to reach that goal by offering practical application-based education and training to prospective engineers, attract and retain a highly skilled workforce, and facilitation collaboration between business and education and the communities they serve.

They'll reach those objectives by providing strategies that deliver pre-engineering instruction at area middle and high schools. One program touted during the Jobs Inc. meeting would provide educational materials for a program called Project Lead the Way. Dave Hengel of Headwaters Regional Development Commission said they would like to see six schools implement the program. Two schools, Clearbrook and Bemidji, have already agreed to offer the program. He said he couldn't imagine that Thief River Falls would not be involved.

Their strategies also include establishing a Center for Applied Engineering that will serve the needs of education and industry and allow them to take advantage of their combined assets. Bemidji State University has already been selected as the site for Center.

The third strategy seen as essential to achieving their objectives is a marketing campaign to "brand the region" as a hub of engineering talent. Howe said they've already begun moving forward with marketing.

Howe and Hengel believe this effort will give companies as diverse as all-terrain vehicle manufacturers, technology wholesalers, defense contractors and window manufacturers, a unique competitive advantage.

Jim Russ of Team Industries said that in his experience, the region needs individuals with knowledge and experience in engineering. He sees the education programs offered through Ingenuity Frontier as an opportunity to provide this region with the best and brightest. To continue to compete, said Russ, the region will need to get the very best.

Hengel said Ingenuity Frontier will solidify the region's advantage, would create opportunities for jobs and prosperity, and create a new economy.

Funds and efforts have already been committed to Ingenuity Frontier. Ingenuity Frontier also has a two year goal of raising $2.6 million for education and training, its Center for Applied Engineering, and marketing. Northwest Minnesota Foundation has established the Ingenuity Frontier Fund as one of its key components. It also has the support of several organizations and businesses.

As many as 140 youth could be involved in the program.

Forney said they have named the program the "Challenger Rocket Booster Club," established criteria for participation, checked with teachers about students that qualify, and notified parents.

Lincoln High School Update

"The class of 2005 is a very talented group," said Lincoln High School Principal Tom Hunt.

Hunt and Scott Brekke presented an update on activities at Lincoln High School.

Some important dates to remember include: graduation at 7:30 p.m. on May 27, at Ralph Engelstad Arena; band concert on Thursday, May 12; orchestra concert on Monday, May 16; Academic Lettering breakfast on Wednesday, May 18; choir concerts on May 22 and 23; Baccalaureate on Wednesday, May 25; and the last day of school is May 27.

It's a busy time of year, said Hunt.

Hunt said 146 students will graduate this year. Five more could be added to the list. This will not have a significant impact on enrollment numbers at the school next fall. Hunt said he expects enrollment will stay about the same - roughly 650 students.

Sustained Silent Reading (SSR) Program was one of the main goals at Lincoln High School this year. Under the program, students and staff would pause for 15 minutes every morning to read from a novel - not newspapers or magazines. A survey of staff showed that staff believes 90 to 100 percent of students are reading during SSR. They feel most students are positive about SSR. A majority of staff feel it is going well and did not offer any changes. Some staff feel newspapers and magazines should be allowed, and some staff members would like to see more reading time.

Brekke said an unexpected outcome of the program has been an increase in the number of books being checked out of the library. During the 2003-04 school year, about 4,500 books were checked out of the library. During the 2004-05 school year, which is not quite complete, over 5,200 books have been checked out.

College In the High School was another program offered during the year. Classes offered through Northland Community and Technical College certified staff at Lincoln High School included psychology, human anatomy and physiology, beginning Spanish I and beginning Spanish II.

Brekke said it was a guarded success. The final numbers that would indicate how much it cost and how much was saved by keeping students on campus were not available, yet. Brekke said school administrators are excited about it, and staff response has been favorable. He said they are looking at adding math and other areas to the list of classes offered.

Hunt and Brekke covered several other issues, including safety drills; the school theme, Attitude Is Everything; public relations and communication; and testing.

The Thief River Falls TIMES

Michael Forney of the Prowlers went up for this shot during the 2005 Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Invitational boys high school tennis tournament Thursday.

NCTC baseball players, coach collect awards

Post-season baseball honors have been awarded to Northland Community and Technical College players Tom Dostal and Will Leetch, along with Pioneers head coach Steve Gust.

A sophomore first baseman from East Grand Forks, Dostal was named Minnesota Community College Conference All-Northern Division, MCCC all-state and National Junior College Athletic Association Division III All-Region 13.

Dostal was one of just 10 Minnesota players named to the all-region squad. He hit .433 with six home runs and 38 runs batted-in this spring for the 20-19 Pioneers.

Leetch, a sophomore catcher from Roseau, was an all-division pick. He hit .319 and drove in 18 runs.

Gust and Justin Lamppa of Itasca were named co-Coach of the Year in the Northern Division. The Vikings and Pioneers finished 11-5 in the final league standings.

Three Pioneers earn all-division votes for 2005 softball season

Three members of the 2005 Northland Community and Technical College softball team have earned Minnesota Community College Conference All-Northern Division honors.

Rochelle Nelk, a freshman shortstop/pitcher from Wheaton, was a First Team pick, while Shannon Olson, a pitcher/shortstop from Bagley, and Katie Walseth, a sophomore third baseman from Thief River Falls, were Second Team selections.

MCCC All-Northern Division

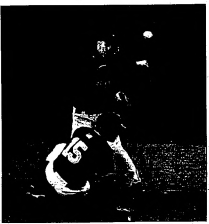
■ First Team - (Central Lakes) Jackie Sullivan, Leigha Walter, Amber Butler; (Rainy River) Lindsey Imhof, Jessica Johnson; (Mesabi Range) Deanna Jackson; (Itasca) Stacey Villebro; (Northland) Rochelle Nelk; (Vermilion) Jill Manning.

■ Second Team - (Itasca) Ashley Carlson, Joslin Geisler, Baylee Lundquist; (Hibbing) Kristin Paine, Tonya Albano; (Northland) Shannon Olson, Katie Walseth; (Vermilion) Krystle Smrekar; (Mesabi Range) Jada Strumbell.

Softball doubleheader vs. Fergus Falls is rained out

Weather forced officials to call off Saturday's high school softball doubleheader featuring Thief River Falls vs. Fergus Falls at the Multi-Events Center.



Bemidji second baseman Tobin Korpi forced out Thief River Falls runner Ryan Kruse, then made the relay to first base in an attempt to complete a double play in the sixth inning of Thursday's high school baseball game at the Multi-Events Center. The throw to first did not arrive in time to get the second out. The Prowlers edged the Lumberjacks 3-2.

TRF beats Bemidji in baseball, 3-2...

Prowlers get a 'Lovly' victory

Although it's officially listed in the Minnesota State High School League Directory as a Thief River Falls/Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke cooperative, you don't often see the names of all four communities mentioned by the area media when reporting on the Prowlers' baseball program. Thursday, however, the Goodridge connection made a major impact in a 3-2 win over Section 8AAA rival Bemidji at the soggy Multi-Events Center diamond.

David Lovly spent the fall playing football for the Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke Blue Devils and in the winter played basketball for the Goodridge Huskies before hooking up with the Prowlers for baseball. His athleticism had to impress the Lumberjacks, who watched as the speedy senior made a key fifth inning defensive play in right field, then singled and scored the winning run in the bottom of the seventh.

It was the tenth win in 14 starts for the Prowlers, who lost a 10-4 game at Bemidji earlier this spring. The Lumberjacks left town sporting a 4-5 record.

Despite a game-long rain/drizzle and finger-numbing temperatures, the two teams combined on a high-quality performance. Pitchers Justin Brooks of Thief River Falls and Sam Anderson of Bemidji managed to grip a wet baseball for gutty route-going performances. They both gave up six hits. Anderson walked only one and struck out seven. Brooks walked three and fanned six.

Surprisingly, the miserable playing conditions didn't create havoc with the defense, either. Bemidji played an error-free game; Thief River Falls was charged with one error when the wet infield finally did take down a fielder in the seventh inning. "We're a fundamentally strong baseball team," explained Thief River Falls coach Shane Zutz. "We take a lot of pride in being able to make the plays. I give both teams a lot of credit for playing through these kind of conditions."

The Prowlers jumped out to a quick 2-0 lead when their first two batters – Alec Holen and Michael Benedict – reached base and scored in the first inning. Holen dropped a single into right field to start it, and on a perfectly-executed hit-and-run, Benedict bounced a single up the middle that sent Holen to third. Lucas Genereux followed with a run-scoring double to right-center field and Alex Carlson picked up an RBI on a sacrifice fly.

Bemidji got one run back in the second inning when Tobin Korpi drilled a lead-off single to right, stole second, then reached third and scored on back-to-back infield ground-outs – the second one netting an RBI for Andy Crotty.

That was all the scoring until the seventh, with a catch by Lovly helping to protect the 2-1 Thief River Falls lead. After a lead-off walk issued to Mike Wallner to open the fifth, Nate Brown drove a high fly ball to right field. Lovly gave chase and made the play just as he crashed into the fence.

Bemidji did tie it in the seventh, though, when Korpi walked, stole second and scored when Joey Lindseth banged a hard-hit double to left-center.

The game's lone error followed. With a run already in and Lumberjacks on first and second with nobody out, Bemidji was poised to take the lead.

Brooks, however, retired the next three batters to escape further damage. The pitcher got the first out

TRF wins third tournament

A sweep in singles carried the host Prowlers past Crookston, East Grand Forks and Moorhead Thursday in the annual Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Invitational boys high school tennis tournament.

Juniors Justin Pyle and Michael Forney, along with sophomores Cody Bottem and Corey Horien, were winners at 1-through-4 singles, respectively for the Prowlers, who also picked up a title at No. 2 doubles with sophomore Jordan Swanson and freshman Jacob Engelstad.

The Prowlers finished the chilly, overcast day with 16 points, followed by the Pirates with 13, Green Wave 8 and Spuds 5.

It was the third straight tournament title for the Prowlers, who earlier won the April 30 Moorhead Invitational and the May 5 Northwest Quad played in Bemidji.

Northland softball squad 1-2 at state

Northland beat Minnesota West 6-4 in opening round play, but then lost to Fergus Falls 11-7 and Itasca 7-0 during Saturday's portion of the 2005 Minnesota Community College Conference state softball tournament in Brainerd.

The eight-team, double-elimination event was a two-day affair, but the Pioneers were done after Day 1.

Fergus Falls beat Central Lakes 5-4 in Sunday's championship game.

Northland finished the year 24-15. That's the second highest win total in school history, behind only a 25-13 state championship season in 1998.

The win over Minnesota West and the loss to Fergus Falls were both eight inning contests.

Erik Brenna of Thief River Falls launched the shot during the 2005 True Team Section 8AA boys and girls high school track meet Tuesday in Thief River Falls.

TRF golfers turn in strong performances at Fargo meet...

Sjoberg, Prowlers second, fourth

Strong performances were turned in by Paul Sjoberg and his Thief River Falls teammates during the Fargo North Invitational boys high school golf tournament Friday.

Sjoberg finished tied for second in the individual standings with a 73, two shots behind winner Tom Hoge of Fargo South, who shot a par-71. A senior, Sjoberg medaled in the tournament for the fourth straight year.

Fargo South took team honors with a 295. Thief River Falls was fourth at 308. The tournament drew 12 teams.

"I was pleased with the team finishing fourth in a strong field," said Thief River Falls coach Dick Tyler.

Two other Prowlers were also in the 70's, with Lee Peterson shooting a strong 76 and Matt Nordhagen a 79, thanks to a final-hole par.

Brady Stanley, Kevin Lunke and Kyle Lunke rounded out the Thief River Falls line-up. Stanley lipped out an eagle chip on No. 18 from 100 yards and finished with an 80. In his first varsity meet, Kevin Lunke shot a 38 on the back side to finish with an 85. Kyle Lunke turned in an 89.

Scheduled as a two-day affair, the tournament was reduced to a Friday-only tournament because of rain and sleet that fell Saturday morning. The back nine was deemed unplayable, and there was some doubt, too, if the front side could be played.

Tyler expressed thanks on behalf of the Thief River Falls golf program to parents of the players for their financial support this spring that enabled the team to participate in tournaments at Fargo and Minneapolis. "The team would like to thank Stan and Sylvia Sjoberg for paying for the motel rooms and meal at the Fargo North tournament," he said. "We would also like to thank Stan and Sylvia Sjoberg, Mike and Kristie LaSalle, Brent and Deb Lunke, Rick and Mary Nordhagen, Daren and Kelly Stanley and Brian and Kim Peterson for raising the money for the team to attend the Tri-State tournament in April."

A busy schedule that includes five tournaments in seven days wraps up the Prowlers' regular season. That stretch began at Moorhead Tuesday and Red Lake Falls/Fertile-Beltrami today (Wednesday). The Thief River Falls Invitational is planned Friday before the team goes back on the road Saturday at Roseau and Monday at Sauk Centre – site of the May 30 Section 8AA tournament.

Fargo North Invitational

■ Other TRF scores - Lee Peterson 76, Matt Nordhagen 79, Brady Stanley 80, Kevin Lunke 85, Kyle Lunke 89.

Prowlers' Evans EGF medalist

■ Thief River Falls golfer has top score at Monday Quad

Ashley Evans of Thief River Falls was medalist Monday at the East Grand Forks Quadrangular girls high school golf meet.

Evans and Kristi Reitmeier of Crookston both shot a 46, but the tie by broken by matching scorecards.

Prowlers coach Gary Laidley, who couldn't recall the last time a Thief River Falls golfer won a meet, said the results were "pretty exciting."

Crookston won team honors by a 190-194 margin over Thief River Falls. East Grand Forks shot a 207 and Warren-Alvarado-Oslo had a 230.

Laidley was happy with those numbers, too, since the Pirates have been beating the Prowlers by 25-to-35 strokes in most match-ups this spring.

EGF Quadrangular

■ Team totals - Crookston 190, Thief River Falls 194, East Grand Forks 207, Warren-Alvarado-Oslo 230.

■ Medalist - 1. Ashley Evans, TRF, 46; 2. Kristi Reitmeier, Crookston, 46; 3. Marley Hanson, Crookston, 47; 4. Jamie Steer, Crookston, 47.

Lovly, Prowlers defeat Lumberjacks 3-2

when he fielded a bunt and turned a sacrifice attempt into a force at third to head off a potential big inning for the Lumberjacks.

Giving up the lead didn't seem to faze the Prowlers. They met the challenge in the bottom of the seventh when Lovly, the No. 9 batter in the line-up, dropped a one-out single into short right field, just inside the foul line. He stole second and dashed home when Holen sent a sharp single to center.

Stationed in the third base coaching box, Zutz admitted he tried to hold Lovly up on the play, but didn't mind the runner missing the sign when he watched him beat the throw to the plate.

"Our seniors won the game for us," said Zutz. "David and and Alec made the plays with the game on the line. That's what seniors do for you."

Rams beat Prowlers in a 3-1 baseball rematch

Winning pitcher Joe Benke helped his own cause by hitting a fifth inning home run to lead Roseau past Thief River Falls 3-1 in a Tuesday (May 10) high school baseball game hosted by the Rams.

Singles by David Lovly and Alec Holen were sandwiched around an error for a third inning Thief River Falls run.

Roseau tied it with a lead-off walk, stolen base and one-out error in the fourth.

It was the second meeting of the year between the two teams. The Prowlers out-scored the Rams 7-6 in an eight-inning season-opener played at the Multi-Events Center back on April 14.

Northland goes 1-2 at state tournament

All three Northland state tournament games were played in a cold, steady drizzle.

Despite the weather, Pioneers' spirits were high following the morning victory, according to head coach Kathy Huschle. However, a rash of mistakes resulted in the two afternoon setbacks. "We made a lot of base-running errors," she explained. "We put people on base, but I've never seen a team hit into so many double plays. We had kids being picked off. I don't know what they were thinking."

With regular second baseman Lisa Hardy missing the tournament due to illness, the Pioneers had to make line-up adjustments, and it affected the team both offensively and defensively, mentioned Huschle.

Minnesota West forced extra innings by scoring two runs in the bottom of the seventh, but Northland came right back with a pair of runs in the eighth for the win. With two out, Bobbi Cummings singled, Rochelle Nelk reached base on an error and Katie Walseth followed with base hit to score both runners.

"That was a good win," noted Huschle.

Northland watched another late-game lead slip away against Fergus Falls. Aided by an inning-extending controversial safe call on a play at second base, the Spartans came up with a run and a 2-2 tie in the top of the sixth. After a scoreless seventh, the two teams combined for 14 eighth inning runs.

Nine Fergus Falls base hits added up to a nine-run inning and an 11-2 lead. Northland tried to respond, scoring five times before the wild inning finally ended.

"They (Spartans) really hit the ball that inning," said Huschle. "We couldn't shut them down. We did come back in the bottom of the inning, and even though we didn't win, I thought that we might be able to carry that momentum into the next game."

It didn't work that way, however. That's when the base path mistakes caught up to the Pioneers, who were shut out by the Vikings.

"We had a lot of high hopes this year," mentioned Huschle, "and we played well at times. The conference, I think, had a lot of respect for Northland softball this year. And that hasn't always been the case."

Registrations accepted for 2005 Cody Lundgren SIDS Memorial Golf Tournament

Registrations remain open for the third annual Cody Lundgren SIDS Memorial Golf Tournament, scheduled to be held Friday, June 10, at the Thief River Golf Club.

The event is an 18-hole, four-person scramble format. Lunch will be served beginning at 11 a.m. Golf begins with a noon shotgun start.

A $40 entry fee includes two mulligans and lunch. All proceeds go to the Minnesota Sudden Infant Death Center at Children's Hospitals and Clinics of Minneapolis and St. Paul.

To enter, or for additional information, call Mike Lundgren at 681-4450 or 618-7390.

The ball bounced away as Bemidji catcher Joey Lindseth got tangled up with Thief River Falls runner David Lovly on the game-winning play that gave the Prowlers a 3-2 Thursday high school baseball victory over the Lumberjacks. Lovly scored from second base on a one-out single to center by Alec Holen in the bottom of the seventh inning. Interested observers on the play included umpire Chris Mills, Thief River Falls head coach Shane Zutz and Prowlers on-deck batter Michael Benedict.

Bemidji first base coach Chris Schmitz wasn't gaining any ground trying to argue his point with home plate umpire Chris Mills during Thursday's high school baseball game at the Multi-Events Center in Thief River Falls. Schmitz didn't agree with a call made on a pick-off play at first, but Mills quickly ended the conversation so action could resume without additional distraction.

Strandquist Community News

F. Myrtle Vagle • 436-2133

The weather in northwest Minnesota went on a rampage,in some places but around here we received only an inch of rain. There was a lot of lightning and thunder for which we are thankful, the nitrogen that the lightning released from the atmosphere is turning my lawn to a beautiful spring green. The thermometer is hanging around the 60 degree mark and I 'm hoping we are done fighting to keep our gardens from freezing. My bleeding heart plant is nicer and bigger than it has ever been and I'm happy that I was able to keep it from freezing all that time. Now, I keep watching to see my dahlias begin to show what they can do.

I remember the day when I had planted an apricot seed in the west end of Mom's big garden. After a few days, it hadn't shown up, so I uncovered it. I found that even the shell hadn't cracked on it and I put more water on it, covered it and waited a while longer. When I examined it the next time, it hadn't changed a bit, so I opened it up and only planted the nut on the inside. After carefully digging the poor thing up and no change, and it was time for school to begin, I could only wish I had eaten it rather than try to grow it. I many time wonder when we would like to plant some of these exotic plants and trees, if there is such a place in the world where any and all plants can be successfully raised. Here, where we have so short a growing season, we get tastier and better for you vegetables and grains. The lilacs and roses will soon be in full bloom. That will make you hold the door open after a rain and breathe deeply as you enjoy their fragrance. Have you ever tried to take a whiff of roses grown in warmer climates? Don't hold your breath too long, there is little or no scent in them.

Mother's Day has come and gone, and I can only wish yours' was as nice as mine. I accompanied Morris and Hazel Anderson to Grand Forks where we were entertained by Jim, Cindy and Christy Wetterlund all day. With beautiful corsages and enjoying a delicious dinner at a fine restaurant. We spent some time visiting nurseries and getting satisfied that the nurseries around here are as good as they come.

Early Mother's Day morning, Lowell Lefrooth came first to his Grandma Elsie Lefrooth's and delivered to her a beautiful corsage from her daughter Marcelyn and her husband Morris Lindstrom from Park Rapids. Then he went home with his arm load of flowers to bring joy to the rest on his list. Thanks, Lowell, for spreading joy to so many.

After Grandson Lowell had brought Elsie her corsage, her luck brought her company all day with gifts and goodies. David and Elaine Grovum of TRF and David's mother Evelyn Grovum arrived first, followed by Vance and Adrienne Lefrooth, Dean and JoAnne Holmstrom and Donny Lefrooth. In the evening, Pearl Thompson and I ended Elsie's happy day.

Kristopher and Kenrick Anderson visited at Paul and Shirley Anderson's Tuesday night. On Wednesday Shirley Anderson and Eva Bernard drove to New Ulm to visit David and Jenny Janssen. They attended a baby shower for Nathaniel David Janssen on Thursday and returned home on Friday. Bethany is happy to have a baby brother but any more had better be girlies!!

On Sunday, Paul and Shirley Anderson, Owen and Diane Hagen and Katie, Dillon Sax, Bill Nelson and Eva Bernard went to Lancaster for Mother's Day dinner.

Judy Kleinvachter's guests this week were June Kasprowicz, Kelly Lefrooth, Marie Steffen, Laurina and Paulina Berggren, Joan Gerhls and Jim Fredrickson from Warren. Sunday afternoon, June Kasprowicz, Marie Steffen, Kay Turnwall and Judy went to Eveleth to attend the funeral for LaVonne (Simmonson) Swanson on Monday. LaVonne was the daughter of Joel and Jesse Simmonson of Strandquist, and was married to LeRoy Swanson.

When I heard that it reminded me when he and his sister Irene Swanson were in the first grade in school. Each day they shared a quart of "Kool-aid" to drink with their sandwiches. They usually saved some to have after school was out and one Friday evening they forgot to take the jar home with the last cup of "Koolaid" in it. Monday noon, when they had their lunch, LeRoy said, "Irene, you drink this. I'm afraid it's poison." This happened over 60 years ago and the phrase has been used many times since then. Irene didn't drink it nor did LeRoy.

A bright and successful future for TRF

Supporting our business community

The success of any community hinges on the people within that community. In a small community, much of our economic success is dependent upon a small number of individuals who have the foresight and determination to make their dreams come true - they're called small business leaders.

This week, the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce will be honoring the achievements of small business leaders. Our congratulations go out to two of those businesses and business leaders - Diamonds and Design, winner of the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce Business of the Year award; and Bryan Steiger, Entrepreneur of the Year award recipient.

A news release from Minnesota Public Radio (MPR) recently asked what separates a struggling small town from one with a bright future. We believe the answer is its entrepreneurs. After years of writing stories about successful entrepreneurs, we can say that all of the recipients of the Business of the Year Award and Entrepreneur of the Year award excelled in areas of risk, determination, and faith - faith in self, community, and friends. All of the people recognized over the years said that it takes hard work and lots of patience to be successful. True enough, but we've also noticed that they accepted those difficulties as challenges and more importantly, as opportunities.

In the year or two to come, it will be interesting to see how our entrepreneurs face the challenge posed by a new business in our community - another "big box" retailer. Since Wal-Mart will not be the first "big box" retailer in this community, I expect our small business entrepreneurs will face that challenge as they have in the past. They'll find a new niche or need to fill, and they'll rise to the challenge. We wish them all the best and ask local citizens to continue to support these individuals and their businesses. Their success is our success.

Scholars, artists and musicians demonstrate what's great about TRF

They're now on display.

Every year, I will hear complaints from readers who believe we only write bad news about local students - thefts, assaults, and vandalism. Many say it casts a dark shadow over the accomplishments of the many exceptional students in our community. The truth is that we write a lot about both, but right now much of our focus is on the exceptional students in our community - the honors students, the award winners, the scholarship recipients, the athletes, band students, orchestra students, choir students, and artists. The end of the school year is fast approaching, and if you're one of those who believe that only bad news makes the newspaper, now is the time to buy a copy of our newspaper because our best students are now on display.

To Graduates: Don't forget the values you learned here

At the end of the school year, newspapers and speakers are filled with advice to graduates. Unfortunately, students aren't necessarily listening. At the end of the year, students' thoughts turn more toward getting as far away from school and this small town as possible, and/or the fishing opener.

So, except for encouraging students to focus more on the positive aspects of the challenges they will soon face, and encouraging them to enjoy their freedom responsibly - they know what I mean - I won't add to the "noise."

If you are leaving this community, I hope that you will think kindly upon your hometown and someday even consider returning to share your skills and talents with another generation. As you race to get as far away from here as possible, don't forget the values you've learned here. Life is a journey and the values you've learned here will serve you well as guideposts along that journey.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Wrong message being sent to business owners

To the Editor:

On May 6, Sen. LeRoy Stumpf voted for, and the Senate passed, a bill that will raise taxes by $1.2 billion over the next two years. He supported one of the largest tax increases in recent history at a time when the economy is fragile and Minnesotans are facing higher costs for consumer goods and rising interest rates.

Wouldn't it be nice if Stumpf and the 34 other senators would have paused for a second and thought about the message they are sending to successful entrepreneurs, business owners and other folks who decide where their companies are located and where they expand their operations? He is now on record for higher business property taxes, higher corporate income taxes and the higher marginal rate for personal income taxes in the nation, which affects many small business owners. Businesses in Stumpf's district and throughout the entire state will not forget this vote.

Many senators will posture this vote as the first step in negotiating a budget settlement with Gov. Tim Pawlenty and House Republicans. Negotiations or not, the message has been sent: If you want to do your part to create jobs in Minnesota, you're going to pay more to state government for that privilege.

Sincerely,
David C. Olson
President
MN Chamber of Commerce

Thanks for supporting Daffodil Days

To the Editor:

The Pennington County unit of the American Cancer Society extends its heartfelt appreciation for the support from the community in raising funds during the Daffodil Days campaign. Our local unit raised $7,132 this year to assist in the research, education, and support for cancer patients and their families. The daffodils signaled a beginning of spring, bringing hope that a cure for cancer will be found soon. Within the state's campaigns, 89,000 bunches of daffodils were purchased and more than 6,200 cancer patients received anonymous "Gifts of Hope" bouquets, raising more than $1.1 million.

Our special thanks go to the following who devoted time, space, or financial support to help make this year's campaign successful: SuperOne Foods, Hall's Floral, Lincoln High School Key Club, Lincoln High School Honor Society, The Times, Open Arms Youth Group, Falls Day Activity Center, several area churches, and dozens of individuals who sold flowers at the on-site locations or delivered flowers to the business sponsors. Special thanks goes to the on-site locations: SuperOne Foods, Handy Farms, Best Western Inn, and Kmart. The value of their willingness to provide space for us at their business is immeasurable.

We appreciate everyone's assistance and support, but the cancer patients and their families in our communities appreciate it even more.

Sincerely,
Cindy Cedergren

Environmental water bill surges in Minnesota

The following was submitted by Tami Chervestad-Sparby of Grygla, and it is from EdAction (edaction.org).

A torrent of private property rights are being flooded out by a radical water bill (HF 826, SF 762) being rushed through the Minnesota Legislature at tsunami-speed. Opponents emphasize this is a dangerous bill that threatens the private property rights and other freedoms of all Minnesota citizens.

Supporters claim quick action on the bill is necessary to avoid development-related lawsuits, but closer examination of the legislation reveals that the Act itself is crafted so it can create an unelected Green Army, empowered to destroy development rights and drown businesses and homeowners under sweeping new regulations.

The Clean Water Legacy Act allows a Green Army of extreme environmentalists (called "citizen monitors") to collect information on Minnesota properties. The bill requires "individual wasteload data" be collected for all point sources in the state. Minnesota law defines "point source" as follows: "'Point source' means any discernible, confined and discrete conveyance, including, but not limited to, any pipe, ditch, channel, tunnel, conduit, well, discrete fissure, container, rolling stock, concentrated animal feeding operation, or vessel or other floating craft, from which pollutants are or may be discharged." This appears to mean that individual waste load data "in addition to what is collected already, must be collected for a. all private septic systems,

b. all private wells,
c. all private [illegible]
d. all [illegible] RVS, boats and aircraft,
e. all animal [illegible] sheds where live[illegible] is kept or may be kept,
f. all [illegible]
g. all [illegible]
h. all drainage tiles, and
i. any other identifiable point "from which pollutants are or may be discharged."

This bill is supposed to deal with surface water, but, as it is written, requires that all private wells be tested. How are the Greens going to have access to all this information? A companion bill (HF 1309 and SF 1371) to the Clean Water Legacy Act stipulates that authorized Non-Governmental Organizations (NGOs), which will include People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals (PETA) and the Sierra Club will be eligible to be designated as "agents," who can enter private property in order to "make surveys and investigations" without permission or warrants. That is, they can be enabled to go on any private property, without permission or any evidence of wrongdoing and without due process of law, 24 hours a day, 365 days a year, to do their "investigations." Because this bill creates law that deals with surface water, the Greens can be enabled to do their inspecting on virtually all property in the state, including private lawns in towns and cities.

The Clean Water Bill also says that "each property owner served by a community wastewater treatment system under this program must provide an easement to the governmental unit to allow for access to the system for management and repairs." This means that your sewage system, for all practical purposes, now belongs to the government. Government and its agents can now come at least to your doorstep, unannounced, and evaluate and "fix" your system. Does the word "system" include your indoor plumbing and toilets? Based on the definition of "sewage system" in Minnesota law, it appears that it does. That may be why we are told that some legislators are calling this "the toilet bill."

What will happen when local officials drag their feet on enforcing a state law that is extraordinarily expensive in addition to violating the people's right to protection of "life, liberty and property" by means of "due process of law"? Isn't our right of private property trampled on when property is no longer "private"?

The Greens, of course, can be expected to do what they often do – they can be expected to go to court and demand that the law be enforced to the last letter. Local officials will then have no choice but to give the Greens what they demand.

This can happen even though point source pollution contributes to only 15 percent of the pollution in the state. There is a total disconnect between the described problem and the supposed solution. This law (which was written by an environmental NGO) can give the extreme environmentalists major control over all the water and land in the state.

This is a plea from the citizens of Minnesota to the governor and all legislators – please do not hand us and our property over to the Greens! Contact your legislators. Ask them to delay this bill until next year so that public hearings can be held and the content of this bill can be made known and evaluated. There is no genuine need for haste on this bill. Ask them why the backers of the bill are in such a hurry. Could it be because they don't want the people, and most legislators, to know what this bill says? In addition to your legislators, contact:

Sailer supports increase in funding for highways

Rep. Brita Sailer voted Thursday in support of a comprehensive and balanced approach to meeting the transportation needs in the state.

Just after midnight Thursday, the Omnibus House Transportation bill was amended to come to a total $7.7 billion increase in transportation funding over the next 10 years.

"The passage of the amendment and the bill is a victory for the moderates in the Minnesota House," said Sailer. "This was a bipartisan compromise that will address head-on the budget shortfall threatening the health and safety of our Minnesota roads."

Sailer said that rural Minnesota simply could not wait another two years to begin funding the roads, which are increasingly in a state of disrepair.

"Rough roads are hard on our vehicles," said Sailer. "Our car or truck is a major investment for most of us and many local businesses, we want them to last without the extra maintenance costs due to poor road quality. We also want the infrastructure necessary to move locally produced goods."

Sailer said that the bill represented a compromise between rural and metro legislators and members from both sides of the aisle.

"Fifty-one percent of the trunk highway fund increase goes to rural Minnesota," said Sailer. "This is money that will pay for improvements on main roads we all use, like Highway 92, Highway 71, Highway 34 and Highway 2. This bill also allows for counties to choose to upgrade to 10-ton highways to help local industry."

Sailer said that the gas tax increase may not have been her first choice of a revenue source, the bill was balanced between rural and metro needs and included bonding and tab fee adjustments.

"As we approach the final week of the legislative session, bipartisanship and compromise is simply going to have to be part of the process if the important work of the state is going to be accomplished," said Sailer. "I know that I am committed to working towards that end."

Sen. Coleman expresses concern over BRAC proposal

U.S. Senator Norm Coleman has expressed his concern over recent recommendations to close several military bases after the announcement was made on Friday, May 13.

"The Pentagon has made its recommendations to the BRAC commission for it to consider, but this is just the beginning of a process that involves not only the Pentagon and BRAC, but the president and ultimately Congress. While I am pleased the Pentagon's recommendations recognize the importance of Minnesota military installations, including the Duluth Air National Guard, to the national security interests of our country, I am very concerned about the implications of some of the recommendations, including the possible 'parking' of F16s at the Duluth base beginning in FY07 without any clear follow-on mission which we must have, and the possible realignment of the Grand Forks Air Force Base. As the process moves forward, I will continue to work with military officials at home, with the leaders of communities that may be affected by any decision, including Mayor Bergson of Duluth and Mayor Stauss of East Grand Forks, as well as the Pentagon, BRAC, the Administration, and my colleagues in Congress who, along with me, will have the final say."

High School Progress
Egyptian Theme Features Junior-Senior Promenade; Juniors Present Welcome Skit In Form of Clever Egyptian Council Meeting

"In a huge Egyptian tent with its myriad streamers of green, red and yellow, its bright blankets, immense lanterns, palm trees, and Oriental pottery, the air heavy with the scent of incense, the members of the Senior class were guests of the Juniors at the annual Junior-Senior affair, which was this year changed from a banquet to a Prom, and was given at the Sons of Norway hall, Saturday evening, May 10.

"The truly Egyptian setting was further heightened by the program, which took the form of an Egyptian council meeting. Abdul Newland, of the Junioranius tribe, seated on his richly-tapestried throne, was confronted with the problem of either waging war on or welcoming into the tribe, an approaching desert band. Vigorous advice was given by his Chief Scribe, Forrest Anderson, and the Chief Priest, Melvin Wedul. But the real effect on his decision was made by the favorable foretelling of the future by the Soothsayer, Robert Korstad, and Abdul Newland extended the welcome of the Junioranius tribe to the roving band, that of Senioranius. Chief Richard Dablow responded in behalf of his valiant followers and Mr. Bye, as judge, added several words of wisdom to the occasion.

"This skit, written by Linnea Backlund, was followed by an Egyptian dance number, in which Borghild Norbeck, solo dancer, was assisted by Lois Oden, Harriet Liden, Ruth Moline, Veronica Shanahan, Lucile Archambault, Gena Sjolsvold, and Louise Mossestad. These girls were garbed in colorful Turkish costumes and carried cymbals, flowers or incense burners.

"The Desert March, following the program, was led by Miss Johnson and Mr. Bye, and made a very striking picture as it wound across the room under the manifold streamers and shaded lights. During the course of the evening, Mr. Andrew Grinley, accompanied by Violet Rhodegaard, sang two solos, and, dancing 'neath a bright Egyptian moon in the shadow of the pyramids' formed the diversion of the remainder of the time.

"Ice-cream, sandwiches, cake and coffee were served between 10:30 and 11 o'clock. The music was furnished by Bill Lee and His Rhythm Kings of Grand Forks.

"The guests were received by Clifford Newland, president of the Juniors, Richard Dablow, president of the Seniors, Mr. Bye, Miss Johnson, Miss Stenson, and Miss Pierson, Junior advisors, and Miss Greenland, Senior advisor.

"That the affair was most successful is very evident by the hearty way it was received and the remarks of a good time that have passed through the halls. The greater credit for its success must go to the two Junior advisors, Miss Stenson and Miss Pierson, and also to Clifford Newland, as well as the chairmen of the various committees."

Municipal Beauty Spot

"A formerly undisputed liberty of the students is being menaced. This is the privilege of using the shortcut between the auditorium and the school, which path has been used for so many years that certainly it is public thoroughfare and should not be obstructed. And yet a great heap of undoubtedly valuable and yet hardly attractive scrap iron is piled in the way. Even though this ornament does enhance the beauty of the city it is not very convenient in its present location.

"Here is a happy solution. Wouldn't it be a good plan to melt up all the organs of the late lamented [tin] Lizzies which now rest in the Sandeen, Ness and Fiterman used-car cemeteries and cast one huge monument to Henry Ford? This would be very fitting in view of the great benefits that Henry has bequeathed the folks in this territory, for example the opportunity to attend Saturday evening dances and other educational functions. If this is impracticable, why not buy a farm home somewhere in the peat bogs and deposit the relics there? Up in arms, students, and defend your cherished rights!"

News Items

"Crookston had a high water scare last week and the sawmill was shut down for two shifts.

"The heavy rains last week have done little if any damage to the crops and the cool weather is bringing everything out fine. Prospects were never better at this time of the year for a big crop.

"The fair given by the ladies of the Methodist Episcopal church last Friday evening was a decided success, both social and financial. The enterprising ladies succeeded in taking in over one hundred dollars.

"The White Earth Indians will come over and play a game of baseball next Sunday with the Thief River Falls team. It should prove an interesting game and quite a number from here will attend.

"The band boys are showing commendable enterprise in cleaning out the grove near the depot. They intend to fix it up in first class shape, put in a band stand, and a lot of benches and give open air concerts this summer. May they prosper.

"From an Exchange paper: If you send a package marked 'Handle with Care' by freight, the railway employees will take every opportunity to tumble it around and drop it on the depot platform as though it were a bale of hay. We once saw a railroad employee so sick he could scarcely hold up his hand, but when his wandering eye happened to fall on a package marked 'Handle with Care', he arose with an inspiring effort and threw the blamed thing the length of the depot platform, danced upon it and then shrieked and died."

The Tax Dodgers

"The Hannay-Thompson tax dodging cases came up before Judge Watts at Red Lake Falls last Tuesday evening. Recorder Gigstad, H. A. Johnson of Wylie and B. E. Burkee appeared as witnesses. The would-be tax dodgers made no claim whatever except that they were not legally notified. They have no justification whatever except that they hate to part with the money and want their neighbors to help. The court took the matter under advisement and a decision will be rendered in a few days."

Start a New Lodge
The Modern Brotherhood of America Will Install Here Next Month

"D. D. Horton, organizer for the Modern Brotherhood of America, has been here the past week in the interest of that order and has already secured sufficient signers to insure a lodge being instituted here in the near future. It is a fraternal order which has mutual life insurance for principal aim and, although comparatively new, is growing rapidly in favor. The accident and endowment features of the policies are new in mutual insurance and together with the fact that ladies are admitted makes it popular and about thirty have signified their intention of being members."

Draws First Blood in County Seat Matter
Thief River Falls Wins the Decision

"On last Monday, Judge William Watts at Crookston handed down a decision denying the application of Red Lake Falls parties for a permanent injunction restraining the county auditor from calling a meeting of the county board to consider the county seat removal petition. The court held that the duties of the [illegible] auditor were not optional but mandatory and that the auditor must act whether the petition was legal or not or not prepared in legal manner. In other words, the matter is for the county commissioners and not the auditor to decide.

"The temporary injunction is vacated and the auditor compelled to call a special meeting of the board, which he has already done, for the 5th of June. This does not [illegible] that an election will soon follow or that the legal complications are at an end. In fact they have not fairly [illegible] a long way off."

"Nearly all left-over and obsolete equipment and furnishings used in the old St. Luke's and Mercy hospitals will be offered at public auction Saturday at 1 p.m. at the Women's building at the Pennington county fairgrounds. The auctioneer will be Colonel Andy Anderson, and all proceeds will go to Northwestern Hospital building fund.

Items include a large number of older type hospital beds in good condition, about 70 wooden chairs, glassed-in cabinets, tables, a few desks, old operating tables, instrument tables, old bassinets and baby scales.

"Of special interest to men with electrical or mechanical hobbies are certain items of special type equipment used only in hospitals. This equipment can be taken apart and will afford many valuable parts for hobbyists or do-it-yourself men."

"Those who came to help with the fieldwork were Alf Lokken, who made the arrangements; Edward Stucy, Clifford Kolstrand, Lester Kolstrand, Otto Omlid, Orville Kjelgren, Sidney Omlid, Glennie Iverson, Alvin Kompen, Halvor Folkedahl, Bennie Johnson, Alex Larson, Bennie Groven, Eugene Prestegard, D. ### City Council Enacts New Dog Ordinance

"In an attempt to answer complaints by many local residents concerning dogs running at large, the city council, at its May session Tuesday night, took final action to adopt a new ordinance governing the subject.

"The dog ordinance, which will take effect following its publication in the Times, probably next Wednesday, provides that during the growing season from April 15 to September 15, dogs will not be allowed to run at large, but must be confined to their premises or kept on a leash. Provision is made for loose dogs to be picked up and impounded by a special police officer to be named by the mayor."

The News, John W. Eastman, Publisher May 18, 1905
Thief River Falls, Red Lake County, Minnesota

Meeting Is Now Called
Judge Watts Decides In Favor of Thief River Falls

"As was all along expected, Judge Watts last Saturday rendered his decision in the county seat case and held that County Auditor Ford had no right or authority to delay the calling of the county commissioners to consider the petition presented by Thief River Falls asking that the county seat of Red Lake county be removed from Red Lake Falls to Thief River Falls. The temporary restraining order, which the citizens of Red Lake Falls secured wholly without merit, was secured for the sole purpose of delaying the proceeding a few weeks.

"One of the legal obstacles has been overcome and County Auditor Ford has issued the required notices calling a meeting of the board of county commissioners of Red Lake county to consider the matter. The meeting is called for June 5th and at that time it should be the duty of the county commissioner to call a special election to vote upon the matter. This will not be done, however, for upon some technical point Red Lake Falls will again take the matter into the courts and it will then be necessary to secure a decision from the state supreme court. But in the course of time an election will have to be taken and then the people of the county can give an honest expression to their views."

To Build a Dam

"The citizens of Middle River have decided to build a dam across the river at that point. This is done for the purpose of making an artificial lake, which will do much toward making the appearance of this thriving little place more attractive. It is a move in the right direction and will bring the town good returns."

Buy an Outfit

"Twenty-five farmers living in the vicinity of St. Hilaire have formed a society and will purchase a threshing machine. These farmers raise enough grain to give employment for a machine during the threshing season and figure that they can pay for it in a few seasons. The move is a good one and we see no reason why it should not prove a successful undertaking."

High School Notes
Flora McNiven, Editor

"The trial of Irene Caldwell, alias Cassie Chadwick, will be heard in the Civic class a week from next Friday. The charge will be grand larceny and, as far as it is known, those to have the case in charge are Thomas Lonson, prosecuting attorney, Marie Burgess, judge, and Flora McNiven, attorney for the defense. The jurors will be sworn in a few days before the trial."

REGULAR BOARD MEETING
April 11, 2005
S.D.S.C. Conference Room A

A regular Meeting of the Independent School District #564 School Board was held on Monday, April 11, 2005, in Conference Room A of the School District Service Center. Chairperson S. Young called the meeting to order at 6:30p.m.

The following Board members were present: Steve Young, Randy Twistol, Barb Kalinoski, Mike Spears, Jenni Erikson-Lane and Jon Lindgren. Also in attendance was Superintendent Irv Peterson. Clerk Barb Kalinoski affirmed that a quorum was present.

A motion was made by M. Spears and seconded by R. Twistol to approve the agenda as presented. Motion carried unanimously.

Chairperson S. Young noted that Lenae Iverson of Wells Fargo Bank was there and wanted to make a presentation to the Board. Lenae presented a check to the Board for $1025.00 to be used for educational needs of the district. Funds were raise through the banks Team Up with Our Schools Program.

Shane Zutz has been named Assistant Principal of the Year by the members of the MASSP northern division. Mark Lee was presented with the prestigious Matt Barry Award by the Drivers Education Association of the State of MN.

The TRF Education Foundation awarded $2400 to FMS to purchase 2 audio enhancement units for 8th grade classrooms. Funds were made available through the Randall Noper Charitable Trust.

Glen Kajewski of the TRF Soccer Association addressed the board about bringing a soccer program to the district. The soccer program has been running for 3 years and has approximately 300 member's pre-K through HS. This year they will be starting a Mini Kicks program for 3-4 year olds and have 60 kids signed up. The association has approximately 50 coaches. The organization has purchased nets/goals, practice gear, cones that would be available for district use. TRF is one of the few area schools that does not have a soccer program. Detroit Lakes, Crookston and EGF have all had programs running for several years.

Randy Twistol gave a NWSC update. They have offered the directors position to Lloyd Stoerwell of Grand Rapids.

Barb Kalinoski presented a MECC update. They also heard a presentation of the TRF Soccer Association. The MECC currently has one soccer field but room for 2 more. They were also requesting additional fields.

Barb Kalinoski and Jenni Erikson-Lane gave a curriculum report. They heard presentations on the K-12 science curriculum.

Irv Peterson reported on the School Board/Administrative retreat. The two major agenda items were reviewing the mission and goals of the district. The group updated the goals which will be approved at the next meeting. Irv has received $750,000 in program requests for the 05-06 school year. At this time it is looking as though the senate recommended funding is going to be flat. Funding for schools will stay the same as it has been for the past several years with no increases proposed for next year. A staff summary is being prepared of the retreat. The district is really at a stand still as far as making any recommendations, until we know for sure were the funding will end up. The district needs to remain cautious and conservative at this point.

A Q-Comp mini conference will be held on April 29th in Mpls. and May 10th in Bemidji. Several district teachers and board members will attend. There will be a district Tech. Meeting on April 14th at the DSC.

A motion was made by R. Twistol and seconded by M. Spears to approve the Minutes of the March 28th regular Board meeting as presented. Motion carried unanimously.

HOUSING STUDY

Wanted:

More housing in Thief River Falls

A recent housing study found that 20 to 25 new homes will be constructed each year, on average, from 2003 to 2009 in Thief River Falls. The majority of that growth will be on the southside and eastside of the city. On the city's southside, this home is being constructed along Somerset Drive.

In the next four years, more housing will be needed in the Thief River Falls area, according to a recent study.

"Generally speaking, this housing study calls for, says there's a need for, new housing," said Community Development Director Mike Moore.

The study projects the need for 20 to 25 new homes per year in Thief River Falls, Moore said.

"It's prudent for us to find new development areas for lots," added Moore. Saying that the city is attempting to find lots, he noted that there are currently areas in development, including 12 lots in Meadowlark Estates, six lots in Gausen Addition, eight lots in Allwood Acres Addition and some additional lots in the Oakland Park area.

Between 25 and 50 additional rental units, or 5 to 10 per year, will be needed, the study indicated. The study found the city did not need additional student housing.

The study also encouraged the city to "improve the quality of mobile homes," which account for more than 11 percent of the city's current housing stock. The study noted that was a "relatively large" amount.

Demand will require approximately 113 senior housing units. Currently, the city has that number of senior housing units.

Covering the years 2003 to 2009, the study covers 14 cities, 49 townships and an unorganized territory in Pennington, Marshall, Red Lake and Kittson counties. Besides Thief River Falls, Moore said, the study includes Warren, Red Lake Falls, Newfolden, Greenbush, Plummer and Goodridge.

Community Partners Inc. of Lake Elmo conducted the $15,000 study, which was conducted in late 2004 and completed this past January. The city of Thief River Falls, the Minnesota Housing Partnership and the Northwest Minnesota Foundation each contributed $5,000 for the study.

That study anticipated that growth will also occur in North, Rocksbury and Smiley townships, which are the townships closest to Becoming an Author

What it takes to become authors

by April Scheinoha
Reporter

Challenger Elementary School (CES) fourth graders will soon be able to add "author" to their resumés. The students are writing books on snowmobiles and all-terrain vehicles (ATVs).

"It's going to be fun," said fourth grader Tyler Efteland.

Students have been working on the books for the past two weeks and were expected to finish the books last week. It is anticipated that readers will be looking at the students' words in December.

"It's really neat to see what they put together," said Jamie Bakken, CES media specialist about the books entitled "Fun with ATVs," "Fun with Snowmobiles," "ATV Safety," "Snowmobile Safety" and "Fun with ATVs and Snowmobiles."

The students are writing the books at first and second grade reading levels. "First and second graders are always looking for snowmobile books and ATV books," said Bakken, who noted the difficulty in finding snowmobile and ATV books for those students.

"It's a good idea," said fourth grader Hans Harder.

Rick Yanke

Former LHS coach to appear in movie

by Scott DCamp
Reporter

Former Thief River Falls wrestling coach and current University of Wisconsin-Baraboo/Sauk County athletic director Rick Yanke probably won't win an Oscar for his performance in the upcoming wrestling movie titled "7 Minutes" – but that won't stop him from giving back to his favorite sport.

Yanke, the Prowler's head coach from 1998-2002, will take on a small speaking roll, as a head referee during portions filmed in the UW-Baraboo gymnasium.

"I hope this movie will bring a little recognition and a positive spin to a sport that's so hard for people to do because they are afraid to try it," Yanke said.

The movie "7 Minutes" was written and is being produced by former Northern Illinois University wrestler James Olivia. It focuses on a fictitious Division 1 collegiate wrestling team called Owens State and the struggles of Anson, the movie's main character, who has one final season to live up to his college wrestling potential.

Yanke first heard about the upcoming movie at a wrestling Web site. Auditions for the film were scheduled to be held in Chicago, which Yanke says is about three hours from the Baraboo campus. Yanke sent an e-mail to the film's Web site, www.7minutemovie.com, requesting audition information for some of UW Baraboo's theater majors.

Olivia replied that he was looking for places to film and asked whether the UW-Baraboo gym would be available.

"We have some athletes and a decent theater program on our campus," Yanke said. "He spun it around and instead brought the film to our campus."

Yanke was asked to audition for the film after the two met face to face for Olivia to check out the UW-Baraboo gymnasium. The question may have taken Yanke by surprise, but Olivia's goal was to use as many wrestlers as possible to fill the acting roles.

Yanke said the film will probably not net any acting awards, but the realism of the wrestling may make up for the absence of proven actors.

"It's one of his (Olivia's) goals to make a realistic wrestling movie. In

Blue Cross fraud investigations save millions

Blue Cross announced last week that through aggressive health care fraud investigations and coordination among other states' Blue Cross plans, the Blue Cross Special Investigations Unit (SIU) had stopped payment on more than $3 million of suspect claims last year, reducing the impact of fraud on premiums in Minnesota.

By comparison, Blue Cross stopped $8.7 million in claims in 2003, most of which was due to the rent-a-patient scams now being investigated and prosecuted in Southern California.

"We saved millions of dollars of our members' premium dollars, because we were able to identify the scam early and stop payment on fraudulent claims," said Dave Bohnenstingel, SIU manager. "In fact, Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Minnesota was integral in bringing the scam to light and the perpetrators to justice," he added.

Bohnenstingel credited the drop in suspect claims in 2004 to the fact that the rent-a-patient scam is now essentially defunct. In the spring of 2004, the FBI raided several suspected clinics as part of its investigation of 150 clinics, eventually bringing federal charges against several of the individuals involved.

In this scam, marketers recruited low income or minority patients, paying them several hundred dollars and often transporting them to clinics solely for unnecessary diagnostic tests or surgery. The clinics then billed the insurance company an inflated amount for the procedures. The investigations continue, but the fraudulent activity seems to have subsided.

"Our experience has been that the overwhelming majority of providers and consumers act ethically and responsibly in submitting their health care bills; however, there are exceptions who are trying to make money illegally at the expense of payers," Bohnenstingel said. "Unfortunately, those fraud losses must be borne by our customers in the form of higher premiums."

Using sophisticated computer software, communication with Blues' plans throughout the country, analysis of large claims, and tips to their fraud hotline, Blue Cross' SIU looks for irregularities or other "red flags" in claims submitted by providers or members.

The National Blue Cross and Blue Shield Association estimates that between 3 and 5 percent of the dollars spent on health care in the United States in a year is lost to fraud.

If a consumer or employer suspects fraud, they can call the Fraud Hotline at 651-662-8368 or 1-800-382-2000, ext. 28363.

CORRECTION

In the May 4 edition of The Times, it was incorrectly noted that Nicole Ann Kolberg, 19, and Mary Kay Kolberg, 41, both of Thief River Falls, were charged with possession of stolen property. The report filed at the police department had the incorrect last names. The report should have listed the women's last names as Colbert.

Drivers urged to use care in work zones Memorial Day weekend

As the Memorial Day weekend approaches, the Minnesota Department of Transportation (Mn/DOT) urges motorists to "Pay Attention or Pay the Price" while driving through highway work zones.

Mn/DOT begins its renewed work zone safety awareness campaign just before the start of the season's first major holiday weekend.

While virtually all of the department's 200 plus projects will be shut down during the long weekend, motorists may encounter detours and traffic restrictions as well as rough road surfaces and narrowed traffic lanes.

The four-month campaign will focus on building public awareness of the dangers of unsafe driving in work zones. The campaign will use radio ads, billboards, signs posted on gas pumps and in restaurants and movie theater ads asking drivers to share the responsibility for safe work zones with highway workers throughout the state.

The campaign's slogan, "Work Zones: Pay Attention or Pay the Price," stresses the need for motorists to watch out for highway workers and their own self-interest. Motorists traveling in work zones suffer by far the greatest from the costs of crashes, injuries and deaths. The price can also include doubling of the fine for exceeding the posted speed limit.

"Our highway workers are highly trained, visible and professional," said Lt. Gov. Carol Molnau, Minnesota's commissioner of transportation. "However, their safety and the effectiveness of the work they do depends heavily on drivers' paying full attention, observing speed limits and following directions from signs and flaggers."

Memorial Day weekend travelers will encounter the following road restrictions:

Northern Minnesota

- Expansion of Highway 371 to four lanes between Little Falls and Morrison County Road 48, north of Camp Ripley is under way. Although the work is off the existing roadway, motorists should watch for trucks hauling materials on Highway 371 and be alert for slow traffic in the area.
- A part of Highway 64 is closed from Hubbard County Road 33 to Highway 34 in Akeley. Traffic heading north will be diverted west onto Hubbard County Road 33 to County Road 13, north to Highway 34 at Nevis, then west to Akeley.
- Motorists may experience traffic delays on Highways 10 and 32 near Hawley due to construction of an interchange. Traffic on Highway 10 will be restricted to a single lane in each direction. Highway 32 traffic will be routed onto Clay County Roads 26, 33, 31 and 10.
- Motorists traveling on Highway 27 in Alexandria will be detoured onto McKay Avenue and Highway 29 because of reconstruction of Third Avenue.
- Traffic on westbound I-94 will be restricted to one lane and a 55-mile-per-hour speed limit between the Grant County line to southeast of the junction with Highway 79 near Evansville.

Twin Cities Metropolitan Area

- Eastbound traffic on I-94 from the Twin Cities metro area will encounter road construction and narrow lanes through two construction zones east of St. Paul.
- Motorists traveling on I-35 near County Road 60 in Lakeville may experience single-lane traffic in each direction in the area. County Road 60 closed on May 11 for approximately one month. There is a posted detour.
- Although there will be no work over the weekend, a one-half mile section of Highway 8 in Chisago City is under construction with single-lane traffic in each direction.
- Replacement of a box culvert beneath I-35W began May 23 between Lexington Avenue and 95th Avenue in Blaine. Traffic will be restricted to a single lane on both sides of the interstate after morning rush hour on Monday as crews prepare to move traffic onto two lanes in each direction on the northbound side of the road. Once the culvert is installed beneath the southbound lanes of I-35W, traffic will switch to two lanes of traffic on the southbound side of the freeway in early June. Weather permitting, the project will be completed by the end of June.

Southern Minnesota

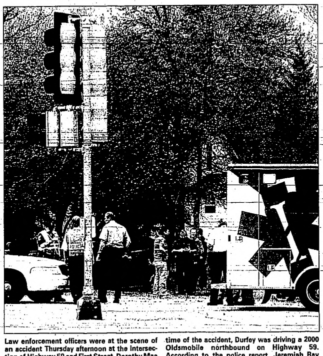
- Highway 14 road improvement projects are underway in New Ulm. Traffic is detoured to county roads. The four-lane expansion of Highway 14 near Janesville does not affect Highway 14 traffic, but several local roads are detoured.
- Highway 12 east of Willmar between County Road 9 to the Kandiyohi County line east of Atwater is under construction; traffic is detoured to county roads. The detour route adds three miles. In Atwater, motorists will be directed through the work zone areas by flaggers and a pilot car.
- Highway 19 is affected by construction in Redwood and Renville counties. The highway is detoured at the junction of Highways 67 and 19 in Redwood Falls via county roads. The detour route adds nine miles.
- Highway 19 has minor delays between Morton and Fairfax.
- Highway 23 construction continues on Highway 23 between its junction with Highway 71 north of Willmar to County Road 31 north of New London in the cities of Spicer and New London.
- Highway 22 in Glencoe. Travelers will encounter a detour in the city of Glencoe because Highway 22 through the city is under construction. Detour via Highway 212 and city streets.
- Starting May 23, traffic will be limited to one lane on eastbound I-90 beginning about seven miles west of the bridge over the Mississippi River near La Crescent for bridge repairs at Nodine Hill until July 7. Speed will be limited to 55 miles per hour.

Molnau said motorists should avoid distractions, such as using cell phones; observe speed limits; and allow a safe distance between their vehicles.

To check current road and weather conditions, go to www.511mn.org on the Web or call 1-511.



Law enforcement officers were at the scene of an accident Thursday afternoon at the intersection of Highway 59 and First Street. Dorothy Mae Durfey of Middle River was injured in the accident. She was treated and released from Northwest Medical Center (NWMC), according to NWMC Nursing Director Janell Hudson. At the time of the accident, Durfey was driving a 2000 Oldsmobile northbound on Highway 59. According to the police report, Jeremiah Ray Lund of Bagley turned a 1980 Toyota pickup truck left into Durfey's path. Both vehicles were totalled. Lund was cited for failure to yield.

Public reminded about placement of memorial markers

With Memorial Day quickly approaching, the Minnesota Department of Transportation (Mn/DOT) reminds the public of guidelines pertaining to the placement of memorial markers in state highway rights-of-way. Memorial markers are items and displays of various sizes and construction that are placed at or near the site of a fatal crash.

Mn/DOT understands that fatal crashes are traumatic events and is concerned that memorials placed along the roadside do not become a distraction for motorists that could lead to another crash.

- No memorials are permitted on interstate highways or other freeways.
- Memorials will be temporarily allowed on other state highways for a period of no more than six months provided that they meet safety criteria within an established safety zone alongside the roadway, and when located outside the safety zone, they must not create a hazard that could be hit by either on- or off-road vehicles. This means the memorial cannot be a hazard in the ditch to snowmobiles or all-terrain vehicles, or vehicles that lose control and go into the ditch.
- The memorial does not negatively affect the flow of traffic; and
- The memorial does not interfere with routine maintenance, such as mowing.

ACS applauds Pawlenty on health impact fee

American Cancer Society has commended Gov. Tim Pawlenty for moving to create a dedicated Health Impact Fee. According to the governor's proposal, this fee will raise $380 million over the next two years by increasing the existing tobacco distributor fee by 75 cents a pack. The fee will fund healthcare programs and free up additional general fund dollars to dramatically increase funding for K-12 education.

"We see this proposal as a win-win for Minnesotans," said Matt Flory, Minnesota government relations liaison with the American Cancer Society. "Governor Pawlenty's proposal to raise the tobacco distributor's fee is one of the best tools we have to reduce youth smoking and address the long term healthcare costs of tobacco in our state. In addition, his proposal resolves the budget impasse over funding and preserves healthcare programs for the uninsured."

The American Cancer Society urges the Minnesota Legislature to act without delay and fully support the governor's leadership in supporting his proposal for a dedicated Health Impact Fee.

Senior Graduation Party set for Friday and Saturday

The Planning Committee for the Senior Graduation Party has been at work putting together the activities for a fun-packed evening after graduation. All seniors taking part in graduation Friday, May 27 are invited to the Thief River Falls Elks Club from 11 p.m. Friday to 4 a.m. Saturday. At rehearsal Friday afternoon, graduates will receive tickets to get into the event.

At the party, attendees check in with the "gatekeeper" at the top of the stairs of the Elks Club by 1:30 a.m. Saturday. Attendees' names are then placed in the drawing box, and they will be eligible to win numerous prizes and cash given away throughout the night. When attendees check in, they will receive a "bag of stuff," including Monopoly money for their use that evening. They will then have the opportunity to choose from several options, including bingo, card games, free soda and pizza, a disc jockey, karaoke and an auction.

At 2:30 a.m., an auction will be held for lots of items teens enjoy, such as electronics, cosmetics, t-shirts and rollerblades. Bidding and buying are done with the Monopoly money attendees have been using throughout the evening. At 4 a.m., a $400 cash drawing will be held.

This is a chemical-free event – no alcohol, tobacco or drugs. Once an attendee is in the building, he or she must stay – there is no reentry if a person leaves. Only seniors taking part in the ceremony are invited; no guests are allowed. Attendees must be present to win any of the drawings and prizes.

The Elks Club has hosted this event for 20 years. The St. Hilaire Lions Club has raised hundreds of dollars to support this event each year. Local businesses, stores, professional services and individuals have donated money and prizes. The whole evening is free to attendees.

The battle against rising costs

by Betsy Jensen
FBM instructor, East Grand Forks

According to data compiled from farmers by Minnesota Farm Business Management (FBM) instructors, it's costing more and more to raise an acre of wheat, corn and soybeans every year. From 2000 to 2004, the cost of raising an acre of corn in Minnesota has gone up 18 percent, an acre of soybeans is costing 8 percent more, and wheat costs are up 16 percent. The trend is firmly in place, and since commodity prices are not following the same trend, it is becoming more difficult to make money.

So if costs are going up but commodity prices are stable, how are farmers going to make money in the future? It's true that yields in the U.S. are generally going up, especially in corn, but will that be enough to make up for rising costs? The easiest solution might be to try and squeeze a few extra pennies out of your marketing plan. If you can take home an extra 10 or even 20 cents a bushel, it might be enough to offset those rising expenses.

The easiest way to make a few extra bushels is to develop a marketing plan and, more importantly, follow it. There is a lot to be said for following your gut instinct, and most often, the first marketing plan you develop is a good plan based on your gut instincts. It's easier to think rationally and clearly ahead of any potential price rally, and that is the point of the marketing plan.

Another tip for becoming a better marketer is to keep your sights on the big picture and not the small mistakes you've made. Unless your marketing plan accurately predicts the market high, your marketing plan will contain mistakes. You will regret the first few sales, but keep your sights focused on the whole crop. You may be losing money on half of the crop, but you're also making money on the other half. In a perfect world, prices would just continue to go higher, but we know that doesn't happen.

There are not many methods available for cutting costs, so take a few minutes and try to increase your revenue. If you need help creating your marketing plan, contact a FBM instructor at 1-800-959-6282.

Thank You
I would like to thank everyone who helped me celebrate my 80th birthday. Thanks for all the cards and gifts.

The Thief River Falls Public Library invites you to browse through its new selection of children's books including the following:

A pioneer father transports his beloved fruit trees and his family to Oregon in the mid-nineteenth century. Based loosely on the life of Henderson Luelling.

Fleischman, Paul. "Sidewalk Circus." A young girl watches as the activities across the street from her bus stop become a circus.

Scieszka, Jon. "Science Verse." When the teacher tells his class that they can hear the poetry of science in everything, a student is struck with a curse and begins hearing nothing but science verses that sound very much like some well-known poems.

PARENTING TIPS

Avoiding Temper Tantrums

Sometimes parents try to avoid tantrums by giving the child what he or she wants. That may work in the short run; however, it is an unhealthy long-term solution. When you try to keep your children happy, you deny them the opportunity to learn to calm themselves.

One helpful way to reduce intensity or frequency of tantrums is to reduce stress. You can reduce stress by allowing enough time for activities and regular exercise.

Allow enough time: when you continually push yourself and your child, the background stress level increases. Then when something happens, both you and your child have less reserve to deal with the situation.

Physical exercise: The most effective exercise for children is when they use big, continuous movements like running or climbing. Now that we can get outside more, exercise should be part of your child's daily routine.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

When your day gets hectic, and you do not allow as much time as you should, try to talk with your child about what is happening and do give them as much time as you can to make transitions.

Believe

The sharp-razor-jet-black tone the night sky possesses could cut the wrists of stellar-spheres proving that blood could spray from the heavens. The stars seductively shimmer against their piceous backdrop, looking like fish gasping for air and flopping to their death in an oil spill. Stars this bright could make the most precious of diamonds jealous. Aurora Borealis occurs above like one big strobe light sweeping waves of color across the sky. Mixed into this eclectic sort of mess is one big, silver light, glowing green.

Not many people believe in them, but everyone has seen them. More importantly, they have seen us. They know where we live, what we look like, when we sleep, and what we had for breakfast. They want our lives. And no, it's not the government.

UFOs.

Aliens.

Their army will descend with skewers of surgical steel and they will want to kill us all. Most say that it will never happen, but those of us who can see outside of our own insignificant little lives will be prepared. The human race will be entirely wiped out. The trees, animals, diseases, plants, water, and every other thing this planet holds near and dear.

The Bengal tiger.

The balsam fir.

The water buffalo.

The African tree frog.

All gone.

It would be arrogant to assume that we are the only living things in our entire galaxy, or even beyond it.

The strange little creatures have taken people up into space.

Hostages.

They run tests, probing and prodding their way around the bodies to find out what they need to know. Just to understand us. Humans did the same thing to them when they crashed in New Mexico. Killed them and ripped them apart. That's why they're mad.

Movies and TV shows have tried to explain what the government has concealed. We all blame global warming and the greenhouse effect on smog and other chemicals, but it's them. They are wearing us down. Slowly. They have left us crop circles as warning signs. As maps.

E.T.
Alien vs. Predator.
The X-Files.
Signs.

People watch it, but refuse to believe it. They're too good to try and understand what it's all about. It's assumed that if you don't talk at all, no one will think that you're crazy. Where is your imagination, people?

After all, they're coming for you.

...Eleven Maxims Not Taught in School

Since this is graduation time, it is a good time to read the following list. In case you've seen it before, and heard it was from a high school commencement address by Bill Gates, that is not true. It is an excerpt from a book called "Dumbing Down our Kids: Why American Children Feel Good About Themselves but Can't Read, Write or Add," by Charles J. Sykes. Sykes is a research fellow at the Hoover Institution and a senior fellow at the Wisconsin Policy Research Institute. He is the author of several books, writes a syndicated newspaper column, and is the host of weekly radio programs out of WTMJ in Milwaukee, Wis.

Rule 1: Life is not fair. Get used to it. The average teenager uses the phrase, "It's not fair" eight and six-times a day. You got it from your parents, who said it so often you decided they must be the most idealistic generation ever. When they started hearing it from their own kids, they realized Rule Number 1.

Rule 2: The real world won't care as much about your self-esteem as much as your school does. It'll expect you to accomplish something before you feel good about yourself. This may come as a shock. Usually, when inflated self-esteem meets reality, kids complain that it's not fair. (See Rule Number 1.)

Rule 3: Sorry, you won't make $40,000 a year right out of high school (or college). And you won't be a vice president or have a car phone either. You may even have to wear a uniform that doesn't have a Gap label.

Rule 4: If you think your teacher is tough, wait until you get a boss. He doesn't have tenure, so he tends to be a bit edgier. When you screw up, he's not going to ask you how you feel about it.

Rule 5: Flipping burgers is not beneath your dignity. Your grandparents had a different word for burger flipping. They called it "opportunity." They weren't embarrassed making minimum wage either. They would have been embarrassed to sit around talking about Kurt Cobain all weekend.

Rule 6: It's not your parents' fault. If you screw up, you are responsible. This is the flip side of "It's my life" and "You're not the boss of me" and other eloquent proclamations of your generation. When you turn 18, it's on your dime. Don't whine about it or you'll sound like a baby boomer.

Rule 7: Before you were born, your parents weren't as boring as they are now. They got that way paying your bills, cleaning up your room and listening to you tell them how idealistic you are. And by the way, before you save the rain forest from the blood sucking parasites of your parents' generation, try delousing the closet in your bedroom.

Rule 8: Your school may have done away with winners and losers. Life hasn't. In some schools, they'll give you as many times as you want to get the right answer. Failing grades have been abolished and class valedictorians scrapped, lest anyone's feelings be hurt. Effort is as important as results. This, of course, bears not the slightest resemblance to anything in real life. (See Rule 1, Rule 2 and Rule 4.)

Rule 9: Life is not divided into semesters, and you don't get summers off. Not even Easter break. They expect you to show up every day. For eight hours. And you don't get a new life every 10 weeks. It just goes on and on. While we're at it, very few jobs are interested in fostering your self-expression or helping you find yourself. Fewer still lead to self-realization. (See Rules 1 and 2.)

Rule 10: Television is not real life. Your life is not a sitcom. your problems will not all be solved in 30 minutes, minus time for commercials. In real life, people actually have to leave the coffee shop to go to jobs. Your friends will not be as perky or pliable as Jennifer Aniston.

Rule 11: Be nice to nerds. You may end up working for them. We all could.

What it's worth to have a job you like

While visiting with a retired man in his 80s the other day, I groaned a bit when I said that I'd better get back to work.

He shook his finger at me gently and said, "Just be thankful you have work."

I am starting to understand that when old-timers tell me to be glad I have work, they aren't saying I should be glad to have a job to pay the bills. No, they are suggesting I be thankful I have something productive to do with my days. There is a difference.

Twenty-year-olds take jobs in order to get money to pay for clothing, trinkets, gadgets and tickets to concerts, which they hope will bring them popularity, happiness and a mate. The notion of work having value beyond the money it earns doesn't occur to them.

Twenty-somethings talk about work in "have to" language, such as "I can't go to the concert, I have to work," or "I can't believe I don't have to work tomorrow!"

However, the older people get, the more they see that one's work is really the most important thing in life - not work in the sense of earning a living, but work as an expression of one's self.

It is fun to talk to people who love their work, even work that isn't particularly glamorous. A janitor who loves his job can give a fascinating lecture on boilers. A septic system installer can deliver an interesting talk on soil types.

I have enjoyed listening to a concrete man talk about working with different grades of concrete, a gravel man talk about how gravel packs, a well-driller talk about finding water, a carpenter talk about dealing with wood shrinkage. Anybody with a trade can be interesting if they care enough to do it well.

Old-timers around here had it tough in many ways, struggling to scratch out a living on the farm. But they did have one thing most people today do not: They were their own boss, and they knew only they were responsible for putting food on the table.

To survive, they had to develop many talents, from cooking and canning to working with farm animals to fixing machinery to fixing their house to growing crops. Each one of those talents made them more confident, self-sufficient people.

Nowadays, we are so specialized that most people feel as if they are a mere cog in a huge wheel. At your job, you might help produce a widget that gets shipped to Mexico to become part of another widget which gets sold to somebody you'll never meet.

We're too busy making widgets to cook, so we call the Schwan man. We're too ignorant to fix our car, so we take it to the dealership. We don't have time to clean, so we have somebody come in once a week.

Work takes more of our time, but it seems to have less meaning. People can't wait to be done with it. They live for the weekends. They yearn for retirement.

Sadly, most people today will never know what the 80-year-old farmers mean when they say, "be thankful that you have work."

Today a cousin called. We're both in the stage of life where we're too busy to speak more than once per year, at which time we talk about how we should get together more often, even though we know we probably won't.

I asked the usual polite question, "So, how are things with you?"

He shot back: "I've made it my goal not to wish my life away."

I laughed, but it didn't take long to catch his drift. He's not going to yearn for retirement. He's not going to wait to enjoy what he does. He's not going to put up with misery now in hopes of eventual contentment when he's old and tired.

As a result, it's pretty likely that my cousin won't hit 80 years of age without knowing how it feels to enjoy his work enough to miss it, just like the retired farmer who would like nothing more than to spend his last living hour on the seat of a tractor.

Old Mill campgrounds reopen Friday

Grab a tent and sleeping bag or pack the RV and head for Old Mill State Park this summer. The campgrounds at Old Mill will reopen for business Friday, May 27.

According to Old Mill State Park Manager Ryan Sansness, trails, campgrounds and facilities, like the swimming pool, are in good shape and ready for park visitors.

"Although the park remained open year-round, some park services were reduced last fall and spring in order to serve the majority of park users who visit the park in the summer season," said Sansness. "We are happy to announce the reopening of our campground on Memorial weekend and look forward to greeting old friends and welcoming new visitors to the park."

The park offers visitors 26 campsites, including 10 sites with electricity. Handicap accessible facilities include showers and modern restrooms, a picnic area and shelter. In addition to group camp, hiking trails and the historic site, one of the most popular features of the park is the swimming pool.

On June 5, most Minnesota State Parks are hosting their annual open house, when entrance to the parks are free and no vehicle permits are required.

"On July 31, the park is hosting a music festival and country jam session, where visitors are invited to enjoy local music and singalongs," said Sansness. "Guests can share their musical talent and invite friends or relatives to join in the fun."

The event is sponsored by the Newfolden Lions Club and all musicians' vehicles will be given free entrance to the park that day. Interested musicians are encouraged to call the park for more information. Bars, cookies and refreshments will be served, and visitors are encouraged to bring a treat to share. The Friends of Old Mill State Park will provide ice cream cones in celebration of the old creamery picnics once held at the park.

On Sunday, Aug. 28, the park will host its annual Grinding Day celebration when Marshall County Historical Society volunteers will fire up the engine to turn the granite millstones of the Old Larson Mill. They will demonstrate how wheat is ground into flour. Activities include a horse-drawn wagon ride down to the mill area, a tour inside the settler's cabin to see what life was like in the late 1800s and guided hikes to the original 120-year-old Scotch pine stand that was planted by Lars Larson Sr. sometime between 1882 and 1884.

The public is welcome to attend all of these events and visit the park to enjoy all it has to offer. For more information, call Old Mill at (218) 437-8174.

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q: Do any of the online SSA calculators estimate how much of a benefit I could receive as a spouse on my husband's record?

A: No. The Social Security online benefit estimate calculators at http://www.socialsecurity.gov/planners/calculators.htm provide estimates based only on your own work record using information you provide at the time. Your actual SSA earnings record is not accessed for the estimate program. For an estimate of benefits you might receive on someone else's record, such as your spouse, call the SSA toll-free number 1-800-772-1213. SSA toll-free service for those deaf or hard of hearing is also available at TTY number, 1-800-325-0778. Have available information such as name, birth date, and Social Security number for yourself and the other person. For privacy concerns, it is easier if the other person makes the call with you.

Q: When I called my local office the SSA representative asked several personal questions before helping me. Why?

A: To protect you is the short answer. Keep in mind that many people call Social Security every day, either to the national toll-free number at 800-772-1213 or their local office. Asking you information that can be confirmed from agency records is one way of knowing that it is really you calling. When receiving a phone call, you should also be very wary of giving out personal information.

Summer Job Reminder: Now is the time to be sure you have your Social Security Number (SSN) card for summer employment. Find form SS-5, the Social Security Number Application, at http://www.socialsecurity.gov/online/ss-5.html with instructions on obtaining the form, completion, and mailing.

You will need to show current ID, preferably with a photo, to replace your card. See form SS-5 for specific instructions on what is considered acceptable ID but, in general, your ID must include several items of information such as your name, birthdate or age, and a parent's name.

Photocopies are not acceptable. You can also obtain the form at any SSA office. All SSN cards are issued centrally and will arrive about 2 weeks after your application is completed. Protect your identity from theft. Do not carry your SSN after showing it to your employer. Leave it safe at home.

NCTC nursing students help Bemidji

Northland Community and Technical College (NCTC) Associate-Degree Nursing Instructor Diane Scott recently presented a check for $1,172 to J. W. Smith Elementary School in Bemidji on behalf of NCTC students.

Sue Nokleby, Bemidji School District nurse, accepted the check, along with Jenny Annette and Sandy Pogue, Parent-Teacher Organization co-presidents, and fifth grade students Sabrina and Karin. The funds will be used to purchase an automated external defibrillator (AED) for the school. This machine is used to provide a shock to the heart when someone is experiencing a lethal heart dysrhythmia.

This donation was part of an NCTC academic service-learning project that involved nursing students contacting local businesses and individuals to raise funds to purchase the AED and educating the elementary students about the AED and how to maintain a healthy heart.

Scott said, "Academic service-learning is a method where students learn and grow through thoughtfully organized service experiences that meet community needs and enhance what is taught at NCTC by extending student learning beyond the classroom."

The nursing students involved in the program were Jeff Roach, Nathan Scottum, Jill Batchelder, Casey Curb, Deb Collins, Kim Bakken, Kerry Frauenholtz, Bryan Murphy, Jandi Theis, Robin Roehrich, Karen Black, Tricia Hove, Andrea Culbert, Mary Dreher, Laura Marier, Lori Nelson, Laura Zika and Kristin Zitzow.

DNR announces 2005 contented cat poster winners

Shania Sele of Thief River Falls received first place among 8- to 9-year-olds in the 2005 Minnesota Cats Indoors Poster Contest.

First through fourth place winners were selected in three age groups (ages 6-7, 8-9, 10-12). There were a total of 48 regional winners statewide, 12 from each of the four regions. This year, 28 honorable mentions were designated as well. There were more than 500 entries statewide.

Northwestern Minnesota judges were George-Ann Maxson of the Mississippi Headwaters Audubon, and Katie Haws and Pam Perry, both Department of Natural Resources (DNR) nongame wildlife specialists.

One state winner and one runner-up in each age bracket were chosen from the 48 regional winning entries.

Each regional winner received a field guide or bird-related book and an Audubon plush bird that sings a realistic song (recorded by the Cornell Lab of Ornithology).

Some posters were sent to the American Bird Conservancy's national poster competition to be held in Washington, D.C., during International Migratory Bird Week in mid-May. Other regional entries will be on display at the Beltrami Humane Society in Bemidji, which also endorses the idea of keeping cats indoors.

Winning posters will be used to publicize the educational effort to encourage people to keep their cat indoors for the safety of cats, birds and wildlife.

Cats allowed to roam outdoors may be killed or maimed by dogs, cars, coyotes or other animals; pick up deer ticks and fleas that may carry diseases; ingest toxic pesticides, poisons and antifreeze; get caught in traps; or become a meal for a hungry eagle or great horned owl.

Resident and returning migratory birds are nesting. Not only are these birds subject to being caught, injured or killed by cats, but their eggs and hatchlings are also often crushed or mauled. Small mammals and reptiles are vulnerable to being preyed upon by cats, too.

Funding for the third annual Minnesota Cats Indoors contest was provided by the Minnesota Ornithologists Union and the Minnesota DNR Nongame Wildlife Program.

Petersons receive special recognition

Neil and Nicole Peterson of St. Hilaire recently received special recognition for their commitment to leadership and their community during the Emerging Leadership Program recognition banquet. They, along with individuals from 18 other counties in northwestern and west-central Minnesota, were recognized for their involvement.

The recognition banquet was the finale of the leadership program for the Class of 2005, which attended four training sessions focused on several of the University of Minnesota Extension Service's U-Lead program components. Those components included developing exceptional personal leadership, cultivating civic leadership, enhancing ethical leadership, and stimulating visionary leadership.

The banquet held at the U of M – Crookston carried on that tradition, started by the Red River Valley Winter Shows in 1961, of recognizing rural leaders for contributions to their communities. It provided an opportunity for alumni of the program from throughout the region to gather to encourage each other. The banquet was also where the new Agassiz Ambassadors for 2005 were announced.

Recognized this year were Corey and Stacy Petterson of Clearbrook. They will carry the title of Agassiz Ambassadors 2005 for the coming year. They were selected for this honor from among other current participants in the program. The selection was based on nominations from program participants and interviews with program alumni. The Pettersons will put their leadership skills to work in public relations, recognition and fund development. They will work with program coordinators to develop and deliver the educational program in 2006.

More housing in Thief River Falls

Thief River Falls.

"It does say the small communities, except for Warren and Red Lake Falls, will probably be the status quo," said Moore, who noted it is expected that Red Lake Falls and Warren will encounter moderate growth.

Thief River Falls' growth will be "fairly strong," Moore said. He added that it will continue to be a hub of northwest Minnesota with the number of jobs and services offered in the city growing all the time. The majority of that growth, Moore said, will be on the southside and eastside of the city.

The housing study was needed, according to Moore. Since he started working as the city's community development director, he said that the main topic has been housing.

The housing study should aid Planning Commission members and council members who are currently in the process of contemplating a new Comprehensive Plan, Moore noted. That plan helps city leaders plan for the future.

In the future, the city may provide short-term tax abatements to help local contractors offset the cost of infrastructure and aid development, Moore said.

Currently, Moore added, the city has a Slow Second Mortgage Program that provides a loan of up to $12,500 if someone is building a home in an older area of the city. If someone is building a home in a newer development in the city, he or she may be eligible to receive a $10,000 loan through that program. Those loans offer 0 percent interest payable over 10 years.

Sons of Norway, Snorre Lodge 1-070, presented Gene Beito, Thief River Falls, with a certificate recognizing his 30 years of participation in the organization. Elody Olson, president of the lodge, presented the certificate to Beito during the Syttende Mai celebration at Northern State Bank.

Former LHS coach to appear in movie

fact, most of the main characters will be played by people with a wrestling background," Yanke said. "Most of them are college wrestlers who came in to audition."

The wrestling sequences in the movie will be more believable than seen in previous wrestling movies such as "Vision Quest," a 1980s film that made a lateral drop (high risk-high reward takedown that is often discouraged) seem like the preferred offensive technique in all of wrestling. According to Yanke, "7 Minutes" will showcase more traditional wrestling takedowns, like single leg and double leg attacks and the movie will include "scramble situations," where both wrestlers struggle to gain control.

The film is set in modern times and steers away from one of wrestling's most controversial topics, weight cutting, but takes on issue that has hurt the sport, Title IX.

Olivia and Yanke scheduled filming for June 25 and 26 weekend in the UW-Baraboo gymnasium. The gym will serve as the location of the conference tournament for Owens State.

Auditions for the main roles were held in Chicago earlier this month, but several extras will be needed for some of the competition scenes, including the two days of shooting at UW-Baraboo. Yanke said between 300 and 400 people of all ages will be needed for filming the tournament scenes.

"We're hoping to fill one side of the gym with extras playing the role of fans, wrestlers and coaches," Yanke said.

Seeking 300-400 extras with wrestling knowledge, Yanke put out a casting call of his own on The Guillotine wrestling Web site. The response has been favorable according to Yanke, who said several wrestlers who competed in Section 8AA (northern Minnesota) have already agreed to appear as extras in the film, including former Thief River Falls wrestler and state champion Jeremy Anderson.

Ness receives The Sioux Award

William Ness will be honored for his many years of service during The Sioux Award banquet Thursday at the Alerus Center Ballroom in Grand Forks, N.D. The Sioux Award is the University of North Dakota (UND) Alumni Association's most prestigious award. Others who will receive the award Thursday include Dr. Donald Meredith, Raymond Kobe and Dr. Paul Gislason.

Ness was born May 22, 1938, and raised on a cattle farm near Gully. He graduated from Gonvick High School in 1956. Ness earned a bachelor's degree in electrical engineering from UND in 1960. He attended and completed the University of Minnesota Executive Program in 1971-72.

In 1960, Ness started his career as an electrical engineer at Remington Rand Univac in St. Paul. By 1961, he was chief engineer at Dow Key Company in Thief River Falls. In 1967, he accepted the director of engineering position as well as a corporate director position at Arctic Enterprises Inc.

In 1982, Ness provided the leadership to organize a new company, Arctco Inc., today known as Arctic Cat Inc. He became chairman and chief executive officer in 1983. Ness retired in 2003 but continues as vice chairman and director.

William Ness

Ness currently is a founding partner and director of IBI in Bemidji and a partner in River Ridge Properties, a real estate development company in Hudson, Wis. He also manages grain farms in the Thief River Falls area.

Ness has been honored with several awards over the years, including Thief River Falls Outstanding Boss in 1974, Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce President's Award in 1989, and Snowmobile Magazine Award for being one of 25 who made a difference in the industry in 1984. Ness was also inducted into the Snowmobile Hall of Fame in 1996.

Over his career, Ness has served and held various corporate and education directorships.

Ness and his wife, Henrietta (Goulette) '81, reside in Scottsdale, Ariz., in the winter and along St. Croix Lake in Hudson, Wis., during the summer. They have five children and 10 grandchildren.

The Sioux Award dates back to 1949, when it was known as the Service Award. It is given to UND alumni who have distinguished themselves in their chosen fields of endeavor and who are selected by the Citations Committee based on achievement, service and loyalty.

Kovar serves as Boy Scout district executive

Greta Kovar

Greta Kovar served as a Daisy and Brownie, but she wasn't able to continue with Girl Scouts because there weren't any Scout leaders in her small school. As the local Boy Scout district executive, she hopes that doesn't happen here.

The Thief River Falls resident started her job Sept. 10. She serves Kittson, Marshall, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau counties. Her job includes working with volunteers whether it be at the Boy Scout Expo, day camps or other events, and also working on starting new scout units.

"It wouldn't be possible without our volunteer help," Kovar said.

Kovar has a degree in marketing communications/mass communications from Bemidji State University. Working with two nonprofit organizations during her academic career instilled in her a desire to work with a nonprofit organization.

Kovar said, "I feel that scouting gives so many boys a wonderful opportunity, and I'm proud to be able to be a part of that."

Local students graduate from Northwestern College

Two local students have graduated from Northwestern College in St. Paul. Students include Gretchen N. Flaten, daughter of Emory and Jennifer Flaten of Newfolden; and Collin T. Schafer, the son of Tom and Marijo Schafer of Thief River Falls.

ACS encourages women, 40 and over, to get mammorgrams

All women are at risk of being diagnosed with breast cancer, but finding it early can save your life. Evidence continues to show that mammography is still the "gold standard" for breast cancer screening and the American Cancer Society recommends women receive an annual mammogram starting at age 40.

This year in the state of Minnesota more than 620 women are expected to die from breast cancer. However, breast cancer mortality rates are decreasing due to the prevalence of mammography screening and improved treatment options. In addition to the piece of mind annual mammograms can provide, women 40 and older should receive annual mammograms for several important reasons:

- Most women diagnosed with breast cancer have no family history of the disease.
- Early detection of breast cancer often means less surgery.
- As you get older, your risk of breast cancer increases.

Currently, there is no known strategy to eliminate all the risks of breast cancer. However, the American Cancer Society recommends eating a variety of healthful foods and maintaining a healthy weight throughout life. A recent study also shows that by adopting a physically active lifestyle, a woman can reduce her risk of being diagnosed with breast cancer.

Common reasons women do not receive regular mammograms are the financial cost or lack of health insurance to cover the screening. The American Cancer Society is here to help. Simply call 1-800-ACS-2345 for more information on low-cost mammograms available in your area.

For more information anytime, call toll free 1-800-ACS-2345 or visit www.cancer.org.

CES students learn what it takes to be authors

Bakken and the students have received help with their project. Arctic Cat employees Terry Blount and John Tranby helped the students with marketing and served as resources. They also allowed the students to use Arctic Cat's digital photos for free.

"It involves, I think, the children in a subject that is definitely of interest in this area," said Blount, Arctic Cat vice president of human resources. "I think this is a pretty good learning tool."

In addition to benefiting the first and second graders, the project is benefiting the fourth graders. Bakken noted the students are able to see the job responsibilities of authors and publishers. They've also done advertising work for the books and made order forms for the books.

The money raised from the sale of those books will then be given to the Thief River Falls Education Foundation. The foundation will then award grants to the school's library for more books. The fourth graders, who will be fifth graders by the time the grants are awarded, will then select books for Bakken to order.

Each fourth grade class plans to sell 500 copies of their books for a total of 2,500 books. The classes will have their class pictures at the end of the books, which will be published by The Times.

Students will be selling the books to their relatives via letters. They will also be contacting local businesses to sell the books in their stores. Arctic Cat also plans to sell the books in its store. The books, which will be printed in December, can also be ordered by calling Jamie Bakken at (218) 681-2345.

At least one fourth grader thinks the classes will sell a lot of books. Kourtney Amiot said, "I think more people will buy it since it's from kids."

Tournament tune-up is a 7-1 TRF win

It was billed as a 'tournament tune-up' Thursday when Section 8AAA softball rivals Thief River Falls and Detroit Lakes met at the Multi-Events Center. And if that was the case, the Prowlers are ready for post-season as they packed pitching, defense and offense into an impressive 7-1 win over the Lakers.

Megan Berg might not have hit double digit numbers in strike-outs that have been so common in the box scores this spring, but the Lakers put only five runners on base in the quickly-played 63-minute contest. Berg struck out five, did not walk a batter and gave up only four hits - one of them a fourth inning pop-up that fell between a pair of infielders who weren't certain who should catch the ball. An error later that same inning plated the only Detroit Lakes run of the game.

Offensively, it was a 12-hit afternoon for the winners, with Allyson Helling (3/3), Kjelsy Loeffler (2/3), Chasity Johnson (2/3) and Amanda Timm (2/4) all having multiple-hit games.

Top-of-the-line defensive plays were turned in by Amanda Timm, who made a running over-the-shoulder fifth inning catch in center field and by Loeffler, who went to her right to make a diving catch at shortstop in the sixth.

Thief River Falls scored a first inning run when Loeffler beat out a bunt single, reached second on a sacrifice bunt by Brittni Johnson and scored on a two-out single to center by Kindra Trontvet.

Helling opened the second inning with a single up the middle, with Kayla Gallagher and DD Rambeck then turning bunts designed to be sacrifices into bases-loading base hits. Chasity Johnson singled to left for a run; Brittni Johnson drew a walk for an RBI; and an infield error off the bat of Jamie Hoglo plated two runs for a 5-0 cushion.

"We hit the ball well, and they (Lakers) didn't make the plays when we bunted," pointed out Thief River Falls coach Matt Okeson.

Ali Johnson benefited from Thief River Falls' miscommunication for that fourth inning pop-up base hit, advanced to second on an infield ground-out and scored when a two-out ground ball went for an error.

"There were a couple of mistakes that we don't normally make," said Okeson, "but we came back and made some nice plays."

Thief River Falls finished it with two runs in the fifth on a lead-off single by Helling, then two-out base hits by Chasity Johnson and Loeffler, whose single to center drove in both runners.

"It was a good win," acknowledged Okeson. "We normally have some pretty good battles with them. Unfortunately, we haven't always come out on top like this."

Offensive highlights - (DL) Amy Engberg 2/3; (TRF) Allyson Helling 3/3; Kjelsy Loeffler 2/3, 2 RBI; Chasity Johnson 2/3; Amanda Timm 2/4.

A high kick preceded this delivery by Thief River Falls pitcher Megan Berg during the Prowlers' Thursday Section 8AAA high school softball match-up with Detroit Lakes at the Multi-Events Center. Berg, one of the top pitchers in the area, limited the Lakers to four hits in a 7-1 Thief River Falls victory.

Warren-Alvarado-Oslo golfer starts tournament with hole-in-one...

Prowlers are TRF Invitational champs

Tim Stinar of Warren-Alvarado-Oslo started with a bang, but at the end of the day, team and individual honors went to the host Prowlers Friday at the Thief River Falls Invitational boys high school golf tournament.

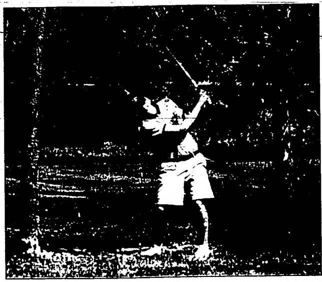
Stinar's group teed off on No. 11 to begin the tournament and he promptly put his first shot into the cup for an ace on the Thief River Golf Club 160-yard, par-3 hole.

It was an exciting way to kick off a round of golf. When totals were added up later that afternoon, however, the top scores belonged to the Prowlers. Paul Sjoberg was medalist with a one-over par 73 – three shots ahead of both Aaron Ness of Roseau and Jordy Christian of Moorhead – and Thief River Falls had a 10-stroke victory margin over the runner-up Rams, 308-318.

It was the fourth tournament win of the year for the Dick Tyler-coached Prowlers.

"Paul Sjoberg showed his leadership," pointed out Tyler. "Corey LaSalle's 77 and Lee Peterson's 78 gave us three scores in the 70's. Brady Stanley's 80, Kyle Lunke's 81 and Matt Nordhagen's 83 gave us a strong finish."

The 16 teams (15 of them complete) on hand for the annual event were greeted by sunshine and near-perfect temperatures, although they had to contend with a wind that picked up during the day.



Paul Sjoberg of the Prowlers was framed by a pair of trees on this chip attempt after overshooting the No. 9 green with his approach shot during Friday's Thief River Falls Invitational boys high school golf tournament. Sjoberg was the medalist with a 73.

TRF is 2-1 at tourney in Hibbing

One rough inning cost Thief River Falls a title during the annual Mike Bugliosi Wood Bat Classic high school baseball tournament played Friday and Saturday at Nyberg Field in Hibbing.

The Prowlers posted wins over Cloquet 7-4 and Mora 5-1, but lost a 10-9 shootout against Hibbing when the host Bluejackets erased a 7-0 deficit with a nine-run fourth inning.

Hibbing was the winner in the four-team, round-robin event.

"We played 20 pretty good innings this weekend," reported Thief River Falls coach Shane Zutz. "One more good inning and we win the tournament."

A two-out, fifth inning bases-loaded double by Ross Helling drove in all three runners as the Prowlers shattered 4-4 tie against Cloquet.

"We struggled a bit in this game," acknowledged Zutz. "We hung in there when things weren't necessarily going our way."

The Prowlers trailed Mora 1-0 before scoring five times in the bottom of the sixth – an inning in which the first five Thief River Falls batters reached base and scored. Picking up RBI were Dan Kaushagen, Drew Kjono and Helling.

Shut out on one hit through five innings, the Prowlers relied on pitcher Alex Carlson to keep it close. Carlson gave up only an unearned first inning run and scattered five hits.

"Alex pitched a great game," said Zutz. "The Mora kid (pitcher) really kept us at bay the whole game. We couldn't do much. But like we have all year, we found a way to come back."

Five walks, an RBI fielder's choice by Kaushagen and a two-run double by Kjono added up to a 3-0 Thief River Falls first inning against Hibbing.

An RBI double by Carlson and a run-scoring single by Kjono were part of a four-run second at-bat for the Prowlers, pushing their lead to 7-0.

Trailing 7-1, Hibbing put together six hits (four of them doubles), a hit-batsman, an error and two walks in the game-turning fourth inning.

"We came out strong, but we got comfortable," offered Zutz. "The wheels just fell off in the fourth inning."

Thief River Falls challenged the Hibbing lead on the strength of a two-out, two-run Alec Holen double in the fifth.

The Prowlers are 13-6.

TRF girls golf in final regular season meet

■ Section 8AA tournament Monday

It was a middle-of-the-pack fourth place Thief River Falls finish to close out the 2005 regular season at the eight-team Fosston/Win-E-Mac Invitational girls high school golf tournament Thursday.

Led by medalist Kristi Lucken's 76, first place Fosston shot a 375. The Prowlers turned in a 409.

Ashley Jury of the Prowlers was third in the medal standings with a 90.

"We're very happy with our last meet of the year," said Thief River Falls coach Gary Laidley. "I believe we have made some big strides this year, and it has been a fun group to work with."

With school year-ending classroom commitments taking a bite out of the Prowlers' roster, Laidley adjusted his line-up, and liked the results. "The girls stepped up and played well," he said. "Ashley Jury played very well."

Prowlers are defending 8A champs

Section 8A individual tournament Wednesday, June 1, also at Park Rapids.

The section team champion, along with the top two singles and doubles finishes from the individual competition, will advance to the Class A state tournament June 8-11 at two sites in the Twin Cities Area: the Northwest Athletic Club in Burnsville and the Nicollet Indoor Tennis Club/Reed-Sweat Family Tennis Center in Minneapolis.

Thief River Falls is the defending Section 8A team champion.

The Prowlers finished the regular season with a 12-1 dual meet record by beating host Park Rapids Area 6-1 Friday. A second match originally planned that day against New York Mills was not played and rain canceled a scheduled Saturday appearance at the Brainerd Invitational.

"Park Rapids has some nice, young players," noted Hanestad. "We have been serving pretty well as a team for the past couple of weeks [illegible] stay in [illegible]."

Hanestad continued his season-long tinkering with roster positions. "Again, we were able to juggle our line-up, which has allowed us to challenge our players and develop different areas of the game," he explained. "The boys continue to respond well to this, and I really believe it is going to make us a better team at the end of the year."

Thief River Falls' lone loss this spring was a 7-0 setback at the hands of Class AA Alexandria when the Prowlers were not at full strength.

It's the second straight year the Prowlers finished the regular season with a single dual loss. Their combined 2004 and 2005 regular season record is 25-2.

Lee Peterson had to battle his way out of the rough after the Prowlers' sophomore went over the No. 7 green Friday during the Thief River Falls Invitational high school golf tournament.

Hawks, Jacks lose to Prowlers

Grand Rapids and Bemidji were added to the Thief River Falls win column Thursday in boys high school tennis. The Prowlers edged the Thunderhawks 4-3 and handled the Lumberjacks 6-1 in matches played at Bemidji.

Wins at No. 2 and 4 singles by Michael Forney and Jacob Engelstad, along with victories at No. 1 and 2 doubles by Joe Ihle-Jordan Swanson and Jon Kays-Corey Horien netted the win over Grand Rapids.

"Grand Rapids has a really nice team – they have a great chance to qualify for the Class AA state tournament," pointed out Thief River Falls coach Troy Hanestad. "It was the biggest win for our team this season."

The 4-3 victory margin was just a point or two away from a much wider spread, according to Hanestad. "We actually came very close to winning two other matches," he mentioned, "so it was a very strong performance, all-around."

Hanestad liked the way his team met the challenge presented by the Thunderhawks. "Our kids responded very well under the pressure of a close match, and that is encouraging heading into section play," he said. "The kids really enjoyed playing a good team, and many commented that they would like to play one match like that per week. But that just has not been the case this year."

Justin Pyle, Engelstad, Ihle and Kays gave the Prowlers a singles sweep against Bemidji, with Forney-Cody Bottem and Swanson-Horien contributing doubles points.

Greenbush Race Park plans Saturday opener

from Robert Hultgren

It has been another tough start to the 2005 season at the Greenbush Race Park. With back-to-back attempts to open the schedule cancelled due to wet and cool weather, track officials hope the "third time's the charm" as they prepare to welcome the Northern Late Models Saturday, May 28.

The race card will also include Modifieds, NOPA Streets, Pure Stock, 4-Cylinders and Mini-Sprints. Super Stocks will not be a part of the program.

It's the first of three scheduled specials for the Northern Late Models, who will return for races June 25 and Aug. 6.

This will be the second season for the reconfigured track and lighting at the Greenbush facility and both racers and fans can look forward to another great season of action. The Race Park is located one-half mile north of Greenbush on County Road 7.

Hot Laps start at 7 p.m.

Detroit Lakes shortstop Amy Engberg was ready to apply the tag as Thief River Falls runner Amanda Timm was thrown out trying to stretch a sixth inning single into a double during Thursday's Section 8AAA high school softball game at the Multi-Events Center. The Prowlers beat the Lakers 7-1.

Sgt. Mike Puetz, center, helped control traffic during the 21st annual Dakota Clinic Triathlon Saturday. The Thief River Falls Police Department assisted with traffic control at several intersections along the route.

Wet triathlon run Saturday

It was a wet morning, but that did not deter the 99 teams and individuals who showed up for Saturday's 21st annual Thief River Falls Dakota Clinic Triathlon.

The 500-yard swim, 12-mile bike and 3-mile run was won by Patrick Mahoney of Grand Forks, N.D., in a time of 1-hour, 2-seconds.

Winner of the event in 2000, Philippe Chabot of Winnipeg, Man., was second in 1:01.39.

For the second year in a row the women's title went to a teenager from Winnipeg. This time around it was 19-year-old Jill Dobrinsky in 1:07.46.

Thief River Falls combination of Stephanie Duerkop, Nancy Hellie and Judy Johnson won the women's team relay crown for the third straight year, improving their time to 1:19.56.

Cami, Carissa and Jeff Hendrickson of Thief River Falls won family relay honors for the second straight year by improving their time by nearly four minutes to 1:20.56.

A Thief River Falls trio of Michelle Johnson, Russ Anderson and Joaquin Westerman was the winner in the mixed relay category with a 1:15.31 clocking.

Headed by 76-year-old Frank Farrar of Britten, S.D., six race records were set in 2005. Farrar set his fourth age group record, this time with a 1:34.02 in the 75-over division. He also holds records for the 60-64, 65-69 and 70-74 age groups.

The men's and women's swim marks were both lowered to 5:45 by Mike Johnson of Prior Lake and Hannah Whitehead of East Grand Forks

For the second straight year, the men's 55-59 age group record fell. Neil King of Nevis did it this time by a six-minute margin to 1:06.15.

Lisa Knudson of Portland, N.D., set the women's 45-49 record with a 1:14.05 and David Johnson of Grand Forks, N.D., set the Clydesdale (weight over 200 pounds) mark with a 1:03.17.

Hugo's Kids Triathlon followed the adult race, with Winnipeg entries the top finishers in the boys and girls divisions. Max Van De Leygraaf led the boys in the 50-yard swim, 2.4-mile bike and 1.2-mile run with a time of 18-minutes, 53-seconds. Nine-year-old Hayley Gusdal was the top-finisher for the girls in 26:43.

The event was a fund-raiser for the Thief River Falls Swim Club. Sponsors included Northern State Bank, Hugo's, Dakota Clinic, Pepsi and the Convention and Visitors Bureau.

Some of the girls were a little disappointed in their scores. Briana (Knott), Chelsea (Daley) and Michelle (Parish) played okay, but felt they could have shot a little better."

Will a bumpy ride for legislators fix our roadways?

Some of our area legislators agreed with the recent transportation funding bill that included a tax increase. In recent comments from the Capitol, Representatives Bernie Lieder and Brita Sailer, however, both noted that it was an imperfect solution.

No compromise ever offers a perfect solution, and because the governor thought there were too many imperfections, he vetoed the legislation. Legislators will have another shot at a transportation bill - even if it is in a special session.

The fault should not rest entirely with legislators. Perhaps the governor will re-think his position on signing the No New Tax pledge. A No New Tax pledge isn't the answer to solving all of Minnesota's problem. Not all problems can be solved by reducing spending in one area and increasing spending in another area. Oftentimes, these "solutions" create more problems than they solve.

The fault should not rest entirely with the governor, either. While it may be disappointing to some legislators and residents, the governor vetoed the transportation bill, he successfully walked a political tight rope by acknowledging that we have a problem, reminding residents and legislators of his pledge to veto a gas tax increase, reminding them of how he had proposed to solve the problem, and offering that voters should have an opportunity to approve a tax increase.

It seems no one disagrees that Minnesota needs to address its transportation problems.

According to Lieder, the Minnesota Department of Transportation has estimated that Minnesota needs to invest at least $1 billion per year in transportation just to stay even.

Regardless of the political gesturing (some might call it "jestering"), legislators need to get back to work on a transportation bill that will help address Minnesota's transportation woes. Perhaps the realization that everyone believes we have a problem may be the first step in reaching a compromise.

Roads are for everyone

As a result of a greater emphasis being been placed upon getting the word out about exercise - it's good for you - more people are walking, riding bikes, and jogging. Unfortunately, one of the more familiar complaints we hear during a year in Thief River Falls is that motorists aren't always willing to share the road with their neighbors.

Winter has finally given way to spring, and higher temperatures are allowing residents more opportunities to get outside and exercise. In addition, if not already over, the last days of the 2004-05 school year are fast approaching. Soon, children will be riding bikes, skating, running and walking on city streets and sidewalks at all hours of the day, and not just before and after school either.

Motorists need to be alert to the fact that the activity level in our community has increased, and our city streets are becoming a little more crowded. We realize that it's a busy time of year for almost everyone. With Memorial Day weekend and the end of the school year approaching, our patience is wearing thin. Intent upon getting somewhere fast or finishing a project at home or work, motorists don't always pay attention their surroundings.

The fault is not entirely the fault of motorists, though. As Thief River Falls Police Chief Kim Murphy has indicated, safety is a two-way street. Pedestrians can do many things that will help motorists notice them, such as wearing brightly colored clothing, reflective clothing when it's dark, heeding traffic signals, and walking or running against the flow of traffic when possible.

Busy distracted drivers, and unaware pedestrians is not a good combination.

In the past several years, a familiar bumper sticker message has urged motorists to "Start Seeing Motorcycles." That's still very good advice. It's such good advice, maybe pedestrians should be wearing bumper stickers on their ample backsides that say, "Start Seeing Pedestrians." And, motorists should be putting bumper stickers on their vehicles that say "Start Seeing Motorists."

The point is, we could all use a wake up call. Heeding traffic signals, using common sense and being patient - and I emphasize patience - will help all citizens of our community.

Sailer: Veto is roadblock for rual road improvements

Rep. Brita Sailer (DFL-Park Rapids) called the governor's veto of the bipartisan Omnibus Transportation Bill Thursday a huge disappointment and a roadblock for the creation of jobs and road improvements in northwestern Minnesota.

"Our rural roads and bridges are in a state of disrepair," said Sailer. "This bill would have provided the funding needed to make significant investments in our transportation infrastructure. And that would have meant safer roads for our families and good construction jobs for our area this summer."

The bill would have invested $7.8 billion over the next 10 years in new funding. It included a balanced approach to raising revenue, adjusting the motor vehicle sales tax dedication and increasing the gas tax by five cents in 2006 and another five cents in 2008 to be dedicated to roads and bridges. It would have also allowed for $100 million in bonding in each of the next 10 years.

Under current law, Beltrami County would receive $4.5 million in state aid for county highways in the next 10 years; under the bill, it was set to receive $15.97 million. In Clearwater County, the difference in funding over 10 years would have increased from $2.69 million to $6.75 million. In Hubbard County, the new money for roads and bridges would have gone from $2.94 million to $9.12 million; Polk County would have seen $19.64 million in 10 years instead of the $6.51 million under current law.

"This wasn't a perfect bill," said Sailer. "It was a bipartisan compromise to address a real need, and that is what it is going to take to get the job done for transportation as well as education, healthcare, and a whole host of other areas of government in these last few days of the 2005 legislative session."

Sailer added that she was concerned that the veto could mean that the Legislature may adjourn this year without passing a reasonable, comprehensive transportation package.

"We can't continue to stick our heads in the sand as our rural roads crumble," said Sailer. "This bill would have sent the majority of the new highway revenues to Greater Minnesota. This veto means lost opportunity for our area."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Time to recognize those who passed before us

To the Editor:

Memorial Day is a time to recognize the family, friends and other loved ones that have passed on before us. They are our grandparents, mothers, fathers, spouses, siblings or children. Many died in the defense of our nation while others lived a quieter life defending the honor of the American family.

This week is one in which families gather, grills are lit and people enjoy a day off from work. But amid all the fun, we must remember the reason we are free to enjoy the occasion.

Americans have celebrated this day since the time of the Civil War, when men and women began decorating graves of Confederate soldiers. In true American spirit, the southern people also decided to decorate the graves of the fallen Union soldiers, recognizing the need for healing so vital after the bloodiest and most divisive era in our nation's history. This led to the creation of Decoration Day, which became Memorial Day.

Since then, we have seen other wars from border skirmishes to great world conflicts. In each of these, we have lost Americans, and for many, remembering can be a curse when you've spent years trying to forget the pain.

We not only celebrate the lives of those who have died each Memorial Day, but those living in their shadow. Many were wounded, bearing both physical and emotional scars from the battle for freedom of those who will follow us.

We all cherish the hope that ideals of peace, freedom and liberty for which they sacrificed will shine forever. The men and women who died in uniform live on in our hope for tomorrow. Carry that hope with you always.

Rep. Maxine Penas
District 1A

Preservation of our family farms challenged

To the Editor:

One of the more surprising aspects of balancing the state budget links preservation of family farms with the escalating cost of health care. In the Senate, we have passed legislation this year that is intended to help preserve the family farm, keep seniors in their own homes and help hold down long-term health care costs.

The expansion of Medical Assistance (MA) liens to joint tenancies and life estates two years ago has put family farms and homes in jeopardy. Families who thought they had legal protections put in place are finding out that, when they can least afford it, a lien has been placed on their property. This major law change interferes with the ability to pass along the family farm by placing a lien that could force an unwilling sale. Essentially, this law unfairly penalizes people who planned ahead to try to keep the farm in their family.

In addition, the newly added Alternative Care liens have served to drive many seniors off of the Alternative Care program. This program has given many Minnesota seniors the ability to be self-sufficient in their own homes with the help of regular home visits. Seniors left alone at home are much more likely to be forced into expensive nursing home settings sooner than if they had received a helping hand from home caregivers.

In my opinion, eliminating these liens do not constitute "health care welfare." It just does not seem like the fair and honorable way to treat our families and so many elderly people who have spent an entire lifetime contributing to our society. Besides, the long-term costs will be higher because loss of home caregiving will certainly result in greater use of nursing home care.

Fixing the problem will require an initial investment. The lien changes were part of the deficit fix in 2003. It might mean clamping down on some corporate tax avoidance to get rid of these liens, but it is certainly the right thing to do. Our heritage of family farms and obligations to the frail and elderly are at stake.

Sincerely,
LeRoy Stumpf
State Senator, District 1
Plummer

Rep. Penas knows tax increases will hurt business

To the Editor:

Last week, 120 members of the House of Representatives rejected the Senate's proposal to raise taxes on Minnesotans by more than $1.2 billion. Rep. Maxine Penas was one of those legislators. Clearly, Penas understands that the last thing Minnesota citizens and their employers need right now is a tax increase.

The Senate bill sent a message to Minnesota businesses and entrepreneurs to go elsewhere. It's ironic that the ultimate consequences of taxes assessed directly on businesses fall hardest on working families. It's noteworthy that the governor's budget is based on the projection that the state will collect $2 billion (8 percent) more without a general fund tax increase. Income tax collections alone are expected to increase 13 percent in the next biennium. That's more than most family budgets can expect.

Sincerely,
David C. Olson
President MN Chamber of Commerce

Governor's veto leaves Minnesotans stuck in congestion

The Minnesota Transportation Alliance and other transportation advocates have expressed disappointment over the decision by Minnesota Gov. Tim Pawlenty to veto HF2461, the omnibus transportation funding bill passed by both the House and Senate. The bill would have provided an additional $730 million per year over the next 10 years for highway and transit improvements throughout the state.

"While the governor has acknowledged that the state is 15 years behind in meeting its transportation needs and he proposed a bill that would raise an additional $750 million per year over 10 years, he has chosen to veto this bill, apparently because it contains an increase in the state's gas tax," Chad Sauer, president of the Alliance said.

"We believe that the gas tax and the [illegible] vehicle registration fee represent the quintessential user [illegible] that they are paid by all users of the highway system and the revenue is dedicated, by Minnesota's Constitution, for improving and expanding the highway system. Few other user fees are restricted by state constitution, with the revenue available to be used as the Legislature sees fit," he said. "The governor has proposed numerous increases in fees including an additional $37.8 million in transportation-related fees for the next biennium with increases in the title fee, records fee, driver license card fee, deputy registrar fee and driver road test fees. Unfortunately, none of that revenue builds any roads or bridges," Sauer stated.

"The lack of increased revenue will greatly hurt counties all over Minnesota," said Harlan Madsen, president of the Association of Minnesota Counties. "Counties desperately need additional revenue to make county highways safer and able to handle farm-to-market shipments. Without the funding provided in this bill, we will have to leave our roads in disrepair or raise property taxes," Madsen added.

The Metropolitan Council has announced that it is facing a budget shortfall of $60 million for the coming biennium and will be forced to cut bus service and raise fares if additional state dollars are not provided. "Thousands of bus riders will lose their bus service or face fare increases once again," said Barb Thoman, program director of Transit for Livable Communities. "People who rely on bus service to get to work and escape congestion will be forced to drive or simply remain stuck without the transportation they need to live their lives," she added.

"Businesses around the state are demanding a better infrastructure for shipping products and getting workers to the job," said Harris Duininck, president of Duininck Brothers. "The increased revenue for highways provided in this bill would not only put thousands of people to work immediately, it would improve the ability of all Minnesota businesses to compete and allow the state to attract new economic development."

The Minnesota Transportation Alliance supported HF2461 and urge the governor, the House of Representatives and the Senate to continue to work to develop a transportation funding package that truly begins to address the $700 million backlog mentioned by the governor with a permanent increase in long-term, dedicated funding for needed highway and transit projects.

The scholars at the schools will take the state examinations next week, which will close the school year.

"Next Tuesday is Decoration Day and a public holiday. Many of the neighboring towns will hold appropriate ceremonies.

"Rev. Aastad will hold confirmation services at the Norwegian Synod Lutheran church next Sunday morning. Nora Johnson, Esther Johnson, Elmer Burkee, and Edwin Dahl comprise the class to be confirmed.

"We have been having some more cold weather this week and on Wednesday night occurred quite a severe frost. So far as we have heard it did but little damage.

"The school board has decided to put in the Manual-Smith system of heating and ventilating in each of the six rooms at the school and the work will be done during the vacation. The system is supposed to be one of the best on the market and has been highly recommended.

"The Red Lake Falls people are busy this week circulating their petition of remonstrance against the county seat removal petition and otherwise getting ready for the fight that will come before the county commissioners when they meet next Monday to consider the removal petition. The meeting will probably be both lively and interesting.

"Charley Fellman has invested in a 'jotebock' which is Swede for an ordinary ornery-looking goat with whiskers. There has been considerable speculation about what Charley was going to do with it. Some say that he likes the odor, others that he bought the goat so that he would always have a 'cent' about his clothes; again that he would use it to help start Dahlen's bronco. Anyway he has the goat, as you will probably find out if you get on the windward side.

"Thief River Falls News: After the mill closes down this fall, the Hotel Ogahmah will be run on the European plan. No more meals will be served in this institution which for four years has been the leading hotel of the city and only rooms will be rented for the accommodation of the public. Landlord Robbecke and wife will spend the winter in Germany traveling.

"Red Lake Falls Gazette: J. B. Armstrong spent last Thursday evening at St. Hilaire and while there had the pleasure of listening to the newly organized band at rehearsal. Mr. Armstrong was greatly surprised and extremely pleased at the work being done by this organization and says that the progress that has been made is something remarkable. The band now has twenty-four members, composed of all young men and boys, and every one of them plays his part in an excellent manner. The band is already handling some good grades of music, and within a year will be among the foremost musical organizations of the valley. The people of St. Hilaire are to be congratulated and should use every means to insure the continuation of the organization now so nicely started."

Fish Are Biting

"We doubt if there can be found any better fish in the state than can be had right here in the pond and river. The pike have been biting very freely the past week and thousands of them have been caught. It is very little trouble for a fisherman to catch all the law allows, twenty-five fish, in the forenoon. We are afraid our local sportsmen have not observed this law as closely as they should the past week. In fact, the stories told, if published, would be likely to cause a game warden to visit us."

His View of the County Seat Matter

"H. C. L. Stoll of Joliet, Illinois, who has considerable Red Lake county land in this vicinity, writes us the following:

"'I see by your paper the controversy between Red Lake Falls and Thief River Falls to remove the county seat and would suggest, since it will cause considerable expense and perhaps a long time before it is finished, and more or less ill feelings arise, why can not these good citizens come together and say since you want it and we want it and we cannot very well agree, why not make it unanimous and locate the county seat at St. Hilaire, and admit that this is the best location, being more centrally located in the county and more convenient to all people concerned and the two towns would conclude it is in the right place after all and we are all friends? Don't you think so?

"Yours truly, H. C. L. Stoll.'"

Attractions Secured
L. M. Hoag Closes Contract for Entertainment for the Fair

"Secretary L. M. Hoag of the fair association last week closed the contract with the T. I. Cash Balloon and Attraction company of St. Paul, for attractions for the county fair to be held in this city on August 9, 10 and 11.

"Mr. Cash will be here with three special [train] cars and a company of seventy performers.' Among the attractions secured are a balloon ascension, trick cottage act, brother acrobat act, a slide of life, a Ferris wheel, a merry-go-round and five tent shows.

"The fair this year will be larger and better than ever before and people who are in attendance will be amused as they never have been before. Four special trains will be secured to bring the crowds here, one from Crookston, one from Greenbush, one from Detroit [Lakes] and one from Emerson."

Work Progressing

"The building of the roundhouse, coal sheds and other improvements which the Soo people are making at this place, are progressing in a very satisfactory manner. A large force of men is employed and the work is being rushed. The roundhouse will be completed sometime in June and, when this is done, several locomotives will be stationed here and used in the construction of the road from here west."

Decoration Day
An Excellent Program Has Been Prepared for the Day

"The program for the celebration of Memorial Day in this city next Tuesday has been nearly completed and those having the work in charge promise an interesting and instructive program. The exercises will be commenced at the Central school, where the line of march will be formed, and concluded at Greenwood cemetery. The line of march will be as follows: School Children, Veterans of the Civil War; Spanish-American War Veterans; Fire Department; City Council and Citizens."

Told Him to Leave

"'California' Hanson opened up his miniature race track in Thief River Falls the first of the week and had quite a large audience betting upon the results of his races. While his horses stood stationary, spindles pointed out the running horses and the result was as much in doubt as a real race. All worked well until Officer Erickson discovered the game and brought California and the race track into Judge Bishop's court. The judge did not like the looks of the machine, fined Hanson $20 and costs and told him to leave town."

Red Lake Falls at Work
Down-River People Last Week Started Circulating the Remonstrance

"Word comes to Thief River Falls from different parts of Red Lake county to the effect that Red Lake Falls last week commenced the circulation of the remonstrance. [This is a petition aimed at keeping the county seat of Red Lake County in Red Lake Falls, instead of moving it to Thief River Falls.] The down-river people have not made much headway, but, by misrepresentation, violence and fraud, have induced a few to sign the remonstrance. It is, of course, needless to say that our petition, having as it does such a large percentage greater than the required number, will still have the necessary 60 percent after Red Lake Falls has pried loose all of the weak-kneed ones.

"In fact the circulating of the remonstrance upon the part of Red Lake Falls is done more for effect than anything else. It will serve as an excuse to take the matter into court and postpone the removal for a short time. The people of Red Lake Falls have given up all hopes of ever being able to win after the matter is finally brought to a vote and have decided upon a campaign of keeping the matter in the courts for as long a time as it is possible."

Lots of Building
Many New Residences are Being Built in All Parts of the City

"Never before has Thief River Falls enjoyed such a building boom as at present. In all parts of the town new residences are being built and many of them are of a very substantial character. More houses are badly needed in Thief River Falls, as rents are high and many people who desire to come here are forced to stay away as they cannot secure houses to rent.

"Seven business blocks are now in course of construction and it is quite probable that more will be started later on."

Five to Be Graduated
Commencement Exercises of the Thief River Falls High School

"Class Colors: Rose Pink and Green

"Class Flower: LaFrance Rose

"Class Motto: 'Ex portu, in situm.' [From the threshold, into the place.]

"The second annual commencement exercises of the Thief River Falls high school will be held in the Evenson hall on Friday evening, June 2, of this year. A class of five, Marie Amanda Burgess, Olga Augusta Kretzschmar, Mary Gertrude Meehan, Hazel Joyce Prichard, and Joseph Gustavus Weeks, will be graduated and the following program has been prepared for the occasion: Music; Invocation: Rev. C. H. Flesher; Essay: 'Settlement Work in American Cities' - Mary Gertrude Meehan; Music; Essay: 'Upward Leading' - Marie Amanda Burgess; Oration: 'The Labor Question' - Joseph Gustavus Weeks; Music; Essay 'Woman and her Work' - Olga Augusta Kretzschmar; Essay 'The Ministry of Song' - Hazel Joyce Prichard; Music; Presentation of Diplomas - Mr. Lars Backe; Benediction: Rev. C. H. Flesher."

A New Town

"Viking is to be the name of the first town on the Soo line west from Thief River Falls. The Soo people have purchased land in Section 26 for a townsite and are having it surveyed into town lots. The new town will be about fifteen miles from Thief River Falls and is surrounded by good territory. There is no reason why it should not become a substantial town.

"The second town between here and Warren will be located in the township of Comstock about eight miles east of Warren."

"The plaque awarded to this city for leading in traffic safety among communities in the 5,000-10,000 population class, is now on display in a window at the Northern State bank. "Several bouquets, an expression of esteem of the pupils of the three elementary schools, were highlighted by a floral piece featuring a mounted golden horseshoe and lettered theme especially designed by Miss Bernice Troumbly. Teachers responsible for the decoration of the tables were Miss Ruth Mickelson, Miss Florence Bredeson, and Miss Godelyne Troumbly.

"C. W. Pope ably served as toastmaster. The presentation of a set of golf clubs and a bag to Mr. Claffy and a silver dish set to Mrs. Claffy was made by Miss Lyda Batten.

Silver Jubilee Of Rev. K. Patnode To Be Observed June 1

"St. Bernard's parish will celebrate the silver jubilee of its pastor, the Very Reverend Keough Patnode, on Wednesday, June 1. That date marks his priestly ordination twenty-five years ago by the Most Reverend Joseph Busch, late bishop of St. Cloud. Previous to ordination, Father Patnode studied at St. Lawrence college, Mount Calvary, Wisconsin; St. Boniface college, St. Boniface, Manitoba; and St. John's Seminary, Collegeville, Minnesota.

"Named pastor of St. Bernard's and dean of the Thief River Falls deanery in 1952 by the Most Reverend Francis J. Schenk, bishop of Crookston, Father Patnode came to his new assignment from the pastorate of St. Francis Xavier church in Oklee."
